Calls Step Only Way to Purge Reds.

Mankato, Minn., July 25 [Special].—John E. Regan, Democratic nominee for governor of Minnesota in 1932 and 1934 and for the United States senate in 1940, announced at his home here today he proposes to aid the Republican campaign this fall by organizing Dewey-Bricker all-party committees in every county of the state.

John E. Regan.

Regan said last week's Democratic national convention in Chicago, which he attended as a spectator, convinced him the Democratic party is under the control of Communists and that its only hope of salvation as a party lies in such a thumping defeat this fall that the present setup will be destroyed.

Bloated with Communists.

"My fight in Minnesota is for the purpose of preserving the Democratic party," he said in an interview. "We shall expose Sidney Hillman, Earl Browder, David Niles, and all the other men who have a throttlehold on the present Democratic party."

He described the party as "bloated with Communists which it is the duty of every right minded Democrat to remove from control of the party."

"As long as this Communistic group is in the saddle, there will be no Democratic party," he asserted. "This means the end of the two party system of government in the United States. In order to preserve the party and the two party system, Democrats must first get rid of the Communists.

Gang Must Be Defeated.

"Before they can do this and recapture control of their party, however, the gang now running things must be defeated so soundly that the real Democrats can rebuild from the ground up. This is one reason why I intend to give all my energy to the Dewey-Bricker ticket, but another is I believe Thomas E. Dewey is a true American."

Altho prominent in Minnesota Democracy for the last 20 years, Regan, a lawyer, never was an enthusiastic supporter of the New Deal. In the 1932 Democratic convention he led a die-hard Al Smith delegation to Chicago, and in 1934, when National Chairman James A. Farley was holding $100 a plate Jackson day dinners to replenish the party coffers, Regan proposed that the feasts be held on the birthday of the late Texas Guinan, night club entertainer, rather than Jackson, and that the guests to be greeted, "Hello, sucker."

F. D. R. 'ABUSES' ASSAILED

New York, July 25 (AP).—Republican National Chairman Herbert Brownell Jr. today accused President Roosevelt of misusing war time censorship to confer with "at least one high Democratic leader" on his west coast trip.

"This was a misuse of an important war time regulation for partisan New Deal purposes," Brownell asserted at a press conference, "and it is thoroly objectionable to the American people.

"We intend to continue to call public attention to the misuse by Mr. Roosevelt and New Deal lieutenants of war time regulations for the purpose of electing the New Deal ticket."

Leader Not Identified.

Brownell said the news Mr. Roosevelt had held such a conference "leaked out from people returning from the Democratic convention."

Brownell did not name the party leader. News dispatches of the President's trip, released after the President accepted renomination in a radio address from a Pacific coast naval base, disclosed Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, boarded the President's special train at a Chicago siding five days before the party convention.

Brownell added he believed every precaution should be taken for the President's safety.

FACE OF DEWEY KEPT FROM VIEW OF SERVICE MEN

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

A portrait of Gov. Dewey which was presented yesterday to the service men's center in the Auditorium hotel building was placed face to the wall by Mayor Kelly's men in charge of the center.

The picture of the Republican nominee for President was given to the center by the Cook county Republican central committee to hang alongside one of the same size of President Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee for election to a fourth term. It has been hanging in the center for months.

The presentation of Gov. Dewey's portrait caused confusion among the Kelly men, who placed it beside the lobby staircase with its back to the service men. Later the picture disappeared. A man who refused to give his name but was said to be S. J. Meuris, night director, told a reporter the portrait had been "locked up in a safe place" but he would not say where.

Hangs at End of Mess Hall.

The Roosevelt picture, 7 by 8 feet, hangs at one end of the mess hall, where service men daily eat 5,000 sandwiches and drink 9,000 cups of beverages, and also receive cake, pie, candy, and cigarets. The donors are 7,800 Chicagoans.

George M. Fisher, county G. O. P. chairman, had heard that many of the Republican contributors to the center were dissatisfied because it had no picture of Dewey. Yesterday he tried to remedy this.

Two men carried the Dewey picture into the receiving room and on thru the mess hall to the lobby. There the center director, Arthur L. Schultz, and a plain clothes policeman, Sgt. John T. Connors, objected.

"What's all this?" Connors wanted to know.

Fisher Explains It's a Gift.

"The county Republican committee is presenting this picture to the service men's center so that you may place it alongside the portrait of the Democratic candidate," Fisher said.

"Of course, there will be no hanging unless we get permission," Schultz said. "How did you get in without permission? Don't you know we keep track of every one and everything that comes here?"

Connors observed sternly: "You might have brought bombs in here."

Schultz declined responsibility for the picture. It might, he said, "get bumped around." The G. O. P. chairman said he wouldn't worry about that possibility, but he asked Schultz to let him know what disposition is made of the Dewey picture.

Fail to Reach Director.

Daniel L. Flaherty is administrative director of all the centers and Schultz said the next word must come from him. But it was his day off and he couldn't be reached at home.

When inquiries were made last month about the Roosevelt picture, which by its size makes the portraits of a dozen American generals and admirals look like snapshots, the explanation was that Roosevelt was not a candidate.

Hannegan's Name Bobs Up in Theft Trial

The name of Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic national committee, was brought into the trial of three men on robbery charges in Criminal court yesterday.

It was brought out that one of the defendants, William J. Roche, 33, of St. Louis had asked to be permitted to telephone a man named Hannegan after his arrest.

Inquiry in St. Louis last night disclosed that Roche, a former deputy assessor and deputy sheriff there, was a minor political worker in that city's 21st ward at the time Hannegan was Democratic committeeman for the ward.

Prisoner Names "Bob Hannegan."

Sgt. Frank Pape of the police robbery detail testified:

"Roche said during questioning in the office of Assistant State's Atty. Richard Austin that he had participated in the robbery, but that he would not discuss the matter further until he had an opportunity to talk to his parents and a lawyer and some friends in St. Louis. He was told he could use a telephone to call anyone he wanted, but he refused, and insisted he would not make any further statement unless he could talk to his lawyer and his friend, Bob Hannegan."

Defendant Admits Request.

Under cross-examination, Harold Levy, defense attorney, asked Pape: "As a matter of fact, you know that the Hannegan mentioned was Robert Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic national committee, don't you?"

Pape said he didn't know.

When Roche took the stand, Levy asked him: "Didn't you tell them you wanted to talk to Hannegan?"

"I did."

But when, on cross-examination, Austin asked Roche if he had not been offered use of the telephone to call Hannegan or any one else, Roche denied it.

Washington Brought In.

"Didn't you just tell your own lawyer that you wanted to talk to Hannegan?" asked Austin.

"No, I said I wanted to talk to some one in Washington."

Then, on re-direct examination by Levy, Roche said:

"Washington and Hannegan meant the same thing."

Roche and his two co-defendants, Wincel Urban, 48, of 1320 Cermak rd., and Raymond Fischell, 40, of St. Louis, are accused of robbing the Olson Transportation company, 2222 S. Western av., of $1,177.

Earlier, a lucrative underworld activity known as "tipping off," which nets its practitioners a straight 10 per cent commission with no occupational hazards, was described to the jury and Judge Harold G. Ward by William Walker, the state's star witness.

Walker testified he had been the tip-off man in the Olson robbery.

He said he had suggested the Olson company as an "easy looking spot" to Fischell, an old Stateville prison acquaintance, whom he met again last February. Fischell had told him he was short of funds, Walker said.

Thru Fischell, he met Urban and Roche, Walker testified, and all agreed that the Olson job looked like "easy money." He added that he went along with the trio to see the robbery performed, and that he was aware that all were armed.

GUAM RADIO TALKS TO PEARL HARBOR FIRST TIME SINCE '41

ON GUAM BEACHHEAD, NEAR AGAT, July 25 (AP).—Radio Guam came back on the air today with the first message to radio Pearl Harbor since that dark Dec. 10, 1941, when Capt. George J. McMillin, then naval governor, informed "Pearl" that Japanese planes were strafing and bombing Agana.

OPA PUTS MORE FRESH PRODUCE UNDER CEILINGS

Peaches, sweet potatoes, and cantaloupes are placed under price controls, Paul A. H. Shults, acting director of the Chicago metropolitan area of the office of price administration, said yesterday in announcing fresh fruit and vegetable ceilings for the week beginning tomorrow.

All varieties of cantaloupe will sell at 10 cents a pound, all varieties of peaches at 15 cents a pound, and sweet potatoes at two pounds for 22 cents.

Tomatoes are reduced 6 cents to 21 cents a pound and dry medium white onions 2 cents to three pounds for 21 cents. Peas also are reduced 1 cent to 14½ cents a pound.

TRUMAN RESTING ON ADVICE OF HIS PHYSICIAN

Independence, Mo., July 25 (AP).—Sen. Truman, 60 year old Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, denied tonight a report he was suffering from "nervous exhaustion," but said he was "resting" on the advice of a physician friend, Dr. James Graham.

The senator said he was spending the evening in bed, reading a stack of congratulatory letters and telegrams.

Allotting Seed Abroad Called Robbing U. S.

Allocation yesterday by the war food administration of 35 million pounds of field seed for use in foreign countries this year drew sharp protests from Chicago seed experts. This course, they asserted, will "unnecessarily rob the United States of seed desperately needed at home and will make more difficult the task of feeding needy foreign countries."

The WFA said it planned to send 4.5 per cent of the nation's prospective 780 million pound supply of grasses and small legume seeds for forage to the allied nations, friendly neutrals, and liberated areas. It admitted, however, a probable seed shortage in this country.

Shortage Called Serious.

Such a shortage was viewed not only as probable but as probably serious by Charles A. Heath, known in the trade as the dean of American field seed men. Heath, who is 84 and has spent a lifetime in the seed business, is noted for his annual surveys and forecasts of seed prospects.

"The situation at present is extremely critical," he said last night. "We do not look for normal seed crops, especially of sweet clover, red clover, alfalfa, alsike, blue grass, or timothy. We see no prospect even of a small surplus over our own requirements, except possibly of blue grass and timothy.

"It must be considered that this year's acreage is short and labor is short. The farmers have more work than they can do and there are other crops considered more important that will require much of their attention."

Other seed men who criticized the action of the WFA declined to permit use of their names because they may wish to bid on some of the business.

The head of one of the largest field seed firms in the nation, who asked that his name not be used, called the WFA's estimated seed production figure "ridiculous" and said that production in the largest year on record, 1939, totaled only 503 million pounds of red and white clover, alsike, sweet clover, alfalfa, lespedeza, and timothy, the principal field seeds.

He said it is impossible to estimate how much may be produced as seed this season, but that if it approaches the 1939 mark "we probably can spare 7 or 8 million pounds to Europe and other countries."

Other experts scoffed at the idea that other countries could use such a large quantity of seed. Said one: "Two months after we took over in southern Italy and sent in seed, the Italians were offering home-grown seed for export.

REDS FIGHTING IN STREETS OF LWOW; 4,000 PLANES BLAST PATH IN FRANCE

LONDON, July 25 (AP).—Red armies today smashed to within seven miles of the Wisla [Vistula] river, last big water barrier before the German border, surrounded Lwow and broke into its outskirts, and cut the last Nazi rail escape route from the big Latvian city of Daugavpils [Dvinsk].

North of Bialystok the Russians were less than 26 miles from the original pre-war borders of East Prussia, having captured the town of Lipsk and moved on.

Racing toward the Wisla on a 50 mile front between Lublin and Lukow, soviet forces appeared ready to cross the big stream and outflank Warsaw on the south.

Among 200 towns taken by the Red army on that front were Motech, six miles west of the "ghetto city" of Lublin, and Kurow, seven miles east of the Wisla and some 66 miles southeast of Warsaw.

[A dispatch from a Reuters correspondent in Moscow early today said soviet forces had reached the Wisla.]

Seize Another General.

Southeast of Lublin, the Russians announced they had closed a trap on the key rail city of Lwow, Poland's third largest, and were fighting in the streets. There a German general named Hauffe, commander of the 13th army corps, was wounded, and surrendered with his staff, the soviet midnight war report said.

On the Baltic section of the 800 mile front, the Russians cut the Daugavpils-Riga railway 11 miles northwest of Daugavpils, thus, in effect, surrounding the city.

Frontal Drive Near Warsaw.

While soviet forces pressed directly toward the Polish capital of Warsaw with a drive closing on Siedlce 50 miles away on the east, soviet planes heavily bombed Siedlce Monday night. The Russians remained silent on a German admission that Siedlce had been abandoned.

The Russians were also silent on their campaign south and southwest of Kaunas, Lithuania, but again Red bombers pointed the way with a raid on Tilsit, East Prussia.

On the northernmost front, soviet advances west and southwest of liberated Pskov narrowed almost to nothing the last strip of pre-1939 Russian soil in German hands.

Close in on Bialystok.

At the approximate center of the long front Red forces fought into the outskirts of the bastion of Bialystok.

To the south, Brest Litovsk had been completely outflanked and almost encircled.

On the southernmost front, in the Carpathian foothills, the soviet bulletin reported another encirclement move against Stanislawow, with soviet forces only 3½ miles away on the northeast.

The Polish press bureau in London quoted a Gen. Bor, commander of the underground army, now called Poland's home army, as saying three German armies had disintegrated on the Polish front.

The Polish Telegraph agency said the Germans have been driven out of three-fourths of Lwow.

NAZI WAR BULLETIN.

Of Russia, yesterday's broadcast German war report said:

"A great defense battle between the upper Dnestr [river] and the Gulf of Finland goes on with growing intensity. In Galicia numerous soviet attacks supported by tanks and battle planes were frustrated.

"In the city district of Lwow bitter fighting continues. Between the Bug and the Wisla rivers strong enemy pressure continues. The garrison of Lublin offered stubborn resistance to the enemy, who is attacking with superior forces from all directions.

"Northwest of Brest Litovsk several soviet bridgeheads on the western bank of the Bug were eliminated in a counter-attack.

TWO INVADING FORCES MEET ON GUAM; KILL 2,400

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, July 25 (AP).—Substantial gains on invaded Guam and Tinian Islands, with American forces effecting a junction on the eastern shores of Guam's Apra harbor, were announced today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

Troops who invaded Guam only last Thursday thus controled all of Apra harbor's shore lines with the exception of a portion of the Orote peninsula on the south. There an unknown number of Japanese had been isolated.

Casualties on both Tinian and Guam, light compared with the first few days of the invasion of Saipan, were announced by Nimitz as follows:

Guam—443 killed, 2,366 wounded, and 209 missing.

3,724 Japs Killed.

At least 2,400 enemy dead had been counted on Guam and 1,324 on Tinian.

After shaking off a pre-dawn counter-attack on Tinian Monday the American forces broadened and deepened their hold. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the Japanese in breaking up the attack and five enemy tanks were destroyed.

Before noon the Tinian invaders, with heavy artillery and naval fire support, had advanced half way across the northern end of the island, which is within gunfire of Saipan. The beachhead had been widened to three and one-half miles.

Air Field Is Overrun.

Much of the Ushi point air field on Tinian, said to be comparable to Hawaii's Hickam field, had been overrun.

Carrier aircraft and fleet units continued their support of the ground operation. Accurate fire of the warships blasted at selected targets, interrupting troop movements in the enemy's rear.

In the northern sector on Guam the American lines had been extended from Adelup point to the mouth of the Aguada river. The Americans there were threatening Agana, capital of the island.

Jap Attack Suicidal.

ABOARD EXPEDITIONARY FLAGSHIP OFF TINIAN, July 25 (AP).—American marines swept onto Ushi point airdrome on Tinian Island today and captured strategic heights commanding it, after a night of fighting in which several hundred Japanese were killed.

Marines mowed down the enemy in the beachhead perimeter unperturbed by the wild yells of the attacking Japanese and the flash of Samurai swords. Japanese armament for the counter-assaults was largely confined to machine guns and rifles, but they did manage to get five tanks into action, which

ILLINOIS OFFICER ON CARRIER STOPS THAT STRAY BULLET SPRAY

ABOARD CARRIER FLAGSHIP, Central Pacific, July 25 (AP).—Lt. [j. g.] O. B. Pace, 29, of Lacon, Ill., got tired of dodging bullets from Hellcat fighter planes which landed on his carrier with the gun switches inadvertently left on. So he and Lt. [j. g.] Robert H. Duklauer, 24, Mount Vernon, N. Y., also a gunnery expert, got their heads together. They used 18 inches of wire, changed one switch, and now the Hellcat can't do that any more.

This is the way most of our aircraft improvements are made. A harried pilot or deck officer, frantically dodging disaster, decides "this has got to stop!" He stops it, with some simple, homemade gadget; soon the whole fleet is using it.

Pace is returning to the United States for home leave and reassignment.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. 1ST ARMY HDQ. IN NORMANDY, July 25.—Preceded by what was said to be the greatest saturation bombing of a single ground force target, Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley sent his doughboys forward today in an offensive along a wide front west of St. Lo.

By evening his troops had fought their way thru hedgerows south of the St. Lo-Periers road in several places. One team forced a penetration against heavy resistance of from 1¼ to 1½ miles beyond the road. Tonight the fighting continued in all its bitterness as massed American and German guns split the darkness with their shell bursts. Gen. Eisenhower during the day paid a seven hour visit to the beachhead.

Americans went into action on a front stretching all the way from St. Lo westward to the sea, but the main attack centered on a five mile sector between the Vire and Taute rivers. During the day's air action at least 12 enemy planes were downed. Six American bombers and three fighters were reported lost.

Pulverize 5 Mile Corridor.

British and Canadian forces at the eastern end of the Normandy bridgehead before dawn today opened a coördinated offensive. They drove south of Caen toward Falaise on a 4 mile front against some of the strongest German resistance of the entire campaign. They gained a mile and seized at least two towns.

Nearly 4,000 United States bombers and fighters were used to pulverize a corridor five miles wide and two miles deep ahead of the American advance. It seemed to observers standing back of the bomb line that nothing could remain alive under the thousands of fragmentation bombs that were dropped.

But the enemy remained alive. Hundreds undoubtedly were killed or wounded. Some prisoners taken in the early fighting blubbered like babies or stared with glassy eyes.

But hundreds of other Germans withstood the blasting. Even while the smoke and dust were settling they went back to man their guns. Others from deep gun emplacements started firing flat trajectory field pieces or pumped shells from tanks dug in to simulate pillboxes.

Break Quiet of Seven Days.

And as the doughboys advanced, in some cases green hedgerows burst into flame. The sharp crackle of automatic weapons and the deeper "smack" of artillery indicated that once more it was the same old battle of hedgerows along the front which had been relatively quiet for seven days.

While the bombing by Fortresses, Liberators, mediums, and fighter bombers produced an awesome spectacle it was not always accurate. Some bombs fell within our lines, causing American casualties. This lack of exactness in precision bombing, too, may have been one reason why one flank of the American attack met extremely heavy resistance.

From their British bases came more than 1,500 Fortresses and Liberators with an escort of 500 fighters. And behind them dotting the cloudy sky came 500 medium bombers, in turn to be followed by 500 fighter bombers.

Begin Second Attack.

The first bombers, which came over yesterday, dropped their loads on both enemy and American lines along both sides of the St. Lo road. The ceiling was obviously too low for "precision" work by the heavies and the second air attack began this morning.

Against a gray sky the bombers looked like great flocks of geese heading south. The sun was trying to burn thru the cloud cover as the bombers came in just under the ceiling, roaring along at levels between 10,000 and 12,000 feet.

In crashing crescendo, the first stick of bombs thundered against the earth exactly at 9:35 a. m. For 35 minutes they came, each wave disgorging its tons of explosives. And from the German lines came the answering thunder of anti-aircraft guns.

Black puffs burst all around the bomber formations. One plane faltered, fell behind and then as orange flames licked hungrily at its fuselage the plane crumpled. It turned slowly on one side and started its death plunge but not before its crew bailed out.

Squadrons of Mediums.

A moment after the heavies finished their job, squadrons of mediums flew over. Some carried heavy cratering bombs while others had only fragmentation bombs aimed at killing soldiers without tearing up the roadways. And then during the last part of 2½ hours of sound and fury came smaller fighter-bombers to dip, slip and skipbomb pinpoint gun positions and strong points.

Medium bombers also were dropping leaflets as part of the psychological attack.

At 11 a. m. doughboys started their attack. The deepest penetration was made thru enemy positions which previously had been worked over by the bombers.

But the bombers had not silenced all opposition. As the doughboys advanced they did so against mortar shells, artillery, and machine gun fire. They reached one house converted into a machine gun nest and surrounded by earthworks. Dead Germans filled the trenches, but within the house other Germans put up a fight until the doughboys went in with grenades and captured 15 of them.

German Tanks Come Up.

Some German tanks came up to the bombed area to support their soldiers and were taken on by our artillery. Doughboys with bazookas joined in the fight, working from holes in the hedgerows.

In one sector, apparently undamaged by bombs, Germans were fighting with ferocity from dominant hill positions. In another sector we took prisoners who were so shattered by the bombing they had to be sent immediately to the rear for medical attention.

Flowing south from enemy lines, our air reconnoissance reported roads filled with streams of civilian refugees hurrying to escape destruction from the bombing. This area previously had been reported evacuated of French inhabitants upon German orders but apparently still retained hundreds of men and women caught behind by the American bombers.

BRITISH GAIN ONE MILE

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 26 [Wednesday]. — Pushing south of Caen, British and Canadian forces gained a mile along the road to Falaise in the first few hours of their drive yesterday.

The attack was preceded by an all night artillery bombardment. It was not a barrage, but a series of saturation attacks on specific enemy strong point, such as gun and mortar positions, machine gun nests, and troop concentrations.

The ground attack started at 3:30 a. m. One Canadian unit suffered so heavily in the face of the fierce German resistance that all the officers from one company were lost. The unit carried on with a sergeant in command.

By 9:30 a. m. British tanks joined the battle. For a time there was combat against anti-tank guns, but the enemy was swept back and the tanks rolled on. The British tanks fought with the support of dive bombers.

Weather Better During Day.

The first phase of the attack was carried on in a light morning mist. Then the weather began to improve, and as the attack progressed the sun came out brightly.

Canadian troops thrusting southward across the Caen-Thury-Harcourt and the Caen-Falaise road, captured the villages of St. Martin de Fontenay and Verrieres, despite heavy German resistance. Progress, however, was described as "extremely slow."

Two SS [elite guard] armored units were reported in the forefront of the German defensive positions. Field Marshal Rommel used his armor in groups of 10 to 15 tanks scattered among dozens of pillboxes and anti-tank ditches which were covered by scores of 88 mm. guns.

The midnight headquarters bulletin said the enemy was putting up stubborn resistance in the area of May-sur-Orne and Tilly-la-Campagne, about three miles apart, which the Canadians captured by midmorning, only to lose by noon.

Outside of asserting that operations were "progressing satisfactorily," supreme headquarters had little to add early this morning.

Cling to Positions Won.

Despite a series of German counter-attacks, the British still held their positions ranging from 1,000 yards to a mile advance along a four mile front from the Orne river to Tilly-la-Campagne. Headquarters maintained that St. Martin and Verrieres still were in British hands despite enemy claims that they had been retaken. It was conceded that the British position was fluid.

The British salient is now exposed to German fire from the east bank of the Orne. Enemy harassing fire was being rained behind the British lines from artillery on higher ground to the south. The Germans were believed to have 250 tanks south of the battle area. The country is good for defensive fighting because of many small fields, and the British and Canadians are driving uphill.

Hundreds of allied aircraft of all types were ahead of the troops, bombing and strafing enemy resistance points and disrupting communications all over Normandy. The German air force became active in a minor way, staging a series of quick dashes across the front, and then returning to their hidden air fields in the south.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Tuesday's German war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin and recorded in New York by the Associated Press said:

"The Americans yesterday [Monday] launched an attack with strong forces northwest of St. Lo and southwest of Carentan after violent artillery preparation and strong air attacks. In the course of embittered fighting the enemy was repelled with severe losses inflicted on him. Early in the morning today [Tuesday], British divisions opened an expected attack in the Caen area after the strongest artillery and air force preparation. Heavy fighting developed which is continuously growing in intensity.

"The enemy lost 21 planes over the landing head and the occupied western district.

"Seventy-five terrorists were wiped out in the fighting during mopping up operations in a French area.

IKE PAYS SIXTH VISIT TO FRONT; SIGNS G. I. MONEY

After flying across the channel in his private plane with an escort of four Spitfire fighters the general took time out for a gabfest with G. I.'s at a Normandy landing strip while waiting for a transport train to Montgomery's headquarters.

Signs Doughboys' Bills.

Sgt. Griffith Harris of Cos Cob, Conn., shoved a $5 bill at the supreme commander and asked him to sign it for a short snorter collection. The general joked about swapping the five for a dollar as he grinned and scrawled his name on the bill. By that time half a hundred other doughboys were digging in their pockets for currency. The general signed them all.

At Montgomery's headquarters the two generals posed for pictures. "Monty" was wearing his usual beret, sweater, and baggy kneed corduroys. As the two conferred a fleet of heavy bombers roared over.

Talk for Four Hours.

When Eisenhower departed shortly afterward for Bradley's headquarters on the American sector the din switched to that of artillery as the time neared for the infantry to go into action.

The two American generals talked for almost four hours. The supreme commander also held a brief huddle with Maj. Gen. Elwood Quesdada, chief of the United States 9th air force's fighter command. The general's plane was set down at a British base before dusk, completing a seven hour tour.

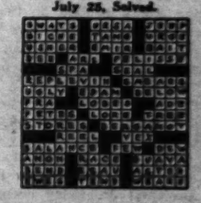
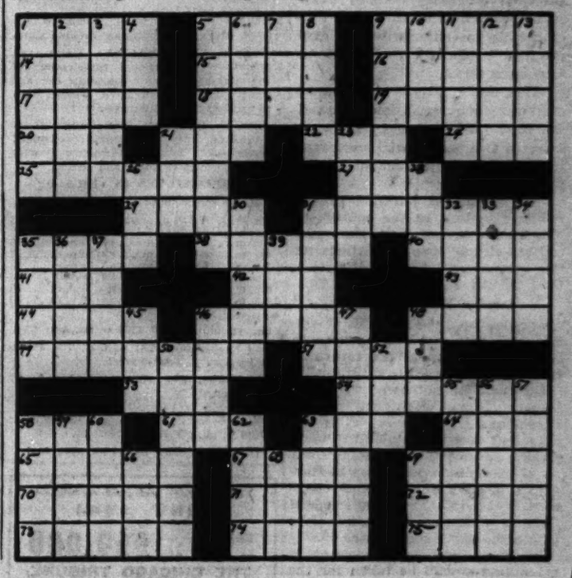
Puzzle of Tuesday, July 25, Solved.





RUSSIA SETS UP BUG AS FRONTIER OF NEW POLAND

Lets Soviet Backed Unit Rule West of River.

LONDON, July 25 (AP).—Russia concretely advanced her program for incorporating eastern Poland into the soviet and compensating a re-born Poland with German lands today by announcing she recognized the new "Polish committee of national liberation" as the sole civil authority in territory now being wrested from the Germans west of the Bug river.

Administrators of this committee are moving up with the Red army and setting up civil administrations, Moscow said in disavowing any Russian intention of changing the Polish social system or creating any soviet authority in Polish lands.

The Polish exiled government in London, with which Russia has no relations and which the new Russian-backed committee has denounced as "illegal," is ignored in the arrangements.

No Tipoff to United States.

Formation of the liberation committee with headquarters on Polish soil and its recognition by Russia apparently came without any advance notice to the United States department of state or the British foreign office, both of which recognize the exiled government as the official Polish regime.

Moscow announced it was doing business with the new committee a few hours after the Polish government in London considered ways to meet the flat challenge to its authority. Its spokesmen have called the committee "usurpers," and the Polish ambassador to Washington, D. C., Jan Ciechanowski, described the new committee today as "a typical puppet government imposed by Moscow."

A Polish representative conferred at the British foreign office as Ciechanowski conferred at the United States state department, with the strong likelihood that American and British intervention was being asked in an effort to unite the rival factions.

Four Polish Divisions in Action.

Russia said four divisions of Polish troops organized in Russia now are fighting beside the Red army in territory which Russia recognizes as Polish—that is, west of the Bug river, which was established as the boundary by Hitler and Stalin in their 1939 partition of Poland.

The government statement emphasizing Moscow's aims said: "Russia has no aim of acquiring any part of Polish territory or changing the social system in Poland. Military operations of the Red army on Polish territory are dictated solely by military necessity and the desire to aid the friendly Polish people in liberating themselves from German occupation."

Moscow made it clear, however, that it considers the Bug river as the boundary, and that territories east of that line, which were Polish before 1939, are integral parts of the soviet republics of White Russia, the Ukraine and Lithuania.

Seek Parts of Germany.

Such a boundary has the approval of the Polish liberation committee. The committee also apparently had Russian backing for its claim of a western boundary on the Oder river, which would place within a new Poland all of East Prussia, Polish Silesia, most of Pomerania and part of Brandenburg and give Poland a broad outlet to the Baltic, all at German expense.

Russia announced that administration of liberated territory [west of the Bug river] would be entirely in the hands of the Polish committee.

U. S. to Stay Neutral.

Washington, D. C., July 25 (AP).—The United States intends to pursue a nonpartisan course in the Russo-Polish dispute over the administration of liberated areas of Poland, it was reported on high authority tonight.

Officials here hope a way will be found to avoid any direct clash of interests between Britain and the United States, on one hand, and Russia on the other over the Polish question.

America and Britain recognize the exiled government in London as the legal regime for Poland, subject to approval by the people when they are able to express themselves freely. For the time being the United States and Britain are regarded here as having on their hands a government without a country.

CHILDREN PILFER ROBOT DAMAGED HOMES IN BRITAIN

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 25.—Looting by children of premises damaged by robot bombs absorbed much attention here today as the flying bomb offensive showed signs of slackening and R. A. F. heavy bombers attacked a site which the air ministry said "appeared to be connected with the enemy's threatened use of long distance rockets."

The air ministry did not specifically locate the giant rocket target. Other heavy bomber units raided robot bomb bases in the Pas de Calais and Watten areas of northern France.

Children Face Court.

"Children are taking an increasing part in the looting of bombed homes," said the chairman of a southern England Juvenile court as he berated two boys and two girls aged 9 and 12 for stealing household articles from damaged premises. Because of the youth of the defendants, however, the charges were dismissed.

British newspapers are urging stiffer sentences for looters, altho the ministry of home security claims that reports that looting is increasing are exaggerated.

The Evening News, however, quoted an insurance company spokesman as saying: "There is an enormous volume of looting." He cited the case of a friend who, after a robot raid, found a stranger in his damaged house. "What are you doing here?" his friend asked. "The same thing you are, chum—taking what I can get," the stranger replied.

Looting Called "Inhuman."

Editorially the News branded looting as a "crime so inhuman that it calls for the most drastic punishment by law." The law provides death for looting but no court has attempted to impose the maximum sentence.

Food Minister J. J. Llewellin announced that the health ministry would set up clubs for evacuees in reception areas so they could spend some time away from their billets.

Comes In on One Leg Himself but Brings That Bomber Back

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 25.—Altho wounded by a piece of flak which pierced his leg, 2d Lt. Robert MacCombs of Holly, Mich., pilot of the B-17 Flying Fortress Janey Gal remained at the controls and with the aid of his top turret gunner brought the plane back to its home base safely today.

MacCombs had been on an 8th air force mission bombing German targets in France, during which his ship was crippled by anti-aircraft fire. He had just seen his co-pilot killed and was in intense pain but he kept flying as he calmly reported to his crew: "I've got a little piece of flak in my leg but I'm okay. Is everybody else okay?"

Makes Dangerous Landing.

Despite the wound and the danger of landing his badly damaged plane with a full bomb load, MacCombs, cool-headed and courageous, set the Fortress down without mishap.

He was hospitalized but, with his leg in a plaster cast, is walking about.

Christened by Princess.

Other midwesterns taking part in attacks on tactical targets in France by Flying Fortresses today were 2d Lt. Gerald Weiler, Auburn, Ind., navigator of Rose of York, recently christened by Princess Elizabeth, who commented that the "weather today was made to order for a mission of this sort"; 1st Lt. Evean L. Williams, Laclede, Ill., who said: "I don't think it would have been safe for the luftwaffe to come up today."

Second Lt. Bruno Mas, Grosse Point, Mich., whose brief remark was, "We really pinpointed that target"; Capt. Carl W. Johnson, Sparta, Mich.; Col. Albert J. Shower, Madison, Wis., who said, "The air over the target area was congested with our planes," and Corp. Sidney Smilo, Detroit, Mich. Smilo expressed the hope that what the bombers did today will help his brother who is fighting with the ground forces in France.

ENGLAND PLANS TO UNTIE FAMED 'OLD SCHOOL TIE'

Board Urges Opening Classes to Poor.

LONDON, July 25 (AP).—A government committee of educators today published a plan to transform the "old school tie," traditional symbol of the British ruling class, into a democratic cravat by opening the country's famed "public" school system to every one—regardless of wealth or social rank.

The plan, which would revolutionize the British schools' centuries old caste system, would be voluntary, but its general acceptance seems likely.

The plan goes now to R. A. Butler, president of the board of education, who is expected to follow up quickly with invitations to schools such as Eton, Harrow, and Westminster for boys and Wycombe Abbey and Roedean for girls to participate.

Hope for Acceptance.

The committee voiced hope of general acceptance of the plan, saying such action would break down the social exclusiveness which characterizes Britain's public schools.

"Old school tie" favoritism for the alumni of endowed private schools [called "public" in England] has long influenced appointments to the British bench and to foreign office positions.

Plan Selective System.

The public school system now comprises 83 independent boarding schools and 99 day schools for boys, aided by direct grants from local education authorities. For girls there are 78 independent schools and 58 aided schools. Together they are able to register only 29,000 boys and 10,000 girls.

It is proposed that as an entering wedge the boarding schools permit part of their enrolment to be drawn from boys and girls selected by school authorities on the basis of their records and character.

R. A. F. BOMBERS RENEW ATTACK ON STUTTGART

LONDON, July 26 [Wednesday] (AP).—For the second night in succession R. A. F. heavy bombers battered Stuttgart and Mosquitoes hit Berlin last night while other British formations pounded flying bomb installations in northern France. The announcement said the night bombers were out "in great strength," indicating that at least 1,000 took part in the raids.

Italian based allied bombers yesterday struck at the incompleted Goering steel works at Linz, on the Austrian Danube, near Bavaria, and rail yards at Villach, Austria. The Goering works, which was raided for the first time, was designed by the Germans to produce iron, steel, and tanks for the army. Some Nazi fighters were downed in the attack.

AP CAMERAMAN DIES IN ACTION ON FRONT IN FRANCE

LONDON, July 25 (AP).—Bede Irvin, Associated Press war photographer, was killed in action on the Normandy front today, United States army authorities announced. He was killed near Pont Hebert, four miles north of St. Lo. Further details were not available.

Bede Irvin.

Irvin, 33, of Des Moines, Ia., volunteered for foreign service early in the war and left the United States in April, 1943, for London. After covering invasion preparations in Britain, Irvin was attached to the air forces and took many airviews of the invasion armada as the Normandy beachhead was established. Later he was assigned to the 9th air force in France.

He witnessed some of the hottest fighting and took the first pictures of the German rocket gun site on the Cherbourg peninsula. Irvin is the eighteenth American newspaperman killed on war assignment since the war began in 1939.

CLINTON MAN KILLED.

Clinton, Ill., July 25 [AP].—Ray Sprague, 36 of Clinton, was killed and his wife, Ruth, was injured today when their car sideswiped a truck three miles north of Clinton.

Resurfacing Begins Today on Part of Outer Drive

Leif Eriksen drive, otherwise known as the Outer drive, will be resurfaced from 24th st. south to Coast Guard drive at about 64th st. in Jackson park, beginning this morning, the Chicago park district said yesterday. A protective coating will be placed over the present asphalt, with a pebble surface to increase traction. Traffic will be rerouted to other park drives between 63d and 57th sts., but otherwise part of Eriksen drive will be kept open. The job is expected to require 16 days.

78 OUT OF 111 OBEY UNION AND HALT PULLMAN STRIKE

As a result of an ultimatum from Felix K. Knight, international president of the AFL Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, that 111 riveters at the Michigan City [Ind.] plant of the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company return to their jobs or be dropped as union members, 78 of the strikers went back to work yesterday and the company resumed production of steel freight cars.

Knight's action preceded a meeting between the strikers and George L. O'Brien, international vice president of the union, and Steven C. Spencer of the war labor board. O'Brien and Spencer were still closeted with the remainder of the strikers late yesterday in an effort to get them to return. O'Brien ruled that if the remaining strikers do not return on the 7:30 a. m. shift today they will be expelled from the union.

The strike was called July 14 by the riveters because they refused to produce steel freight cars at the 1942 rate of production.

ALLIES MOVE ON FLORENCE FROM SOUTH AND WEST

Kesselring Wounded

LONDON, July 25 (AP).—The German news agency DNB said in a Berlin broadcast tonight that Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, commander in chief of Nazi forces in Italy, was wounded slightly during front line operations recently. After first aid treatment he was able to continue an inspection tour.

ROME, July 25 (AP).—British infantry, gaining in small but bloody battles thru mountainous country, advanced to within less than 10 miles of Florence from the south, and American troops fighting inland along the Arno river were reported tonight only 18 miles west of that great art center and transportation hub.

The enveloping allied drives on the historic city, 140 miles northwest of Rome, were being pressed in the face of bitter enemy resistance. Nazi troops yielded each successive position only after being blasted out.

As the 5th and 8th armies converged for a final assault on the city there was no indication that Field Marshal Albert Kesselring had any plan other than to defend it desperately, rather than to withdraw into the "Gothic line" on the northern side of the Arno, which flows thru Florence.

Germans Across River.

On the American front, extending from the Tyrrhenian sea thru the city of Pisa and on inland along the twisting Arno river to a point 18 miles from Florence, the last German soldier either had crossed the wide stream or had died in a futile attempt to stem the advance.

Heavy fighting took place east of San Miniato and about 20 miles from Florence, where the Nazis yesterday twice counter-attacked against advanced American groups. Both counter-attacks were repulsed. A third enemy thrust was disrupted by Yank artillery before it was well under way.

American forces holding the districts of Pisa on the south side of the Arno were brought under heavy fire from German guns planted on Mount Pisano. Nazi troops still held the greater part of Pisa on the Arno's northern bank. All bridges across the stream had been demolished by the withdrawing enemy.

Smash Thru Villages.

British guardsmen, closing upon Florence from the south, smashed thru the villages of Montefioralle, Sambuca, and Strada. South African armored forces pushed thru the town of Greve and continued on up a secondary highway against brisk opposition.

The Germans managed to stabilize the Adriatic front somewhat after several days of retreat before Polish troops. Dispatches said enemy long range guns were shelling Ancona harbor, but that repair of docking facilities was progressing. The Poles were reported bringing up armor for an attack on Ostra, 18 miles west of Ancona. One German division was officially reported to have lost between 3,000 and 4,000 men killed, captured, or wounded in opposing the Poles' drive on Ancona.

A front dispatch disclosed that German troops had withdrawn from a monastery behind the town of Gubbio east of the Tiber valley, where for nearly a week they had held out under the protection of several hundred hostages. The British did not shell the monastery. It was not immediately learned what happened to the 231 civilians, whom the Nazis had threatened to take to death with them.

FATE OF 500,000 JEWS NOW UP TO HUNGARY'S CHIEF

Act to Keep Them Out of Germans' Hands.

LONDON, July 25 (AP)—The fate of some 500,000 Jews left in Hungary rested today on action by the regent, Adm. Nicholas Horthy. The Vatican and the International Red Cross are understood to have interceded in an effort to keep them from being handed over to the Germans, and Horthy was reported last week in Bern to have promised to stop forcible evacuation of the Jews.

London sources described as a "blackmail offer" a report from Hungary which quoted a Hungarian editor as declaring: "So far the only Jews who have been killed in Hungary have been killed by Anglo-Saxon bombs. Only a cessation of air raids can prevent an outbreak of passionate anti-Semitism."

Another Hungarian editor, commenting on the Archbishop of Canterbury's plea for saving Jews, was quoted as saying: "The Jews can only be saved by a cessation of the World war."

100,000 Reported Killed.

It was estimated by some in London that 400,000 Jews in Hungary have been turned over to the Germans and that one-fourth have been killed. The victims were said to have been those who had fled into Hungary ahead of the Nazis from neighboring countries. Others rounded up were from the former Czech and Subcarpathian areas and residents of North Hungary.

There was evidence that Budapest Christian churches have been sheltering many Jews by mass baptisms. Jews herded into ghettos were said to lack food and medicines.

On July 14 Secretary of State Cordell Hull said the entire Jewish community in Hungary was threatened with extermination. He promised that punishment would be meted out to persons responsible for the "mass killings of Jews by the Nazis and their Hungarian Quislings."

Some May Go to Palestine.

Horthy's reported promise to halt the surrender of Jews to the Germans and to evacuate children and visa-holding Jews to Palestine or neutral countries was considered the first step in efforts to save the Jews.

The Hungarian press a fortnight ago said the country had no objection to Jews taking citizenship in a neutral country. Spain has offered to care for Jews holding Spanish visas.

KING OF BRITAIN BEGINS TOUR OF ITALIAN FRONTS

HDQ. OF ALLIED ARMIES IN ITALY, July 24 [Delayed]—(AP).—Changing from the dress uniform of the admiral of the fleet to the field marshal's field dress after inspecting war time shipping in Naples harbor, King George VI. of Great Britain flew to this behind-the-lines camp for further inspection ceremonies.

The first American touch to the elaborate ceremonies, aside from the flying Stars and Stripes and the white clad sailors lining the rails of American warships, came when the king boarded the flagship of American Vice Adm. H. K. Hewitt.

Also crowded into his schedule was a visit to the British flagship, an inspection of the Capuana power plant which supposedly was irreparably smashed but now furnishes light for Naples, a colorful review of allied sailors and merchantmen and a luncheon with allied commanders.

The king flew aboard British Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson's personal plane "Freedom"—a comfortably converted American C-47—over the Anzio beachhead and landed at an airport near Rome.

CHICAGO MARINE WOUNDED THIRD TIME AT SAIPAN

Pvt. Roy Sreboth, 24, a marine, was wounded in action June 17 on Saipan, his mother, Mrs. Jeanette Tietgen of 7316 South Shore dr., has been informed. This is the third time Sreboth has been wounded. Mrs. Tietgen received her first such notice on Christmas eve, 1942, after her son had been wounded on Guadalcanal. The second announcement came last New Year's day after he had been wounded at Tarawa. Pvt. Sreboth enlisted in the marines in 1938.

AIR LINES VIE FOR CONTROL OF FOREIGN ROUTES

BY FRANK STURDY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 25.—Whether American domestic air lines are to be permitted to enter international air transport, the issue latent in American Airlines' application for purchase of control of American Export Airlines, was defined today in a civil aeronautics board hearing.

Witnesses for American Airlines and for Pan American Airways gave directly opposite testimony. Pan American, at present operating trans-Atlantic routes with American Export as its only competitor, is an intervenor in the case in opposing the purchase plan. Export Airlines is owned by American Export Lines, a steamship company, and has been ordered by the board to find new ownership.

The proposal is that American Airlines take control by buying 51.4 per cent of Export's stock. Control of Export would give American an immediate start in the trans-Atlantic field, the most profitable for exploitation when the war ends, and apparently would commit the CAB to a policy of transoceanic competition. Pan American favors a "chosen instrument," or single company operation in international air transport.

Thru Travel Desirable.

Charles A. Rheinstrom, vice president in charge of traffic for American Airlines, testified that superior service for international passengers can be provided by the domestic facilities of his line in offering passport and other assistance to air travelers crossing international boundaries.

Thru travel by the facilities of one transport agency is particularly desirable in international flight, he said, contending that the airplane has banished coast lines as natural transportation barriers.

No Inland Cities.

"Flight over land is no different from flight over water," he said. "Aviation has progressed so there is no such thing as an inland city, properly speaking. Any city where the traffic justifies can be made a point of origin for travel across the Atlantic. The only additional equipment we will need to install in our post-war transcontinental planes at gateway points to fly them over the ocean is 250 pounds of radio and one additional crew member."

American's system of sales and traffic handling thruout the country would furnish American Export with vitally necessary sources of passengers and make it possible for the line to compete with Pan American, he said. The company anticipates that if the proposal is approved, the other transcontinental lines—United, and TWA—will agree to serve Pan American if they are not themselves in the trans-Atlantic field.

Studies by Pan American indicate the company would not have a fair competitive opportunity with Export in the Atlantic if it is operated in conjunction with American Airlines, said Victor Chenea, vice president and traffic manager of Pan American. No single domestic company, he said, should be associated exclusively with any Atlantic carrier, unless Pan American is permitted to extend its routes inland, fly what would amount to domestic lines, and operate competitive offices.

Fears Foreign Competition.

By granting American's petition, Chenea said, the CAB would be committed to a policy of allowing domestic lines to operate internationally, and would be forced to give routes in other parts of the world to United and TWA. This would increase Pan American's difficulties in competition everywhere, Chenea said.

Chenea's summation was that "an American trans-Atlantic air line ought to have the same support from the entire domestic air feeder system as each European trans-Atlantic air line will have from its national system on the other side of the Atlantic. In my opinion an American trans-Atlantic carrier is going to have enough to worry about in combating foreign competition without having to worry about the 100 per cent backing of our own domestic air lines."

Pan American's proposal for a single international operating company involves participation in its ownership by all of the domestic air lines, with an as yet undefined relationship to the government. The domestic lines would thus not take part in actual flight operations. Sixteen of the 17 air lines in the United States have joined in active opposition to Pan American. United Air Lines has not joined the others, and is entered as an intervenor in the current hearing for an appearance later in the week.

INLAND WATERWAYS CARRY RECORD LOAD TO HELP WIN WAR

The great lakes and the nation's other inland waterways are carrying the greatest tonnage in their history, with every available barge, towboat, cargo ship, and other craft pressed into war service, the office of defense transportation said yesterday.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, ODT director, quoted army engineers as saying that 589 million tons of freight were carried on fresh water in 1942, the last year for which complete figures were available.

He estimated the great lakes alone will transport far more than 100 million tons of iron ore, grain, coal, and petroleum this season to set a new record.

STAGGERINGLY generous menus were quite the order of the day at Mount Vernon. And one of Martha and George Washington's typical meals, as described by a guest, sounds truly fabulous in these rationed days: "The dinner was very good—a small roasted pigg, boiled leg of lamb, roasted fowls, beef, peas, lettice, cucumbers, artichokes, etc., puddings, tarts, etc., etc."

IT'S Quality—NOT QUANTITY THAT COUNTS

We're sorry that we can't make nearly as much candy during these war years as we used to—and that some of your favorite varieties are scarce or not even sold at all for the duration. But our not being able to make them—and your missing them—are certainly of no importance whatever compared to the real sacrifices of this war. Isn't it pretty nice to know, though, that those Martha Washington candies which we can still offer you are just exactly the same as ever? There has never been . . . and we promise you that there never will be . . . even the slightest deviation from our famous Martha Washington quality.

HITLER DECREES TOTAL WAR RULE BY 4 TOP CHIEFS

Goering and Goebbels Given Vast Powers.

LONDON, July 25 (AP).—Adolf Hitler tonight invested Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and Propaganda Chief Paul Joseph Goebbels with sweeping powers over German public and private life and in effect placed Germany and the occupied territories under an arch-Nazi quadrumvirate.

In a move apparently exterminating any conservative influence which had remained in authority, Hitler produced a blueprint for the direction of Germany's death battle by the "big four" of Nazism—Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and Heinrich Himmler, the Gestapo chief appointed last week to be an all-powerful commander-in-chief of the army at home.

Hitler issued a decree naming Goering and Goebbels to extract from "the greater German reich and the occupied countries the last ounce of strength for the German army and the arms industry," and he empowered them to "issue instructions" even to the highest reich authorities, whoever they may be.

Goebbels will address the German nation by radio at 8:15 p. m. [1:15 Chicago time] tomorrow, a Berlin broadcast announced today.

Clinch Home Front Control.

Having apparently insured Nazi control of the army by last week's ruthless Himmler directed purge of rebellious Junkers, tonight's move was directed at clinching control of the home front.

Goering was appointed chairman of the ministerial council for defense of the reich and Goebbels was named reich commissar for total mobilization for war. The decree made Goering a dictator over all private and public life in Germany and occupied Europe, with Goebbels his executor to scrape the bottom of the barrel for man power and materials.

Goering was charged with a total overhaul of state administration and public services "with the purpose of freeing the maximum man power for the German army and the arms industry and of adapting the entire public life in every possible respect to the demands of total war."

"To do this," said the decree as broadcast by the Berlin radio, "the tasks of lesser war importance will be stopped or reduced and the procedure simplified." To this end Goering and Goebbels "may demand explanations from the highest authorities and give them instructions."

Predicts Swift Action.

The chief editor of the German news agency, Transocean, Georg Schroeder, predicted tonight that Goebbels would "act very swiftly and radically in execution of the extraordinary amount of power placed in his hands, and affect all spheres of life in Germany and the occupied territories."

Schroeder forecast that a Goebbels overhauling of industry would produce "a stream of reinforcements for the German army and the munitions industries."

The German military commentator, Gen. Kurt Dittmar, said the conspirators against Hitler were "wiped out in the same place where the conspiracy was planned," without giving a hint as to the locale, and he added that there were less than a dozen of them.

Marshal Hails Hitler's Escape.

The Hitler decree came at the close of a day which brought him his first message of congratulation from the eastern front over his escape from death in last week's bomb attack. The message, considerably short of a loyalty pledge, came from Field Marshal Ge. Walther von Model, described as the commander of two army groups.

Marshal Model, of middle class stock, never has been identified actively with the Nazi party, nor is he a representative of the aristocratic Junkers class which is the seat of the army revolt against Hitler. His message said simply:

"All of us thank the Almighty for having preserved you and therefore Germany from an unthinkable doom. In this we recognize once more the justice of our cause. By expressing as veterans of the east front our complete readiness for action, we send our greetings to you with complete faith in our ultimate success."

Gen. Dittmar said tonight the revolt against Hitler has "inflicted important harm on the striking power of our field army," and added that the eastern front especially was feeling the blow.

Call for Break with Hitler.

MOSCOW, July 25 (AP).—A statement printed over the signatures of 16 captured Nazi generals appealed today to German officers and soldiers to break with Hitler and end "this senseless bloodshed" immediately.

Germany and German-held territory were bombarded by leaflet and short wave radio with the text of the statement, and officers said that by tonight a large portion of the German army should be aware of it.

The statement, which was attributed to Lt. Gen. Baumler, commander of the 12th infantry and former chief of Norway occupation forces, said a conclusion that the struggle now was hopeless had been reached because of these factors:

1. Adverse conditions for Germany on the eastern front.
2. Hitler's war leadership, his continued underestimation of soviet power, and the absence of a quick victory which gave the allies time to gather forces for fronts in Italy and France.
3. German failure to capture the initiative in the east since autumn of 1942.

Claim Best Forces Spent.

The document said that Germany's best forces had been spent and "it is impossible to restore them."

It continued:

"The Russians' summer offensive this year brought about the loss of 30 divisions, almost the whole of the 4th army, and the main forces of the 9th army and the 3d tank army. In these battles alone the Russians captured 21 German generals, including ourselves, and 10 others were killed.

"Adolf Hitler and his adherents want to continue the war under the slogan 'victory or ruin.' This slogan proves they do not believe in victory any longer."

Claim Mackensen Son Held.

New York, July 25 (AP).—The London radio broadcast unconfirmed reports today that Col. Gen. Eberhard Von Mackensen, son of Field Marshal August Von Mackensen of World war fame, is "held by the Gestapo," and that Dr. Hans Thomsen, German ambassador to Sweden, was under Gestapo observation.

Smash Hitler, Leaflets Urge.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 25 (AP).—Ten days before the attempt was made to kill Adolf Hitler, Berlin was flooded with small leaflets bearing the single line, "Let's make peace now; smash Hitler and his gang," a source with close connections inside Germany said today.

Twelve days before the bombing attempt on Hitler's life Maj. Martin Summerfeldt, high command spokesman at the propaganda ministry, told members of the Foreign Press association: "Germany is faced by a catastrophe—we are in the middle."

Even before this there was talk among high ranking air force and panzer officers of a critical shortage of gasoline. One officer reportedly said, "If we don't get gasoline the war will be over in three months."

It is generally believed in Berlin that the imperative need for gasoline underlay the whole movement by the generals to oust Hitler and make peace.

Arrests Kept Secret.

On Monday, July 17, more than a thousand persons were arrested in Berlin for no apparent reason, but no word of the action was permitted to be sent from Germany and for two days all was quiet.

Then on Thursday the foreign office put out the story of the explosion at Hitler's headquarters, asserting that the bomb plot was the work of "Jewish plutocracy."

The source declared that his information was that the explosion at the fuehrer's headquarters occurred at 3 p. m., Wednesday—not Thursday—and that Hitler was not present when the bomb went off.

"I was told that the plot to overthrow Hitler was discovered by the Gestapo more than two weeks ago and that Hitler and Himmler cooked up the bomb attack as a cover for smashing it," the source asserted.

EDEN SAYS ALLIES CAN BE ENCOURAGED BY NAZI SITUATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 25.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons today that the allies might justly draw encouragement from the recent dramatic developments in Germany, but admitted that altho he had consulted the soviet government on the subject he did not have sufficient information to make a considered statement.

The attempt on Hitler's life, he said, should "spur us to further activity to ensure Germany's final defeat in the field at the earliest possible date." The German government, he said, has been at great pains to prevent any information leaving the country. "We are, therefore, for the present mainly dependent for our assessment upon various and often contradictory public statements made in the last few days by German leaders."

The British government's information, Eden declared, is not sufficient to enable it to estimate the full extent of the trouble in Germany or to draw any inferences as to its likely development.

HAWAII MARTIAL LAW TO REMAIN, ADM. KING SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 25.—No change in Hawaii's disputed martial law status is expected to follow Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson's recent action in relinquishing his title as military governor of Hawaii, Adm. King, chief of naval operations, said at a press conference today.

Richardson, who is commanding general of the central Pacific area, last week announced that henceforth his office would be known as the office of internal security instead of the office of the military governor. The Circuit Court of appeals in San Francisco, Cal., heard charges July 1 that the military in Hawaii had unnecessarily usurped civil law and destroyed the rights of citizens.

16,463 Casualties on Saipan.

Adm. King, who recently returned from a tour of Pacific war zones, said Richardson's change was "one of title, not of substance." He refused to comment on reports. Hawaii is destined to be reduced to a state of military dependency.

The press conference also was attended by Adm. William F. Halsey, Jr., commander of the 3rd fleet in the Pacific, and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, who disclosed that Saipan in the Marianas was captured at a cost of 3,049 American dead, 13,049 wounded, and 365 missing, a total of 16,463.

Forrestal said American troops buried 20,720 enemy dead and Japanese prisoners of war numbered 1,707.

Japs "Fight Like Rats."

Asked about the Japanese fighting men, Adm. Halsey said they still "fight like rats—to extermination."

"And we're willing to exterminate them," he said grimly. "If they want to die for the dear old emperor, we'll coöperate."

Adm. King told reporters "no aid or comfort" can be gained from the composition of the new Japanese cabinet. The fall of the Tojo cabinet portended a change in Japan's method of fighting the war, but it cannot be determined whether it will be more offensive or defensive in character, he said.

"The Japs will continue to wage war with all the power they possess," King said. "Obviously, the cabinet would not have fallen unless there was dissatisfaction on the part of the military forces with the conduct of the war."

JAPS TIGHTEN HENGYANG RING; CLIMAX IS NEAR

CHUNGKING, July 25 (AP).—The battle for besieged Hengyang appeared near a climax tonight as the Japanese compressed their ring about the city and were reported to have repelled attempts of Chinese relief columns to pierce the encirclement.

Fall of Hengyang probably would presage a full scale offensive southward to close the 170 mile gap in the Canton-Hankow railway, permitting an unbroken Japanese band of 1,000 miles from the north to the south of China. The high command said Chinese troops had developed a successful attack against the Japanese east of Liling, 75 miles northeast of Hengyang, and had occupied several strong points.

Take Seven Hills in India.

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, July 25 (AP).—Allied troops driving southeastward from Imphal thru the Manipur hills of India have opened an assault on strong Japanese defenses astride the Palel-Tamu road and have captured seven important hills in the area, Adm. Mountbatten's headquarters announced today. In north Burma the allies scored further gains on the Myitkyina front.

JAPS RE-FORM TO ESCAPE FROM TRAP AT WEWAK

ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, July 26 [Wednesday] — (AP). — Japanese forces attempting to break out of the Wewak trap in New Guinea have recoiled from the American front near Aitape and apparently are trying to re-form. Headquarters announced today that the Japanese were trying to reorganize south of Afua, five miles inland on the Driniumor river.

Bombers blasted the Japanese near Aitape with 54 tons of explosives. Destroyers and patrol torpedo boats also shelled enemy positions.

Headquarters also announced that a Liberator bomber destroyed a Japanese coastal vessel 200 miles off Mindanao, while a navy Liberator beached a 3,000 ton merchantman southwest of Halmahera. Mention of Mindanao was the second time this week, and the second since the fall of Corregidor.

The night attacks came unprecedentedly early, and apparently reflected sharpened Japanese desire for celestial reunion. Observers attributed this Japanese suicidal yen to the fact that they are isolated from the balance of the garrison of southern Tinian.

Attack Both Flanks.

American losses were remarkably light, and a brief Japanese midmorning mortar barrage from shifting hidden mountain positions proved ineffective.

United States marines from the 2d and 4th divisions, who had had only a fortnight's rest after their costly conquest of Saipan, and whose ranks were full of replacements, moved rapidly thruout the day and showed no evidence of lowered combat efficiency.

The marines, not cured of souvenir hunting by the wealth of mementoes they obtained on Saipan, reaped a new harvest of Nippon swords and rising sun battle flags.

Marines Resume Attack.

The American forces quickly organized to resume their own attack this morning after turning back the Japanese. Behind a curtain of white phosphorus and anti-personnel shells the marines smashed forward in two directions. One force drove across gently rising ground and fought its way thru barracks, houses, and hangars of Ushi airport. Other marines pushed south down the coastal strip and wheeled inland to flank cliffs which jut from fields and woods like weathered forts.

Nimitz announced a strike by navy planes into the Kurile islands for the second successive day. They attacked Paramushiro Sunday, bombing the airfield, starting fires and strafing fishing craft. One enemy fighter probably was shot down and another damaged. One navy plane was damaged.

Truk in the Carolines also took another heavy pounding from the 7th army air force, which dropped 67 tons of bombs on anti-aircraft batteries and airfields Sunday.

TIME NOT RIPE FOR SEA BATTLE, SAYS JAP RADIO

Admits U.S. Fleet Is Superior in Air.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Several United States task forces "with powerful groups of aircraft carriers as the mainstay" are maneuvering in the waters of the Marianas, but the "time is not yet ripe for our fleet to come out and attack the enemy," the Tokyo radio asserted yesterday.

The broadcast quoted the naval commentator Masanori Ito as saying:

"Strategically speaking, the time to deliver the coup de grace to the enemy has not yet arrived. Our combined fleet is far inferior to the enemy's as far as aircraft strength is concerned. The fleet which loses command of the air is destined for defeat and immediate rout from the scene of battle."

Tells What's Needed.

Ito said the factors for "complete victory in a naval battle" were superior fleet strength, supplemental power needed to follow up the battle, and geographic considerations, as well as fighting technique and morale.

"Our combined fleet," Ito asserted, "acting on the basis of cool reasoning and certainty, will not come out until an exhaustive study of the above factors has been completed.

"Our fleet will not act on the spur of an impulse. A commander in chief who orders his fleet to plunge into the enemy without a second thought might be a brave and gallant commander, but not a great commander.

"We know that our combined fleet is not venturing to intercept enemy task forces because our fleet aims at carrying on the battle on a rational basis.

Need Aid from Land.

"Why then, will our combined fleet refuse to take the offensive until the last moment, unless conditions become favorable?

"The answer is that our combined fleet is leading circumstances to a point where the final blow can be delivered to the enemy fleet.

"The main theater of a naval battle should be selected in waters where collaboration with land-based forces is available. Our side is repeatedly making fierce sectional attacks on groups of enemy aircraft carriers, thus steadily diminishing the enemy's strength until the golden opportunity arrives for our combined fleet.

"In a sense, this strategy can be called one of maintaining fleet strength, by avoiding battle under clearly adverse circumstances.

"The Japanese navy, adhering to this strategy, is certain to bring about final victory over the United States task forces, thereby changing the entire situation in our favor."

26 GOVERNORS TO SUPPLEMENT G. O. P. PLATFORM

Dewey Tells Plans for St. Louis Meeting.

Dewey's Itinerary

10:48 a. m. Gov. and Mrs. Dewey arrive on Alton railroad and are met by reception party. Parade to executive mansion thru business district.

12 noon. Governors Dewey and Green visit Lincoln's tomb, where Dewey will place a wreath, then visit Lincoln home.

1 p. m. Luncheon at executive mansion; guests include Sen. Brooks, elected state officers, Republican candidates for office, and wives. Then conferences at mansion with representatives of several organizations. Private dinner at the mansion.

7:59 p. m. Governors Dewey and Green and their wives depart for St. Louis for governors' conference.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., July 25.—Gov. Dewey today told a press conference that new Republican declarations of principles supplementing the party's platform are to be issued from the meeting of 26 Republican governors next week in St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 2 and 3. Gov. Bricker of Ohio will arrive here tomorrow morning to go over a tentative agenda to be submitted to the governors.

"Neither party," said Dewey, "has as yet taken any stand on the controversial subject of the division of responsibility and authority as between the federal government and the states. In round table discussions for two days, the 26 Republican governors will hammer out the position to be taken by our party in light of experience in 26 states.

Planning New Issues.

"Our decisions will become new campaign issues. That's the purpose of a campaign under our form of government—to let the public decide issues."

This division of authority, often debated as an encroachment by burocracy on states' rights, has become a point in arguments on many bills coming before congress. It is involved in legislation on flood control, social security, employment services, taxation, regulatory measures, and other diverse subjects.

Dewey said there were differences of opinion among the Republican governors on aspects of the broad problem, but that agreements could be reached on several aspects.

First Meeting with Bricker.

Tomorrow's meeting of Dewey and Bricker will be their first since their nomination. The Presidential candidate said that in addition to the governors' conference, he and the Ohioan will discuss campaign issues, organization, and plans for coöperative effort.

Bricker and Mrs. Bricker will be overnight guests at the governor's mansion. They will leave Thursday for New York City for a meeting with Herbert Brownell, chairman of the national Republican committee.

Dewey and Bricker both will participate in the St. Louis meeting but Dewey was emphatic that decisions will be up to all 26 governors.

WINS TRIBUNE PIN FOR BETTER ELECTRONIC PART

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

A former Polish immigrant boy who 36 years ago came to America to seek his fortune is the winner of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE War Workers award for June for noteworthy war service to his adopted country. He is Walter J. Turkowski, 46, a machinist employed at the Hawthorne Western Electric company plant.

W. J. Turkowski.

Presentation of the award tonight also will be the occasion for a dinner celebration of the second anniversary of the Tribune award—established to give recognition to men and women in war plants for noteworthy war services backing up the men on the fighting fronts. The dinner will be held in the Medinah club at 6 p. m. The 24 award winners and representatives of the companies employing them have been invited.

Improves Electronic Device.

Turkowski's achievement was an improvement of a part used in an electronic device. Details of the device may not be given because of war secrecy, but it is one of many gadgets used with much effectiveness against our enemies.

The particular part—made of aluminum—formerly was produced in two sections. Because of the extremely technical nature of its use the fitting together of the two parts—one of which is somewhat thinner than the other—had to be highly accurate. This required a considerable amount of precision milling work and accurate hand fitting. Turkowski thought up a way to make the part in one piece—he was doing something outside of his job—and presented his idea to the engineers.

The engineers, as they frequently do, said the idea wouldn't work, but they agreed to try it. The idea worked. The result was a better part than the old one, reduced costs and a substantial saving of material. There was a reduction of approximately 17,500 man hours in the period of one navy contract.

The award winner was born in Poland, July 1, 1898. He arrived in Chicago when 10 and went to the Chicago public schools. He obtained his technical knowledge by keeping his eyes open at the plant. He has been with Western Electric for 23 years. Turkowski resides with his wife and daughter, now serving as a U. S. O. entertainer at army posts, at 3507 Arden av., Brookfield.

Presentation of the award will be made by Lt. I. F. Jacobsen, executive officer, United States naval training school [radio-Chicago], in a broadcast over W-G-N from 9:15 to 9:30 p. m.

U.S. JUDGE KILLS SUIT DEMANDING BOBTAIL BALLOT

Federal Judge William J. Campbell yesterday dismissed a suit seeking to compel Gov. Green to certify the so-called bobtailed federal ballot for overseas service men and women as valid in Illinois.

Judge W. J. Campbell.

In dismissing the suit, Judge Campbell sustained a motion by William C. Wines, assistant attorney general, who contended the federal courts were without jurisdiction.

Judge Campbell cited article 2 of the Constitution which confers upon the state the right to select Presidential electors.

The action against the governor, filed by Atty. Urban A. Lavery in behalf of three service men and later amended to include two service men represented by Atty Francis Heisler, had contended the governor was an ex-officio agent of the federal government.

SHE is a small Filipino cargo ship—the Doña Nati—one of the two last ships flying the American ensign to leave Manila Bay. A Post correspondent sailed battle waters with her crew—and discovered what men think, and live for, and die for when they are exiles waiting for the day of reckoning. This is a picture of war's grim tragedy you haven't seen—a message written in undying courage by the cool little men who live and hope with MacArthur, only for the day of return to Manila Bay. This is powerful, heart-lifting reading.

COTTON ED RUNS 2D TO JOHNSTON IN SO. CAROLINA

Fulbright Takes Lead in Arkansas Primary.

Columbia, S. C., July 26 (AP).—Gov. Olin D. Johnston piled up a thumping lead over Sen. E. D. [Cotton Ed] Smith, anti-administration dean of the senate, and apparently won the senate nomination over his four opponents in today's Democratic primary.

Gov. Johnston.

Johnston, 48, former textile worker and a Roosevelt supporter, had almost a 40,000 vote lead over the 79 year old Smith, who was seeking a seventh term, when returns were reported from 1,354 of the 1,540 precincts.

The vote was: Johnston, 109,332; Smith, 69,569; John M. Daniel, 11,021; Carl B. Epps, 5,274, and A. S. Merrimon, 2,240.

Trailed from Start.

Smith, who asked renomination as an indorsement of his fight against what he called New Dealism and his ardent championship of "white supremacy," trailed Johnston in almost the first returns and as more precincts were reported the margin for the governor grew steadily.

Daniel, attorney general, is a middle-of-the-roader in his administration views, while Epps is a 100 per cent New Deal supporter. Merrimon is a critic of the Roosevelt administration.

Altho South Carolina Negroes had organized a Democratic party and had sent a delegation to seek the state's seats in the Chicago convention without avail, they made no concerted effort to vote in today's primary, limited to white voters by party rules.

Negroes Seek Court Test.

Five appeared at a Columbia precinct and said they had come to vote. They left quietly when an election official told them they could not cast their ballots.

A spokesman for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said later the effort to vote was made to lay the basis for a federal court action to compel the white Democratic party to permit Negroes to vote in its primaries as was required of the Texas party in a Supreme court decision some months ago.

MRS. CARAWAY FOURTH

Little Rock, Ark., July 25 (AP).—Rep. J. W. Fulbright swung into the lead in the Arkansas Democratic senatorial race as returns from today's preferential primary began to pour in.

The early pacemaker, T. H. Barton, El Dorado oil man, dropped into third place behind Gov. Homer M. Adkins. Hattie W. Caraway, the nation's only woman senator, ran fourth.

The vote in 1,416 of 2,087 precincts: Fulbright, 39,942; Adkins, 28,507; Barton, 27,693; Mrs. Caraway, 14,234; and J. Rosser Venable, 573.

Assail Fulbright's Status.

The campaign developed in closing days into an exchange of personalities among Adkins, Fulbright, and Barton.

Both Adkins and Barton, veterans of the World war, criticized Fulbright's draft status, and the representative replied with the assertion the charges were "a mere smoke screen."

Mrs. Caraway was the only candidate formally to indorse President Roosevelt for a fourth term. She did not claim a formal indorsement from the President, but she made public a letter she received from Roosevelt in answer to her message for support in which he referred to their "long and enduring friendship."

Laney Leads for Governor.

In the race for governor, Ben Laney, Camden business man, continued to set the pace. Returns from 138 precincts gave Laney 3,611; J. B. Sims, former state controler, 2,591, and former Rep. Dave Terry, 2,077.

Both congressmen opposed in the first primary were running ahead of their two opponents. In the 1st district Rep. E. C. Gathings had 1,242 votes to 242 for State Sen. W. O. Irby and 205 for State Sen. Julian James in 15 of 304 precincts. Rep. Wilbur Mills in the 2d district had 84 votes as against 284 for Circuit Judge Marcus Bone and 30 for T. T. Malone.

PLAN NEW PARTY

Birmingham, Ala., July 25 (AP).—A group of Alabama anti-Roosevelt Democrats decided here tonight to form a new political party and voted to call a state convention on Aug. 4 for the purpose of naming a slate of Presidential electors.

Fred Rucker, Birmingham, who said he was chairman of the meeting at which the action was taken, declared the party would be called the American Democratic party and added that the electors would be pledged to "some Democrat other than Mr. Roosevelt."

Rucker said more than 100 anti-Roosevelt Democrats in the state had a part in the formation of the party. Representatives from each of Alabama's 67 counties are expected to attend the convention, also to be held here, Rucker added.

A resolution setting out that the party had been formed asserted that candidates would be offered against Sen. Lister Hill and the Democratic congressional nominee from the 9th [Birmingham] district, Luther Patrick.

DEMOCRATS PIN UP CANDIDATES, FLOUT CITY CODE

Posters on Poles Are Violating Law.

The placing of signs and advertising matter on electric light and telephone poles is forbidden by chapter 36, section 30, of the Chicago city code, but the Democratic organization, seeking the election of State's Atty. Courtney; William J. Tuohy, his assistant, and Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry, apparently is violating the ordnance.

A tour of the city yesterday showed several signs appealing for the election of these three Democrats affixed to telephone poles in direct violation of the law. Courtney is the nominee for governor in the November election; Tuohy is the Democratic nominee for state's attorney, and Judge McGarry is seeking reëlection.

Signs Thick Near Stadium.

Tuohy signs were particularly thick in the immediate vicinity of the Chicago Stadium. At least eight telephone poles carried his message to the voters. On one pole in Wolcott av., a half block north of Madison st. at what was the official automobile entrance for the Stadium during the Democratic convention, there were four Tuohy placards.

Another pole in Wood st. bore two Tuohy banners, topped by a sign urging Judge McGarry's election. The alley to the west was well filled with the state's attorney candidate's advertising, all of which took advantage of the height of telephone poles for conspicuous display.

On the west side of Ashland av., a half block north of North av., Courtney's likeness and the reminder to vote him into the governor's mansion were found on a telephone pole next to a board fence. Large letters on the fence enjoined the posting of bills. Directly across Ashland av. the ubiquitous Mr. Tuohy appeared on another pole.

Ward Offices Warned.

Early last month Tuohy signs were found fastened to electric light poles in the neighborhood of Comiskey park. Lloyd M. Johnson, commissioner of streets and electricity, promptly ordered his maintenance crews to remove all political advertising from the light poles and sent a statement, citing the ordinance forbidding such posting, to ward offices.

Edward B. Casey, campaign manager for John T. Dempsey, Republican nominee for state's attorney, said yesterday he had complained to the Shakespeare av. police that two large Dempsey signs were stolen early Sunday from the second floor of a building at 2600 Milwaukee av. He said the signs, valued at $70, were removed with extension ladders.

MIDWEST G.O.P. GEARS TO SWING FAST CAMPAIGN

Selection of the midwestern manager of the Republican national campaign probably will be announced by National Chairman Brownell when he confers with national committeemen and other party leaders from Illinois and surrounding states here on Aug. 4.

Brownell is scheduled to make a three day visit to Chicago after the Republican governors' conference in St. Louis. On the first day will be the regional conference, when the midwest manager is expected to be named. On Aug. 5, he will meet with Cook county and downstate party leaders in the Stevens hotel. The following day will be devoted to developing and completing staff work for the campaign in the middle west.

Already approximately 15,000 feet of floor space has been leased at 105 Adams st., and a skeleton staff installed there. Only the naming of the midwestern manager is needed to bring a full staff into action and start the campaign in full stride in this area.

James S. Kemper, treasurer of the national committee, will maintain his offices at the Adams st. address.

TUESDAY LAST DAY TO PROTEST ASSESSMENTS

Altho County Assessor John S. Clark set yesterday as a deadline for the filing of 1944 personal property tax schedules in the towns of Hyde Park and Jefferson [both in the City of Chicago], it was learned that he will accept returns from these areas at least until Monday. It also was hinted that taxpayers in other city and county towns past earlier deadlines still may file and avoid penalties.

Next Tuesday, Aug. 1, will be the last day for the filing of complaints against 1944 assessments with the board of tax appeals.

URGE CANADIAN PROBE INTO U.S. SURPLUS GOODS

Charge Material Is Being Destroyed.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 25 [Special].—Attention was called in parliament today to the situation which has developed in the Alaska highway district with regard to American stores and equipment which entered Canada duty free and no longer are required.

Opposition Leader Gordon Graydon and M. J. Coldwell, Canadian Commonwealth Federation leader, said the whole matter should be investigated. Coldwell charged that "some very ugly stories are being told of the destruction of material, including bulldozers."

The onus for the situation was being placed on Ottawa because it refused to allow goods on which no duty had been paid to remain in the country and the Americans found the cost of shipping them out of the country too great.

People Combing Dumps.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 25 [Canadian Press]. — The Vancouver News-Herald said today in a story from Dawson Creek that residents of the Peace River district, who have been combing United States army dumps to recover stores allegedly discarded, "face the threat of prosecution by the United States federal bureau of investigation."

"Prosecution of settlers for having American made goods in their possession was launched in two instances," the News-Herald said, "but it failed for lack of evidence that the goods were stolen. Meanwhile, a sworn statement has been obtained from one settler of destruction of a huge quantity of unused articles imported in connection with construction of the Alaskan highway."

Canada to Get Materials.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 25 [Canadian Press].—Col. F. S. Strong, commanding the northwest service command, today said Canadian and American officers would survey all facilities and materials for which the United States government no longer has use along the Alaska highway, and that these would be turned over to Canada.

He said that "we have nothing to hide" concerning reports of equipment waste on the highway.

CHARGE POLITICS RULES CANADA'S DRAFT SYSTEM

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 25. — Man power policy, involving the reënforcement of the Canadian army overseas, the home labor supply, and maintenance of the home defense army furnishes the Mackenzie King government with its most irksome problem in the middle of the provincial elections campaign.

To avoid stirring up political strife, particularly with the French speaking Canadians, the government has refrained from drafting an army for overseas service. The volunteer system, still in force, was defended in parliament this week by Defense Minister J. R. Ralston as working satisfactorily, altho army officers are said to disagree. The government has, however, drafted a home defense army of about 73,000 men who serve in Canada and Labrador. These men are referred to as Zombies.

Critics are calling on the government either to send this army overseas for replacements in Normandy or disband it and let the men go to work on farms or in factories.

Won't Disband Home Army.

Hotly attacked by the Progressive conservatives, Ralston refuses to disband the Zombies, on the ground they are serving a useful purpose, but critics say the real reason is that the Liberal government fears the effect such a step would have on the Quebec elections. Ralston has promised, however, that, if the need should arise, he would recommend that the Zombies be sent to France.

In the camps appeals are being made to the men of the home defense army to "go active," that is, volunteer for foreign service. Intense efforts are made to persuade—there are some who call it coerce—the home defense draftees to join the overseas army.

Ask "Coercion" Inquiry.

Some success has been achieved and Ralston declared himself satisfied with the volunteering. But there has been sharp repercussion in Quebec where the city council has demanded an inquiry and passed a resolution protesting against intimidation methods said to be used to make home defense draftees "go active."

The government could, by an order in council, make the home defense army personnel subject to overseas service, but it does not want to arouse the ultra-isolationist and Nationalist sentiment.

In reply to critics, Ralston said that there are now 80,000 general service troops in Canada fit for overseas service and that this would take care of all replacements needed till the end of the year.

Ralston, when asked to disband the home defense army, said he had no intention of doing so "while our main forces are engaged in the greatest conflict of all times," and the inference in political circles was that the home guard will be kept together till after the elections and then converted.

Draft Favors Charged.

There are other violent disputes and charges that draft regulations are not equitably enforced between different parts of Canada.

The regulations are relaxed in some regions for political reasons, it is charged. For instance, figures were published to show that more men were called up in military district No. 3 [Kingston] than in district 5 [Quebec]. Critics say the government, in this manner, is causing national disunity.

Ralston insists that his faith in the voluntary system has been justified and that since February, 1942, 6,000 men per month have enlisted in the Canadian army for general service. Parliamentary critics, however, denied this and charged that army officers say the reënforcement situation is grave, indicating that the volunteer system is not providing needed replacements.

Demands also are being made that Canadians resident in the United States be mobilized. It was stated this week that there are about 90,000 Canadian males between the ages of 18 and 38 living there.

WHAT THE MAP TELLS.

The map on the back page this morning tells a heartening story to Americans. It shows why fear is mounting in Japan and it demonstrates the firm basis for American confidence in complete victory across the Pacific.

The emphasis in the map is upon bombing. From the positions we now hold in China we have bombed the Japanese homeland. From the Marianas all of industrial Japan, with the principal ports and cities included, is likewise directly menaced. We can reach the northern islands from the Aleutians. We can attack shipping entering every port.

Saipan is a thousand miles nearer Tokyo than San Francisco is to Pearl Harbor. Japan's position is therefore far more desperate than ours would have been if the Japanese had conquered Hawaii, not only because the distance is less, but also because Japan had no planes which could fly the round trip from Honolulu to the mainland, whereas we have a growing fleet that can cover the distances facing us. The conquest of Tinian and Guam will give us additional ground on which to build air fields.

More than that, Adm. Nimitz and Gen. MacArthur have shown again and again that the Japanese cannot hold an island position against us. We can therefore look forward with confidence to the capture of positions even closer to Japan than those we now occupy. By this time it is obvious that the Japanese fleet does not dare come out to meet ours and will do so only in a last moment of desperation. If our strategy requires it we can take islands in the Kuriles and we can move into the Philippines. The time is coming when a complete blockade of Japan can be effected from the air.

And that isn't the whole story. When we had no bases in the western Pacific our submarines still were able to play havoc with the Japanese merchant marine. It seems fair to assume that we shall shortly have submarine bases in the Marianas with the result that our raiders will use relatively little fuel in reaching their stations and returning. The efficiency of the submarine blockade should be correspondingly increased.

Possibly we shall lose some of our better situated air bases in China as a result of the present Japanese land offensive, but even without them we can bring the heaviest pressure upon the enemy. We can look forward to the destruction of his principal arsenals and dock yards, his air fields and airplane building plants. We have the immense advantage of the initiative; he doesn't know where we shall strike next. We can hit him anywhere, but his arm is not long enough to reach us at any vital spot. More particularly, our industrial capacity is so vastly greater than Japan's that the enemy cannot accept a war of attrition.

The situation confronting Japan is desperate today and, if Germany surrenders and we can concentrate all our air power, all our guns and ships and landing craft in the Pacific, together with the strength that Britain has promised to make available, the Japanese won't have long to wait for the ultimate crushing.

We can do it alone if we have to, but if that's the way it's going to go there will be little disposition in this country to restore to Britain and Holland the colonies they lost and were unable to recover for themselves.

LAZY MEN'S STRIKE.

Production of steel freight cars for railroads has been halted for several days at the Michigan City, Ind., plant of the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company by a strike of 125 riveters. The riveters walked out because they were required to build cars at a production rate established in 1942. They said it was "too much work." The strikers, who are members of the AFL Brotherhood of Railway Carmen and who build freight cars vitally needed in the transportation of war materials, have received a wage increase since 1942, so that their pay is higher for the amount of work required then. The strike caused the company to shut down, throwing several hundred nonstriking employes out of work.

When the riveters' production rate was put into effect in 1942 the company was building all-steel cars. Later the company began to fabricate cars, using both wood and steel as a conservation measure during the steel shortage. This had the effect of reducing the riveters' production rate. With the release of more steel the company has gone back to the production of all-steel cars. The riveters have to drive the same number of rivets now that they did in 1942 and, altho their wages are higher, they are protesting to the extent of walking off the job and closing down a war plant.

Soldiers, sailors, and other patriotic citizens far outnumber war plant strikers, agitators, and Communists in this nation. The minority continues to goad the majority. If legislation punishing strikers is enacted union men will have only themselves to blame for their failure to purge their ranks of the irresponsibles.

TECHNIC OF PURGES.

Hitler's purge in Germany apparently has gone far beyond the immediate participants in the plot against his life. According to some rumors the whole Junker class, the East Prussian landholders who have furnished many of the German army commanders since Frederick the Great, is marked for extinction.

There are many students of the German malignancy who hold the destruction of Hitler and his top Nazis to be less essential to the future peace of the world than the destruction of the Junkers, whom these students blame for the perennial German urge for world conquest. If this theory is accepted, Hitler is doing a job on behalf of the future peace of the world.

It would be beyond possibility to execute in a legal manner any large numbers of the leaders of the German army and general staff. Not only would humane instincts revolt against it but it is unlikely that capital charges could be pressed and convictions secured against many of the generals in any proceeding partaking of American legality and justice. The grossest crime committed against the world was, of course, the German attack, in which the Junkers shared a major part of the guilt, but the indictable crimes—the dirty work—seem to have been committed in most instances by Hitler's Nazi authorities rather than by the army. Hitler's complete lack of legal and moral inhibitions thus permits him to do what his enemies would find difficult, if not impossible, in the hour of victory.

It is doubtful, of course, whether he is really doing the job, inasmuch as a thorogoing purge of the Junkers would leave his army virtually without first class professional leadership. Even the Bolsheviks were not so foolish as to undertake that. They kept many of the czarists in command during their civil war.

Hitler's purge suggests that when the time comes to wipe out his own murderous gang we and our allies will be well advised to leave that job to the German people if they show any willingness to undertake it. There is no doubt that the whole gang of them, from Hitler, Goering, Goebbels, and Himmler down thru thousands of gauleiters and party leaders and Gestapo thugs, could be brought before courts of justice and convicted of capital crimes after fair trials. The one objection to that procedure is that in future generations the propagandist historians of Germany might be able to put over the story that here was a group of brave and patriotic leaders who were murdered by the foreign enemies of the nation.

It would be much more satisfactory if, when the final collapse of the Nazi regime comes, efforts were confined to keeping the criminals from taking refuge in neutral countries and to refusing them sanctuary amidst the armies of their conquerors. That nice passage of the American immigration law, barring persons of moral turpitude from these shores, could well be adopted by Sweden, Switzerland, and other neutral nations.

A world criminal torn to pieces in the streets by the bitter and disillusioned people whom he has betrayed is not likely to furnish the material for a second Napoleonic legend.

THE SOLDIERS WILL VOTE.

County Clerk Flynn's request for an emergency appropriation to handle absentee ballots disclosed that in the country towns under his jurisdiction and in the Chicago election board area together 25,300 service men have already applied for absentee ballots. These applications are technically in advance of the date on which they may be filed, July 31. The state law gives service voters 100 days in which to make application.

This early volume of applications is a sufficient answer to the New Deal canard that the Illinois service men's ballot act was designed to impede a free participation in the election by the men and women who are fighting to defend the American form of government. All of these men are going to cast their ballots. So are hundreds of thousands of other Illinois soldiers and sailors.

They will cast a ballot on which the names of all candidates for federal, state, and local office will appear, not the bobtailed atrocity requiring the writing in of candidates' names which Mr. Roosevelt's election-stealing department devised as the most efficient means of bewildering the soldiers and perpetrating an election fraud on a national scale. That bobtailed ballot is illegal in Illinois, thanks to the courage of Gov. Green, who insisted, as the facts now prove, that Illinois' own absentee ballot was not only adequate but preferable.

There is only one thing that stands in the way of complete participation by Illinois soldiers and sailors in the November election. That is sabotage of transmission of the ballots by the war and navy departments. For more than two years those departments have demonstrated by their acts that they don't want soldiers and sailors to vote unless the voting process can be made a means of stuffing the ballot boxes for Roosevelt. The Illinois law prevents such frauds. It also provides adequate time for every legal resident of this state, absent in the defense of his country, to participate in the election. If any who want to vote are denied the opportunity, the responsibility will lie in Washington.

The large number of applications filed before the Presidential campaign has really started indicates that, contrary to the opinion of many, soldiers and sailors have an active interest in this campaign. They should have. And they should be given the fullest information on the candidates and issues to permit them to cast an intelligent vote. The Republican party has a most serious problem here. The administration has complete control of all sources of information for the troops overseas. It has already indicated its intention to use that control as a means of feeding biased propaganda to those troops.

American newspapers have had one barrier after another placed in their way in their attempts to provide overseas editions for the army. The obvious purpose is to confine the European army's reading to British newspapers, which are violent partisans of Roosevelt. A director of army publications who sought to get the unbiased reports of American press associations in place of propaganda cooked up by government press agents was removed from his job. Mr. Roosevelt still hopes that if he can't fool the voters at home he can still fool the voters overseas by manipulating the news.

The Republican party must spare no effort to defeat this propaganda drive and see that the soldiers are told the truth about the campaign. The newspapers of the country must be particularly vigilant to prevent the substitution of official propaganda for news.

WORDS AND THEIR USES.

This column has been asked if any authority can be cited in defense of the political pronunciation of "again," as in "agayne and agayne and agayne." Well, we will quote Webster's faint praise: "Agen, or especially British, agayne." The Century dictionary gives "agayne" as an alternative. "18,000 Words Often Mispronounced" is firmly in favor of "agen."

* * *

President Roosevelt may be charged with an unquestionable altho common mispronunciation in his fourth term acceptance speech. The word was "APplicable." He said "apPLICable." In this case we are not inclined to be censorious. The rhythm of APplicable is hostile to the tongue, causing the last three syllables to sound as if they were being swallowed. Nevertheless, this is the pronunciation that every schoolboy knows, if he has had good instruction, and the dictionaries provide no loopholes for argument.

* * *

A painful specimen of war time journalese irks us, for it is running like a rash over the newspapers, especially in descriptive text under pictures. The phrase is "medical corpsman." We submit that when an English word is attached to a French word, the combination is Anglicized and should be pronounced accordingly: "corpseman." The suggestion is ghastly. We also submit that when pronounced "kohrman," the hybrid has a harrowing, corpselike appearance in type and should not be used.

* * *

As substitutes for "medical corpsman," we suggest "medical corps man," "medical corps soldier," "man of the medical corps," or "first aid man." Other alternatives may be found, according to circumstances. "Corpsman" has no standing in the dictionaries, and may be an invention of the weekly magazine which has infested the American language with many smart-aleck neologisms.

SO'TH'UN CUHL UP NAWTH.

"The summer's terrific!" I heard them declare
When snow was still falling in May.
"The sheerest of cotton is all you can wear!"
(I find it right chilly today.)

"The summer's impossible!" This was in June.
"Just watch the thermometer soar!"
And they flock to the beach of a Saturday noon.
(The temperature's seventy-four.)

"The summer's unbearable!" This was July.
"It's just about all you can take!"
(That's a wonderful breeze from the lake.)

It's practically August, and still they repeat,
(I gather they've never been South.)

The Man Who Bombed Hitler.

Col. Klaus von Stauffenberg, principal figure in the recent attempt to exterminate Hitler, is a scion of a 700 year old feudal family of South Germany. The correct name for the head of the family is always Schenck Graf von Stauffenberg. The ancestral home is Schloss Stauffeneck, near Stuttgart.

At least one member of the Stauffenbergs always served as officer in the 20th Uhlan regiment, of which Queen Charlotte of Wuerttemberg was honorary colonel. They went in heavily for race horses and steeplechase riding. Two members of the family were known at one time as Germany's outstanding gentleman riders and were consistent winners of trophies. In the yearbook of German army officers for 1913, a Stauffenberg is listed as lieutenant, and my guess is that the colonel who bombed Hitler was his younger brother. Incidentally, of the 25 officers in the 20th Uhlans that year, all but two were of the nobility.

THE CHEER LEADERS.

In Spain, when Franco shows his face,
The common man must take his place,
To holler "Viva," cheer his name—
With every Fuehrer it's the same.

No adoration calls them out;
They must show up; they have to shout;
The Party sees that they don't fail;
It's line the streets or go to jail.

With Leader Franklin hardly yet
Are demonstrations quite so set;
But when the Party members meet
You'll never find a vacant seat.

The boys are told to jam the hall
And listen for the Leader's call;
He'll tell them who and when to cheer—
For free men, doesn't this sound queer?

It's homage, Sidney Hillman style;
It isn't bad, as slogans go;

WATCHFUL CARE IN TOXIC THYROID.

WHILE we do not know the exact cause of the outlaw tendencies which may be exhibited by the thyroid, we assume that the starter is a deficiency of some sort. This explains why, in many parts of the country, table salt is fortified with a tiny fraction of iodine. This element, which is the basic chemical utilized by the gland in forming its secretion, is missing from the soil in certain areas. Hence vegetables grown in such neighborhoods cannot supply it.

When the thyroid goes on a rampage, the patient is seriously ill—with marked nervousness, loss of weight, rapid pulse, and tremor. Medical management, including X-ray exposures and thiouracil, has been tried with some success. Nevertheless, the badly poisoned victim may be obliged to seek relief in skilled surgery.

There is considerable false optimism about what may be accomplished with drugs such as iodine. Nevertheless, under the influence of this remedy, the subject feels so much better that the idea of operative interference may be abandoned. But sooner or later symptoms reappear, perhaps in redoubled force. The metabolic rate, which had dropped, will again mount and the sufferer may be worse off than ever—with the heart racing and the nervous system on extreme tension.

There is one valuable use for iodine—namely, to prepare for the trip to the amphitheater. With the patient at complete rest, sedatives are employed and Lugol's solution is given three times daily. Between the 10th and 14th days, the maximum benefit will have been produced. If, on the other hand, the situation is less favorable, we realize that too much of the medicine has been administered and it must be discontinued.

Rest can be mental as well as physical. Visitors may be limited, and enough quieting compounds utilized to keep the individual in a semi-doze, free from apprehension.

During this interval, diet is all important. High carbohydrate feedings are the rule. In fact, double the total quantity of food may well be provided as edibles and the tissues are being burned up with the speed of a race horse. It is no uncommon experience to find that one of these victims is shedding pounds steadily, and, at the same time, is cleaning the platter as often as it is presented.

Then comes the rôle of the expert surgeon, who will take advantage of the lull in the storm which has been granted by Lugol's solution and remove a sufficient portion of the offending gland to restore health. There is no procedure that requires greater mastery of technique or superlative judgment. These sufferers are in a hairtrigger balance. An error anywhere along the line may spell disaster.

We should recall that there may be no obvious swelling at the base of the neck. This means that any one who presents cardiac disturbances [such as palpitation], and who is growing thinner day by day, must be studied carefully. Delayed cases give us real concern. Those who consult their medical advisors promptly will be spared much distress.

The Flies Who Conquered the Flypaper.

Once upon a time a horde of flies descended upon a bit of succulence. They had steel on their heads and over their heads, and in their arms they carried fire. When they alighted, they held their legs stiff and unbent at the knees, and in this manner they paraded up and down the area they had reduced to rubble. They did this many times and ate a great deal and grew very fat. Then one day they tried to lift their feet. They found they could not. Their feet were stuck in the flypaper.

The news coming out of the Polish underground indicated that this sad fate is exactly what has happened to the Nazi forces who five years ago this Oct. 1 hit Warsaw. And now that they are stuck in the flypaper, they are being harpooned by a weapon to which these strange flies are peculiarly susceptible—wit.

The wit of Poland began to manifest itself in quiet ways. It began with children singing street songs. One brief, and seemingly innocuous chant, goes:

"Es geht alles voruber
Es geht alles vorbei—
Und nach 9 November
Wider kommt 3 Mai."

Translated, this is: "Everything passes over, everything passes by; and after the ninth of November comes the third of May." [May 3 is Poland's Constitution day and a national holiday.]

Another, sung to an approaching Nazi and followed by quick retreat if the Nazi registers, is:

"Who are you? A Volksdeutch child.
What's your symbol? Bread defiled.
And your source? A world on fire.
And your fate? The funeral pyre."

And only the children can indulge safely in hailing the Nazis by the name given them by all Poland: "Mr. Temporary!"

Secret underground presses roll off humerous gazettes by the hundreds. One, Lipa [the gag], bears the subtitle, "A humorous paper published in Poland in days of horror." For its motto it went to the German Nietzsche: "One kills not by anger, but by ridicule."

Others are called Szaplika [the pin], Mucha [the fly], and Moskit [the gnat]. The sole purpose of all is to buzz, buzz, buzz, and annoy. Another means of annoyance is the "editing" of official posters. A poster telling Warsaw of the execution of 100 hostages for the shooting of an informer was signed Moder. By the following dawn the signature had been amended to "Morder" [murderer]. The posters of German colonists saying "On this soil we shall remain" was given an enthusiastic addenda: "three feet underground."

"And," the Polish Review states proudly, "inscriptions 'Poland will win' have been so thoroly removed from the walls of buildings that the mark left will remain forever."

One of the neater practical jokes played by the Polish people on the Nazis came when Gestapo headquarters was deluged with anonymous letters telling of secret military activity under Col. Andrew Bobola in a desolate region. The Nazis set a price on Bobola's head and instituted a wide search for him. A little late in the search they discovered that "Col." Bobola was a Polish saint who lived in the 17th century.

REPLY TO THE CIO.

Fort Custer, Mich., July 21.—Local 1010 of the CIO United Steel Workers is complaining that G. I. Joe gets more than the "unskilled" steel worker. Here is something for that group to think about:

1. G. I. Joe does not have his wife and family to whom he may go home each night. He sleeps and eats with a couple hundred other Joes. Maybe he has bathing facilities.
2. Many such Joes are receiving the same money now that they did when they first came into service, one or two years ago. If they have been in three years, they receive a 5 per cent increase. Yet, every soldier who has been in the army for three months or more, is no longer in the unskilled class, but may in most cases be classed as an expert.
3. These subsistence items, which are mentioned in the editorial as worth $40 a month: Perhaps they refer to a can of K rations being eaten in the foxhole quarters in Normandy, or in New Guinea or Saipan, or in Italy. I should like to see any unskilled steel worker pay $40 a month for such privileges.
4. In comparison of casualties, death only was mentioned. Many of my buddies are suffering living death in our mental hospitals, without having ever been wounded. I never heard of an "unskilled" steel worker contracting, while at work, malaria or dermatitis or any of the many other diseases which are common to our service men and which are contracted while on duty.

If the "unskilled" workers of local 1010 would rather have soldiers' pay with the benefits I have listed, let them see their local draft boards.

SOLDIER'S ARGUMENT FOR DEWEY.

Somewhere in the Pacific, July 10.—The following factors, listed below, have convinced me that Gov. Tom Dewey should be the next President of the United States, and for these reasons, if a ballot ever reaches me, he will get my vote:

1. Because of his exceptionally brilliant record as the governor of the state of New York.
2. Because it would prove to our enemies, if Dewey is successful, that a strong, free nation can change horses in the middle of the stream, and continue to function efficiently and victoriously.
3. Because I am out here now gladly accepting terrific discomforts in my humble contribution to eliminate one man rule from this earth.
4. Because I believe that in this nation there is no indispensable man—as there is in Germany.
5. Because I believe Gov. Dewey will do all he can to unite the people of the United States, and not deliberately divide us into two definite classes, namely, capital and labor, as President Roosevelt has so ably done.

Dewey has a great many backers out here in the South Pacific battleground.

Chicago, July 15.—I am not a Chicagoan and have been living in the deep south for a number of years. From time to time I have read derogatory remarks about THE TRIBUNE. But coming from the sources they did, it made me so suspicious that I decided to get acquainted with THE TRIBUNE first hand the two weeks I was here.

I am leaving next week but before departing I must tell you that you really do have "The World's Greatest Newspaper." How can any American not carrying a Communist party card or holding a New Deal bureau job, criticize the ideals for which you stand? It is a pity that there are not Tribunes published all over the country.

I cannot stomach these silly, sentimental fools who fall for every old America-last scheme that comes along, like the "seaboard bootlickers," as you call some of them. ILLINOIS ROAD PLANS BOON TO CITY AND STATE

Shorter, Better and More Routes Mapped.

[This is the third of a series of stories on plans for the development of Chicagoland highways to keep pace with the demands of post-war traffic.]

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

Butterfield rd., now an obscure highway into southern Du Page county, after the war will become a main traveled route for motorists wishing to reach Chicago from the west. It is blueprinted as one of the major super-highways thru the suburban area.

Now a combination of state routes 56 and 55, Butterfield rd. is to have a connection with the Lincoln highway [U. S. 30] west of Aurora. It will be the direct route to the Ottawa-La Salle-Peru and the Rock Island-Moline-Davenport regions.

Feeder for West Super-Highway.

west side route. If that is to be Congress st., a new link thru Maywood and southern Oak Park will be required. City planners have ignored proposals that Chicago's west expressway should be placed farther north to coincide with modern traffic channels.

Gov. Green's highway division, as one of the post-war projects to put life into Chicago's transport future, plans to extend Butterfield rd. to North Aurora. The right of way, most of it already bought, will be wide enough for a super-highway and the present two lane route is located off center, awaiting construction of a pavement strip on the other side.

"All state expressway routes are planned so there will be a 40 foot parkway between the inside lanes to avoid headlight glare for night drivers," said H. E. Surman, the engineer in charge of designing state roads. "The separation of opposing streams of traffic is one of the most effective means of highway safety."

Swinging down west of Aurora to Sugar Grove, the state plans a four lane connection between Butterfield rd. and U. S. 30.

Several Routes Westward.

The westward channels:

U. S. 20 to Dubuque, Ia., has the reputation of being one of the worst routes in the state for accidents and fatalities. It is in poor shape between Elgin and Rockford, but rebuilding plans are deferred for an agreement about relocation at Rockford. Nearer Galena, where U. S. 20 passes thru some of the finest scenery in Illinois, several subways, bridges, and grade separations are planned.

Illinois 64, a newer route via St. Charles and Oregon, has been getting much of the traffic that several years ago went to the Lincoln highway. Only minor work is scheduled for it, at Savanna and Mt. Carroll.

U. S. 30, the Lincoln highway, needs rebuilding between Sterling and Clinton, Ia., where the pavement is nearly 30 years old. Work has been deferred pending agitation for a new bridge across the Mississippi river, which would shorten the distance appreciably. A viaduct is planned at Union Grove. Broken pavement is now being repaired between Shabonna and Sugar Grove.

Repaving on Alternate 30.

Alternate 30, the old Lincoln highway west of Geneva, is to be repaved and straightened from Sterling to Dixon and from Franklin Grove to Rochelle.

U. S. 6 is to be given new pavement from Sheffield to Carbon Cliff, connecting there with several new entrances into Moline and Rock Island. In the center of the state, the road is to be relocated and straightened to pass north of Peru, La Salle, Ottawa, and Morris. If U. S. 6 is made a federal interregional road, it probably will enter Indiana from south of Joliet.

New Route to Be Shorter.

U. S. 34 will be repaved 31.4 miles between Lamoille and Somonauk, with the stretch east of Mendota completely relocated to get rid of frequent turns that have slowed down cars for years. Closer to Burlington, Ia., shorter sectors will be straightened at Monmouth. Also under consideration is a new line southwest of Kewanee, to provide a distance saving diagonal to Galesburg.

The La Salle county industrial area also is to be given a direct road from Ottawa into the suburban area by completion of a 14.2 mile unit, interrupted by the war, on route 71 between Yorkville and Norway.

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

CAPT. FROHLICH TO LEAVE POLICE FORCE ON AUG. 1

Police Capt. Matthew Frohlich, 57, of the Kensington station, will leave the police department Aug. 1 to move to Arizona for his health, he said yesterday. The captain, who has arthritis, submitted his resignation to Commissioner Allman.

Capt. Frohlich.

Capt. Frohlich, who joined the department in 1919, said "it's been a great life" and that he regretted leaving the force. He was promoted to sergeant in 1933, to lieutenant in 1936, and to captain on Oct. 12, 1938. He was captain at the Deering and South Chicago stations before he went to Kensington. He lives at 1900 Garfield blvd.

His resignation will make 21 vacancies for captains in the department, which has provision for 58 captains. Civil service examinations for lieutenants seeking to fill the vacancies will be held Sept. 6.

First District of Legion to Name Officers Tonight

The Inquiring Camera Girl
BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Margaret Franz, 1728 Austin av.]

THE QUESTION.

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Pvt. Alvira Rogness, 3308 Tolle pl., Gary, Ind.—There's one item I miss, especially in the summer time, and that's play shorts. I used to live in them in the summer, but times have changed. We have play clothes in our wardrobe that serve the purpose tho. I don't have as much time to loaf anyway, now that I'm in the army.

Pvt. Sophie Adams, 2217 Wakeling st., Philadelphia, Pa.—One thing I think a lot of the girls in the service miss are evening gowns — cool, strapless and gorgeous. I'd like to slip into one and spend a night dancing. Otherwise army life is the same for me. In civilian life I wore suits and that's my main garb now.

Pvt. Marcene Hedger, Birmingham, Ala.—Feminine clothes always have been my hobby. I like frills and ruffles, slinky gowns and big hats, bows and ribbons and high heels. I've always liked costume jewelry, too. But then if I had all that stuff I couldn't have my army uniform and there'll be plenty of time for those later.

Lt. Vivienne Fleet, San Antonio, Tex.—Just as my hair starts to grow out what happens? I have to get it cut off so it will be above my collar. I like long hair because you can do so much more with it. Another thing I miss is high heels. I think a girl feels more dressed when she's on 2½ or 3 inch spikes.

Pvt. Doris Wise, 944 W. 54th st.—When I see girls with flowers in their hair and pretty hair ribbons I want to wear something in my hair, too. I'd like to wear a white peasant blouse with bright colors on it and hair ribbon or flowers to match. I can hear my saddle shoes calling, but they'll be waiting when I get back.

Pvt. Sela Stanley, Canada, Ky.—I've always liked pretty bracelets and necklaces. Before I joined the WAC I gave all my frivolous jewelry to my little sister. There probably won't be anything left of it when I come back but I've been wearing an identification bracelet and a wrist watch and I've become quite attached to them.

OPTIMISM FADES FOR BETTER TIE WITH ARGENTINA

Recalling of Escobar Possible Wedge.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 25 (AP).—The Argentine government's sudden decision to recall Dr. Adrian Escobar, its ambassador in Washington, supplied a sudden check on the recent optimism concerning the possible improvement of relations between Argentina and other American republics.

Dr. Adrian Escobar.

Until yesterday there had been growing conviction in some circles that Washington's delay in taking any drastic step after the recall of Norman Armour, American ambassador, indicated the tension had been eased.

There was every indication the decision to summon Escobar was reached abruptly late last night. For this reason censorship of foreign correspondents' dispatches, which was lifted Saturday, was reestablished to enable the foreign ministry to advise the ambassador before publication of the news abroad.

The government press department tonight announced that Foreign Minister Gen. Orlando Peluffo will broadcast a statement on Argentine foreign policy at 6:30 p. m. Chicago time tomorrow. The statement will be shortwaved in Portuguese and English.

The bulletin issued at midnight gave certain statements attributed to Secretary of State Hull, as the motive for the move. It was not clear what statements were meant. It may have been the secretary's disclosure in a press conference yesterday that a memorandum regarding the Argentine situation had been circulated to other American governments.

While presumably the memorandum was not officially communicated to the Argentine foreign office, it is not unlikely the office received intimation of its contents thru diplomatic sources.

Recent events, such as the departure of German diplomats, the sentencing of four axis spies and reassuring statements by President Edelmiro Farrell and Vice President Col. Juan Peron, led many Argentines to believe the government was launched decisively on a program of inter-American coöperation.

To Issue Explanation.

The statement promised for tomorrow, it is generally assumed, will include a recapitulation of the steps already taken in favor of the allied nations and reiteration of Argentina's devotion to Pan-American solidarity.

The fact that some conditions inimical to the cause of the united nations are permitted to continue—such as publication of pro-axis newspapers and unrestricted operation of blacklisted firms—has been justified semi-officially by the peculiar political situation prevailing in the country.

Hey, does this remind you that you haven't had your Wheaties lately? Let's go get 'em. What good whole grain nourishment! What delicious nut-sweet flavor! What sheer eating pleasure—in a bowlful of milk, fruit, and Wheaties, "Breakfast of Champions."

FIFTH WAR LOAN

UNITED STATES TREASURY

CHICAGO and COOK COUNTY WAR FINANCE COMMITTEE

ROOM 222, 105 WEST ADAMS STREET
CHICAGO 3 • CENTRAL 5760

Fellow Chicagoans:

For the first time in history Chicago and Cook County have subscribed more than one billion dollars in a war loan drive. But we are still many millions behind our quota for individual subscriptions with just one week left in which to make up the deficiency.

If you have cash on hand to meet your forthcoming Federal income tax payments there is an easy way for you to help make up this deficiency and, at the same time, obtain a modest financial benefit for yourself.

MERELY INSTRUCT YOUR BANK TO INVEST THIS CASH IN SERIES "C" TAX SAVINGS NOTES WHICH, IF PURCHASED BEFORE JULY 31ST, WILL BE ACCEPTED BY THE INTERNAL REVENUE DEPARTMENT AT THEIR PURCHASE PRICE PLUS ACCRUED INTEREST, IN PAYMENT OF SEPTEMBER 15TH AS WELL AS SUBSEQUENT INCOME TAX INSTALLMENTS.

This appeal is based not so much on the investment merit of these notes as upon the opportunity they afford to help put Chicago and Cook County's individual sales over the top in the Fifth War Loan Drive.

Yours most sincerely,
Philip R. Clarke

HEALTH QUIZ

	YES	NO
Do you have poor digestion?	☐	☐
Do you feel headachy after eating?	☐	☐
Do you get sour or upset easily?	☐	☐
Do you feel tired—listless?	☐	☐

Do you feel headachy and upset due to poorly digested food? To feel cheerful and happy again your food must be digested properly.

Each day, Nature must produce about two pints of a vital digestive juice to help digest your food. If Nature fails, your food may remain undigested—leaving you headachy and irritable.

Therefore, you must increase the flow of this digestive juice. Carter's Little Liver Pills increase this flow quickly—often in as little as 30 minutes. And, you're on the road to feeling better.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's Little Liver Pills aid digestion after Nature's own order. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills as directed. Get them at any drugstore. Only 10¢ and 25¢.

Jane Watkins Will Become Bride Aug. 12

BY JUDITH CASS.

INVITATIONS have been sent out for the marriage of Miss Jane Watkins to Lt. Robert A. Escher of the naval air forces at 8 p. m. Aug. 12 in the Children's chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church. The ceremony will be followed by a reception in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Benson Watkins of Winnetka.

Lt. Escher will arrive from Quonset Point, R. I., where he has been serving on the admiral's staff, Aug. 10, in time for Mr. and Mrs. Locke Murray's luncheon for the bridal party Aug. 11, the bridal dinner that night at the Indian Hill club, and the Roy Walholms' luncheon the day of the wedding. Before that Miss Watkins will be entertained at several parties—a kitchen shower, which Miss Evelyn Coolidge is planning for Saturday; a miscellaneous shower, at which Mrs. William T. Bacon Jr. will be hostess; a linen shower, which Mrs. Melvin Veeder and Mrs. Ralph Huszagh will give on the 10th, and Mrs. Herbert Nock's bathroom shower on the 9th.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Paul Watkins, will be here from Winona, Minn., for the ceremony, as will Lt. Escher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Escher, and his great-aunt, Mrs. Frank Enos of Englewood, N. J. Miss Watkins will have her sister-in-law, Mrs. Watkins Jr., as matron of honor and Miss Coolidge as maid of honor. Mrs. Bacon, the former Peggy Hoyt, is coming from New Haven, Conn., to serve as bridesmaid with Miss Patricia McCallum of Hartford, Conn., Miss Elinor Burton of Washington, D. C., and Miss Sarah Jane Arkell of Englewood. Penelope Jane Walholm will be flower girl. Miss Watkins plans to return to her classes at Sarah Lawrence college, where she will receive her degree next December.

Trapnell-Johnson.

In a small informal ceremony, Miss Prudence Johnson and Capt. John Mackey Trapnell Jr. were married at 5 p. m. yesterday in the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Homer H. Johnson of Kenilworth. The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Trapnell, did not come for the wedding, as Capt. Trapnell and his bride left immediately to visit them in Charles Town, W. Va. When his leave is over they will report to his new post at Maxton field, North Carolina, to which he just has been transferred from Texas.

Of the bride's three sisters, only the youngest, Mrs. John Charles Whipple Jr. [Caroline Johnson], whose husband, a lieutenant in the army, is serving in France, was present. Missing from the family circle were Mrs. Gardiner B. Van Ness [Ruth Johnson], who is in Kensington, Md., with Lt. Van Ness of the naval reserve; Mrs. Earle A. Channer [Isabelle Johnson], who is living in Texas while Lt. Channer is there with the army; Ensign Homer H. Johnson Jr., on duty in the South Pacific, and Pvt. Horton Johnson, stationed in England. Ensign Johnson's wife, however, was present.

Other Wedding News.

Before most of the friends of Miss Martha Woolf had heard of her engagement to Flight Officer John Fordham Boyle, plans had been completed for a 4:30 p. m. wedding Saturday in the Winnetka home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Woolf. The hurried arrangements are due to Flight Officer Boyle's unexpected leave from his duties as an army air force pilot at Malden, Mo.

Since the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Boyle of Summit, N. J., will not be here for the wedding, Miss Woolf's brother, James, will arrive from Cincinnati in time to serve as best man. The bride will be attended by her twin sister, Margaret. The youngest member of the Woolf family, Robert, will be present at the small ceremony and reception for a larger group of friends. Flight Officer Boyle will take his bride to Malden to live.

At 3 p. m. today in the chapel of St. Paul's Episcopal church Miss Anne Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey E. Daniel of Davenport, Ia., and cousin of Sen. Brooks of Illinois, will become the bride of Lt. William B. Gemmill of the army air forces, son of Maj. and Mrs. William B. Gemmill of Chicago. The bridegroom arrived Monday from El Paso, Tex., and his father just has returned from Italy in time for the ceremony, which was ar-

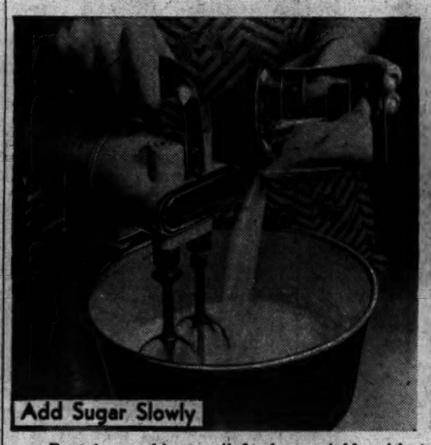
Mary Meade Shows How to Make Nut Meringues



1. Beat 4 egg whites until frothy; sprinkle with ¼ teaspoon salt, then beat until stiff. Slowly add 1 cup granulated sugar and continue to beat until all is added. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla.

2. Fold in 1 cup finely ground or chopped nuts. If pastry tube is used for shaping, put nuts thru food mill or chopper; if teaspoon is used, nuts may be left in coarse pieces.

3. Shape kisses with pastry tube or teaspoon on ungreased brown paper laid on baking sheet. Bake in 275 degree oven 45 to 60 minutes, or until delicately brown. Remove while warm.

4. Nut kisses are delicious served with fruitade on a summer's afternoon. Or serve them as a tea time treat. In place of nuts, 1 cup crushed nut brittle or shredded coconut may be used.

Out of the Kitchen.

Before the men talk about women getting out of the factory into the kitchen, perhaps they will tell us why men are turning out women's dresses, hats, and other feminine articles [formerly well made by women]. Also why men are running restaurants—and not always so well at that. Women used to run them and some of the best restaurants in Chicago still are run by women. Yes, it's time the men get out of the kitchen back to factory.

No Secrets.

Even tho I no longer am a white collar girl, I find my hair curling over some of the descriptions of office snoopers. I have a 100 per cent solution to the problem: Eliminate the reason—or temptation—to snoop.

Looking, in retrospect, on my last job I realize that it was in an office where the ability to keep one's mouth discreetly shut outside of the office was considered essential. It was a large office with many secretaries. Yet I can't recall a single instance when any of us felt that something secret was going on which we couldn't know about. Our problems were discussed openly with us. If we were going to get raises, they were mentioned to us beforehand. If office policy were involved, we shared in the shaping of it as much as our employers. Every girl in that office felt her responsibility and there wasn't one of us who would not have worked till we dropped had the necessity arisen. We knew what was happening; why we were needed, and felt as responsible about the job to be done as our boss. It is only the little people who feel they enhance their own position by sharing a secret with some one over them—it springs from lack of confidence and that "left out" feeling which so easily may be avoided in an office with a share-alike atmosphere.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Mexicallate Sauce.
[1¾ cups.]

2 cups tomato juice
1 bay leaf
½ medium sized onion, minced
½ green pepper, chopped
2 tablespoons butter
1½ tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon allspice

Simmer tomato juice with bay leaf in covered pan for 5 minutes. Meanwhile, cook onion and green pepper in butter; stir in flour and seasonings to make smooth paste. Remove bay leaf from tomato juice and add juice to flour mixture. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Simmer 5 minutes and serve with meat, fish, spaghetti, or rice.

Infant Welfare Care Is Given to 9,245 in First Half of Year

Reporting on its work for the first six months of the year, the Infant Welfare society of Chicago discloses that in that period 9,245 mothers and children received care thru its 21 stations, located in congested areas of the city. Of 4,091 babies cared for, only 11 were lost, which is a death rate of 2.6 per cent. The society maintains a staff of doctors, nurses, nutritionists, and a mental hygiene supervisor to provide medical supervision and home nursing and nutrition service for expectant mothers, for babies, and children under 6. Its work is supported by volunteer gifts supplemented by contributions from the Community and War fund.

Kurtz Covers Wide Range in Ravinia Music

Concerto Grosso, D minor.Vivaldi-Siloti
Symphony, No. 7, A major....Beethoven
Four Norwegian Moods.....Stravinsky
[First Performance in Chicago.]
Circus Polka.....Stravinsky
[First Performance in Chicago.]
Russian Dance, from "Petrouchka" .....Stravinsky

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Efrem Kurtz returned to Ravinia last night for his second summer engagement with the Chicago Symphony orchestra and opened what promises to be an interesting week with music that strode three centuries from a beautiful Vivaldi transcription to brand new Stravinsky, pausing in the journey for a fresh, strong, and vital performance of Beethoven's Seventh symphony in which Mr. Kurtz did his best to say "Speak for yourself, Ludwig."

This reassuring attitude seemed typical of a new simplicity and clarity that have joined the fiery high spirits of the Russian conductor's style since he deserted ballet for the symphonic podium. All music thrives on it, and the high-handed Beethoven declines to reveal his genius to any other approach. Last night's was not a perfect performance, it certainly was not a great one, but it had a wealth of honest Beethoven beauty, and it made sense in terms of a composer who rewards ill treatment with enigmatic brusqueness. It had stature and at times a rollicking understanding of the Jovian thunderbolts and gargantuan jests that thwart mere humans when they try to take Wagner literally and dance to its giant strides. Maybe Mr. Kurtz learned all that about it when he conducted Massine's ballet, which attempted to set the creation of the world to this very score.

Where he learned about the classic style is his own secret, but he did learn it. For Siloti's rich, tranquil, and deeply beautiful edition of the Vivaldi Concerto Grosso, he knew how to give the orchestra its head, knowing that is how it plays best. The result was the kind of music that makes you say, "Bach's in his heaven; all's right with the world."

Stravinsky's "Petrouchka" trumpet called the crowd back after intermission, when two recent Stravinsky compositions preceded the closing Russian dance from the famous ballet. "Four Norwegian Moods," given its first performance last January by the Boston orchestra, is a persuasive work by a master craftsman who understands the wit of devious simplicity. The woodwinds skitter brilliantly, or sing with mournful mien, a little dance skips with a sardonic glint reminiscent of that very "Petrouchka," and a cortege is a decorous rather than a solemn period. There is nothing about it unsuitable as preface to the gayety of the Circus Polka, that pachydermous filching from Strauss to Sousa that Stravinsky wrote for Ringling's elephants.

Service Wives Are Welcomed as Job Hunters

Job hunting wives of soldiers and sailors are welcomed at the several bureaus set up to serve them and others in search of employment, it was found yesterday in a TRIBUNE survey of the Chicago area.

Leading the list of agencies assisting this group are the United States employment service and the United States civil service commission, to which unemployed service wives are referred by the army emergency relief and the navy public relations office. Many women whose husbands are serving with the army or navy, go to the state farm labor office, 226 W. Jackson st., for temporary summer jobs on farms plagued by labor shortages.

The Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross has facilitated job seeking for hundreds of service wives. The Red Cross also has referred many to the United States employment service and the civil service commission. Others are sent to the Young Women's Christian association, which has a nonfee placement bureau; to the Office of Civilian Defense regional information bureau, or to one of the accredited employment bureaus.

A Red Cross official reported that a large number of Red Cross employes have an immediate relative in service. The chapter policy gives preference to the employment of service men's wives when their qualifications equal those of other applicants, the official explained.

The survey revealed that most placement bureaus refer applicants for positions as domestics to private employment agencies. The fees charged by many of these commercial agencies now are being paid by employers, a reversal of the system in effect before the war time domestic help shortage.

Vocal Winners Picked in First Festival Trials

Miss Carol Louise Smith, 18 and brunette, won a double triumph last night in the first sectional audition for singers in the 15th annual Chicago Music Festival. The festival will be held Saturday night, Aug. 19, in Soldiers' field. Last night's audition, for west side and west suburban contestants in Cook county, was held in the Graemere hotel.

Miss Smith, who lives at 3862 Woodside av., Hollywood, not only won first honors in the contralto class but for winning also received a $25 dress from her father, W. C. Smith. Second place went to Miss Eva Coleman, 21, of 345 N. Lockwood av., and third place to Miss Eleanor Castell, 24, of 547 N. Laramie av.

Fourteen months ago Jared Allen, 34, of 3310 Palmer st., a salesman, began taking vocal lessons to annoy his relatives and friends. His talent far from annoyed the festival judges for he won first place in the dramatic tenor class. His victory was not dimmed by the fact there was only one other competitor, Gene Tomsky, 39, of 1941 S. Trumbull av.

First place in the baritone group was won by Raymond McAfee Jr., 23, 3040 Washington blvd., who won the sectional title last year. He is a student at Northern Baptist seminary. Second and third places went respectively to Otto J. Slatinsky Jr., 25, 1911 Blue Island av., and Ben Summers, 32, of 5240 Fullerton av.

Miss Delia Marshall, 21, of 621 N. Menard av., a soloist at the Austin Methodist church, won in the dramatic soprano division. Miss Beatrice Selin, 28, of 3316 Grenshaw st., and Mrs. Adeline Maurer, 40, of 1033 Monroe av., River Forest, finished second and third.

In the lyric tenor group, Everett Westman, 29, of 2943 N. Lockwood av., duplicated last year's honors by winning again. He is a soloist at the Christian Science church, Park Ridge. George E. Grubb, 28, of 1825 N. 38th st., Melrose Park, was second, and Anthony Hullbruner, 30, of 3348 Palk st., third.

Miss Lucille Smith, 4156 Dubois blvd., Congress Park, at 17 was the youngest winner. She led the field in the mezzo-soprano section. Miss Lorraine Costelny, 18, of 5056 Lawrence av., was second, and Miss Carol Leonard, 19, of 3942 Nottingham av., was third.

Judges were Pietro D. Marchi, Earl Tanner, and Mable Sharpe Herdien. More west side vocalists will complete tonight at the Graemere. North siders will open auditions at the Edgewater Beach hotel tomorrow night.

Twirlers to Compete

Hundreds of drum majors are entering the baton twirling contest of the music festival, according to Fred Miller, chairman of the festival field events and in charge of the drum major entries. The deadline for entries is Monday night.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

At home on leave in Chicago from duties as assistant program director of a Red Cross recreation club in the northern Pacific war theater, Louise Wesley Hunt, who has been overseas 18 months with the Red Cross military welfare service, is spending a typical war time vacation in her own back yard and on the beach.

Angela Petesch. Louise W. Hunt.

Miss Hunt, daughter of Mrs. M. V. Hull, 1350 Elmdale av., will return to her post at the end of the month, where she will prepare the club for a winter of recreation for army men. Programs usually include skiing, sleighing, dances, and parties. The handsome Red Cross uniform is doffed during rigorous weather, Miss Hunt said yesterday, and is replaced by sweaters, slacks, nurses' coats, and face-framing fur parkas.

Mrs. Hull said her daughter has spent some of her leave in a nostalgic survey of perfume bottles on her dressing table, evening dresses in her wardrobe, and storage receipts for velvet and fur garments.

Miss Hunt was graduated from Southern seminary at Buena Vista, Va., and Northwestern university. She also attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Before signing up with the Red Cross in December, 1942, she was health director of the Harriet Hammond McCormick Y. W. C. A.

Angela Petesch, etiquet editor and originator of "Fashions by Angela" in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and now on war time leave with the Red Cross in England, is wearing the shoulder insignia of an armored division, a recent communication from army headquarters reports. She is one of a group of 13 Red Cross women so honored in ceremonies in an English town following presentation of a number of new clubmobiles.

In a recent letter to friends, Miss Petesch wrote: "We have new clubmobiles for this job, the kind we drive ourselves. The body is built on a 2½ ton truck chassis, with front wheel drive, low range drive, and enough power to go into and over any terrain. The girls look completely dwarfed sitting up in the cab behind the big steering wheel, but we all drive them.

"We feel we are part of the army now. We are proud to be attached to the armored division. We have a good outfit. You watch them."

Angela, an Oak Park resident for many years, is the daughter of Nicholas Petesch, now residing in Oakland, Cal. She was graduated from Oak Park High school and attended the University of Illinois. An accomplished sportswoman, athlete, and director of group activities, she qualified readily for her Red Cross overseas assignment. She also is a deft designer of jewelry.

Along with the 12 other women of her unit, she is a "sweetheart of the outfit." A paragraph in her letter illustrates the affection and esteem in which Red Cross women are held by service men abroad. On Memorial day, the clubmobile women of Miss Petesch's group received a shouted welcome as they entered the grandstand for patriotic observances.

"Made one feel good," she wrote.

By H. Vernor Dixon

(Copyright: 1944: By H. Vernor Dixon.)

INSTALMENT XXVII.

CAMOUFLAGED.

The soldier sprawled full length on the ground. Jed stamped out the match and the tiny glow of the cigaret, then picked up the sentry and his gun. He carried him back into the ferns and in a few moments had rejoined St. John and Omar.

St. John smiled. "Our first victim. Matters are going well."

Jed said, "So far." He turned to Omar and said, "You will wear the dead one's uniform."

Omar was horrified. "But that is a disgrace, Tuan."

Jed replied, "No uniform is a disgrace, Omar, when one wears it in an honorable cause."

They stripped the Jap and rolled him into the ferns. Omar put on the uniform, which was as ill fitting on him as it had been on the Jap. Jed hung some camouflage netting down the back of his helmet and fastened a telescopic sight onto the Jap's rifle.

Jed carefully appraised Omar. He smeared some green paint on his face; then stepped back and nodded with satisfaction. Perhaps he would not be able to get by in the day time, but in the dark he looked every inch a Japanese sniper.

Jed gathered a few armfuls of ferns and threw them into the cart. The cart was pulled onto the road and St. John climbed into it. Jed spread the ferns over him.

He told Omar, "At the end of this grove you will come to the barbed wire that surrounds the base. There is an opening for the road and a sentry to guard it. You pull the cart right up to him and stop. I will take care of the sentry. He is the last one to pass. Go ahead."

Omar slung the rifle over his shoulder, grasped the handles of the cart, and started forward. Jed crouched behind the cart and followed him. The sentry was waiting. He stepped forward, his gun carelessly held in his arms, and said something to Omar. The Malayan stopped directly in front of him.

Before the Jap had time to become suspicious, Jed crawled around the side of the low cart and leaped upon him in the dark. He grabbed his throat to choke off all sound and killed him with his own bayonet. He rolled him into a culvert and walked back to the cart. St. John came up from under the ferns and the three of them looked thru the opening toward the base.

They could see the black masses of the buildings and the gray outlines of the twin piers running out over the water, but little else. Near the top of the ridge above the base was a tiny yellow light blinking on and off. Jed whispered, "That light goes on when the patrol is due in. It must be 2 o'clock." They held their breath and listened and in a moment heard the drone and high pitched whine of racing motors.

St. John whispered, "Well, here we are. We had best get about our business. There isn't much time. I don't mind saying butterflies are having a simply grand time in my stomach."

Jed nodded. "Same here. Once we walk in, my friend, there is but one way out. Like to call it quits?"

"Don't be silly."

Jed laughed and crawled into the cart with St. John. He pulled the ferns over the two of them and spoke to Omar, as he grasped the handles: "Go straight thru the wire beyond for about a hundred yards; then turn to the left."

"Yes, Tuan."

With the two men and all the equipment aboard, the cart was heavy. Omar had difficulty getting it into motion and a harder time keeping it balanced.

Omar turned to the left, toward a large, low building close to the bay. As they got near to it Jed cautioned him, "Easy. Easy. Do you see any one about?"

Omar kept looking for a minute. "There are three soldiers seated on the ground between the building and the wire barricade. They are smoking. I see the glow of the cigarets."

Jed stuck his head from under the ferns and saw the three pinpoints of light in the dark. They were probably too far away even to see the cart. Jed breathed easier and told Omar to go ahead. In a moment he reached the building and came to a halt at its far corner.

St. John said, "This is the munitions dump."

"Yes. Let's hurry. Stay low."

They pulled a box of prepared nitro from the cart, placed it against the side of the building, and covered it with dirt. The copper wire was already attached to the box. Omar started walking ahead, pulling the cart, and St. John paid out the wire as Jed kicked dirt over it. They moved closer to the water and soon the big fuel tanks loomed above them in the night. Omar came to a halt.

Jed placed another small package of nitro against one of the four huge fuel tanks and threw dirt over it. St. John fastened the copper wire to it and they were ready to proceed.

Ahead of them was a cluster of buildings comprising the machine shops and marine railway and, just beyond, the two concrete piers. A whole stream of Japs was walking back and forth between the shops and the piers.

St. John shook his head dejectedly. "I don't see how it's to be done."

"Well," Jed said, "this is where we gamble the rest of our luck."

They crawled into the cart, pulled the ferns over them, and told Omar to proceed. As he walked, they unwound the wire and dropped it out the back of the cart. Omar swung close to the nearest machine shop. He paused for a second and St. John leaned out to place the dynamite against the building. He quickly fastened the wire and threw a fern over the deadly little box.

Omar, acting under Jed's instructions, then swung wide of the building and the groups of men standing about. Jap sailors, hurrying by, glanced at him, but not with curiosity. But just as Omar was skirting the marine railway, a Jap officer going by suddenly stopped and turned back. He looked closely at Omar, but failed to make out his features in the dark. He pointed at the cart and said something to Omar. The Malayan shrugged his shoulders, but made no reply fortunately. He knew nothing of the Japanese language. The officer seemed to be satisfied.

The Malayan again got under way and St. John continued paying out the wire. As they passed the first pier Jed told Omar to swing in between the two of them and stop at the edge of the water. He did as he was told and brought the cart to a halt on the narrow beach. They were between the two piers, their roadways being slightly above their heads. Down toward the end of the piers were 16 patrol boats.

Club Group to Honor John Z. White at 90

In his younger days, John Z. White, a printer by trade, traveled up and down the country explaining Henry George's single tax and free trade economy. One of the few remaining Georgists who knew the economist, Mr. White now is 90. Still an alert speaker, he lectures occasionally at the Henry George School of Social Science at 236 N. Clark st., but spends most of his time playing chess with Riverdale neighbors or reading. The Henry George Woman's club plans to make its annual picnic this year the occasion for celebrating Mr. White's birthday. The outing will be held Sunday, Aug. 8, at the Carl V. Baldwin home at Manning and Aurora rds., Warrenville.

Annual Picnic Is Given at Oak Forest Infirmary

Paper party hats and music provided free by the Chicago Federation of Musicians added merriment yesterday to the annual picnic for the elderly women at the Oak Forest infirmary. Some 400 of the infirmary's 700 women guests attended the picnic, held on the institution's grounds.

Movies Need New Honesty, Pastors Told

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Decency, merely the absence of dirt, is not enough in a motion picture; a film can be decent and still be inane and worthless, declared Prof. Fred Eastman in his address yesterday to the Pastors' institute meeting at the university of Chicago.

"We want honest pictures about the struggles of our daily lives," he said, "pictures that neither misrepresent us to others nor misrepresent others to us. We want the positive qualities of greatness, characterization, imagination, and humor if a motion picture is to afford both entertainment and education."

Prof. Eastman said that censorship cannot insure such pictures because commercial censorship makes financial profit the only criterion for success; that what a writer, actor, or director can contribute to the common welfare is subsidized for the amount of money a name can earn for the profits of a few, that tho commercial pictures are produced for entertainment they can, nevertheless, educate for better or worse.

"While in the theater," he continued, "we are under the spell of the most powerful educational instrument ever invented, an instrument that affects our ideas of life and our patterns of conduct. Yet at the same time more people will see the next picture featuring a popular movie star than have seen Shakespeare's Hamlet since Hamlet was written."

Prof. Eastman suggested that producers could greatly contribute to the common welfare if they would serve not only the 16,000 theaters, but also the 150,000 schools and churches that need to utilize the film as a medium for education. As proof that producers could do this, he cited the educational pictures provided in the army and navy training programs.

ranged suddenly when Lt. Gemmill was given leave. He will depart shortly for overseas duty, and when he goes his bride, a yeoman 2d class in the WAVES, will return to her duties in Washington, D. C. It was in Sen. Brooks' Washington apartment that Miss Brooks and Lt. Gemmill met. Maj. Gemmill, who will be his son's best man, now is to be stationed in Washington.

On the Calendar.

The annual benefit for the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind will be a cocktail party and spring fashion show late next February in the 28 shop at Marshall Field & Co. Mrs. Arthur C. Leonard Jr., president of the Lighthouse board, is vacationing in Gloucester, Mass., but will take charge of plans for the party when she returns this fall. Mrs. David Crawford, a board member, has gone to Philadelphia to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Duval. Mrs. Theodore Gary, another board member, will go to the Garys' summer home on Madeleine Island, Wis., next month. The Garys' summertime neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Woods Jr., and their little girls will go to the island Sunday to stay until just before Labor day.

"Bring the children, the family, and bathing suits," read invitations for the annual picnic of the Chicago Wellesley club and the North Shore Wellesley circle, to be held at 12:30 p. m. Friday at the Kenilworth home of Mrs. Lawrence Lawson. Guests will bring their own box lunches, and coffee and cold beverages will be provided. Of the 20 freshmen entering Wellesley this fall, six have been awarded scholarships — Miss Laura Lane, Miss Ansley Coe, Miss Dorothy Rose, Miss Mitchell Campbell, Miss Nancy Evans, and Miss Virginia Ritchie. Miss Coe's mother, Mrs. Albert Buckner Coe, also attended Wellesley, as did the mothers of two other prospective freshmen, Miss Muriel Phaelzer and Miss Karen Williams.

Miss Anna Fitzhugh and her sister, Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, are entertaining a group of friends at the Grant Park Symphony concert tonight to hear Rose Bampton sing with the orchestra. Miss Fitzhugh has been occupied with rehearsals for the open air opera performance of "I Pagliacci" to be given at the International Friendship gardens near Michigan City Aug. 5.

Birth News.

Lt. and Mrs. Sheldon Vanzwoll [Frances Orcutt Morgan] are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter, Kathryn Grace, yesterday in Oakland, Cal. The baby, who has a sister, Judith Ann, is a granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. Dwight C. Orcutt of Glencoe and of the Henry B. Vanzwolls. Lt. Vanzwoll is stationed with the navy at the Alameda air base. Mrs. Vanzwoll's brother, Dwight Orcutt Jr., is a sergeant in the army air forces.

Kenwood Service Club Shop Moved to New Quarters

With the aid of husbands and friends, Kenwood Social Service club members have moved the merchandise of their Thrift shop and are now doing business in new quarters at 1455 E. 55th st.

The small new shop is attractively decorated with bright green paint, and the show windows frame displays arranged in the artistic manner which distinguished the old shop. To give the members a vacation after the strenuous work of moving, the shop will be open only on Tuesdays in August.

The Kenwood group is one of the clubs which helps to support the Infant Welfare society. Plans are already being made for a fall benefit, a cocktail party, which will be given Oct. 13 at the Racquet club.

Quaint Dolls

BY NANCY CABOT.

This engaging farm couple, clever crocheted dolls, stands approximately 14 inches tall. Both the dolls and clothes are done in simple crochet stitches, and any one may attempt them. When completed, they may be stuffed with cotton, clean cast-off rags, or fragrant pine needles, if available.

For instructions in crocheting the pair of farm dolls, No. 1160, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Thru the Looking Glass

We don't believe at all in cluttering up the mails with nonessentials for the men overseas, but from all we can gather there are certain toiletries that they need and want.

Aids to foot comfort head the list for men. These powder or salves or cooling lotions, don't weigh much and are certainly easy to find. The heavy shoes, the eternal marching, and foot perspiration, in addition to lack of facilities in many places for very meticulous bathing, all seem to add up to a foot discomfort that is pretty general. The preparations that soothe aching feet as immensely popular.

Both the men and the women like the little sticks of pomade that soothe and prevent lip chapping. These are light as feathers and take practically no room in your box. They're particularly welcome to those in very cold or very hot climates.

The women in the WAC, the Red Cross, or nurse corps can always use a lipstick; they also like the dry shampoos, we understand, and a jar or bottle of deodorant is inevitably appreciated. Men, too, will use the latter.

The women want hairpins and bobby pins from time to time—and in certain areas they will be inordinately grateful for a box of good laundry flakes or powder, which is hard to come by in lots of places now. An occasional cake of fine soap pleases them, too.

An inspired gift for the woman overseas, especially in areas where beauty shop services are nonexistent, is the best home permanent kit you can find. These don't weigh much either.

Stylists Seek to Get Women Out of Black

BY REA SEEGER.

American dress designers are trying to get smart women out of black.

For years the smartest costumes for discriminating women have been black—unrelieved, dull black. They were simple, termed a basic dress or, more flatteringly, background dress, with which to dramatize jeweled clips, bracelets, and gigantic ear rings as well as chokers and necklaces. Also, there was the form revealing dress that emphasized line and beautiful material, supersmooth costume to wear with furs, such as capes, huge muffs, and vivid, extra long, pull-on gloves. It was definitely an era of the single black dress, expensive, tho cut in streamlines of extreme simplicity.

Now the powers back of the dress making business are out for colors, with less emphasis on blacks, for this fall and winter. Color is triumphantly strong, clear, and unusually beautiful in such jewel tones as ruby, tawny gold, jade green, lapis blue, deep imperial purple, canary yellow, and bittersweet orange. Suits, coats, and dresses are flaming temptations to susceptible shoppers in the first fall and early winter showings.

Exception to brilliant colors are the stunning neutrals—caramel beige, yarn dyed gray, and the light browns, the latter better described as ginger or cinnamon. There are many good looking black and brown ensembles, for brown shades of cinnamon or ginger are still the smartest as well as the most subtle contrasts for dull black in dress, skirt, and accessories of hat, gloves, bag, and footgear.

Bishop Moore Again to Head Methodist Board of Missions

Bishop Arthur J. Moore of Atlanta, Ga., was reëlected president of the Methodist board of missions and church extension at its meeting in the La Salle hotel last night. Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of New York City was reëlected president of the division of foreign missions, and Bishop A. Frank Smith of Houston, was reëlected president of the division of home missions. Other officers elected by the division of foreign missions:

First vice president, Bishop W. W. Teele, Richmond, Va.; second vice president, C. V. Adams, Montoursville, Pa.; recording secretary, Miss Eleanor Welch, New York City, and executive secretary, the Rev. Ralph E. Diffendorfer, New York City.

Bishop J. Ralph Magee, resident bishop of the Chicago area, was reëlected president of the Methodist board of pensions. Other officers elected were:

Woman's Club Will Hear Alice Sheldon Clock Talk

The Chicago Woman's club will have Alice Sheldon Clock as guest speaker today at an 11 a. m. meeting in Curtiss hall of the Fine Arts building. Mrs. Clock's will be a news commentary directed particularly to the battle fronts where American men are fighting and to events in the Latin American republics.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 25—Anne Shirley's illness gives newcomer Aubrey Long her big chance in "Pan-Americana" at RKO. . . . Dick Haymes, who's been set for weeks opposite Betty Grable in "The Diamond Horseshoe," must have laughed when he read Bill Marshall was taking his place. No, there's nothing to it. . . . I'm glad Nancy Kelly will do "Betrayal From The East" in New York this fall. She certainly has had plenty of betrayal from the west. . . . Since Humphrey Bogart plays "Jubal Troop," Warners got Cary Grant for Cole Porter's life, "Night and Day." When Cole said Grant was the actor he wanted, it looked as tho some sort of deal would be cooked up. Porter always gets what he wants. . . . Oliver Garrett's new play is titled "Sleep, My Pretty One." Wouldn't it be more fun to call it "Wake Up, My Pretty?" . . . I was skeptical when Marilynn Maxwell and John Conte announced their engagement. I'm still skeptical. Mr. Conte's back visiting his old friend Fanny Brice.

The Studio Will Be Sorry.

When Brian Donlevy finished posing for Whitey Schafer for stills on "Two Years Before the Mast," Brian said, "Whitey, I've been before the camera more today than during the whole run of the picture. This is the smallest part I've played since I've been in Hollywood." Paramount's going to regret that when it sees him in King Vidor's "American Romance." . . . Alexander Sved of Budapest is singing here with National Grand Opera company. That's the reason Joe Pasternak is haunting the place. They worked together abroad. Joe wants to put him in "Cabbages and Kings," but before he does that, he may play "High Among the Stars" with Jane Powell. . . . Boris Karloff, after an operation for arthritis, told a friend he'd tried to get into the hospital for a month—there was no vacancy. The friend looked at him and said, "You couldn't get a room? All you needed to do was walk in—and the hospital would have emptied in nothing flat!"

'Twas an All Around Blessing.

No, Ginny Simms and Pat Nerney didn't get married over the weekend, but Pat's brother John did, and to a girl Ginny introduced him to. She comes from a prominent Mexican family; her name—Feliza Pabloz. She was educated in a convent in Rome. They were married in Las Vegas, and have the blessing of both families. . . . David Selznick says Joan Fontaine can pick her own parts in the future. He will not interfere. . . . Ida Lupino told me all about her separation from Capt. Louis Hayward seven months ago, but asked me to keep it secret until Louis was out of uniform. "Our first separation happened three years ago," said Ida. Yes, I kept that confidence, so did other writers here who knew about it. A columnist who would rather report a divorce than eat felt she just had to have a scoop.

A Few Party Notes.

Katina Paxinou's party was a honey—wonderful food, champagne. Baron Louis de Rothschild was there. He was held prisoner for 14 months by Hitler, was released after he'd signed over everything he possessed. This is his first trip here. Only place he could get to live in was a hall bedroom. Forty years ago his father sent him to New York to study American business methods with the late August Belmont. He was chatty and cheerful. Also an interesting talker was Mr. A. Michalopoulos, former Greek minister of information, lecturing here for the Greek government. Darryl Zanuck expects Mrs. Woodrow Wilson to be his guest at opening of "Wilson" and to come on the arm of Bernard M. Baruch. . . . The Nunnally Johnson garden party for Mrs. Ernest Heyn a great success. That dyed-in-the-wool New Yorker, Bob Benchley, among those present. Sonja Henie, with a new chassis and streamlined hairdress, was the center of attraction. Hank Potter, out of uniform, told a lovely story about a German ace who had downed 35 allied planes and was finally shot down by a big green lanky Texan. When the German was in the hospital, he asked to see the man who shot him down. He looked over the Texan with disgust and said, "I can account for 35 planes. And what have you brought down?" The shy Texan replied, "An Arab, a jackass, and you."

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

At duplicate bridge, when the declarer finds himself in an excellent contract, he should adopt a conservative policy in the play. For example:

South, dealer.

	NORTH
	♠ J 10 9 8 2
	♥ 6
	♦ J 9 6 2
WEST		EAST
♠ A Q 7 5 3		♠ 6 4
♥ A K 9 2		♥ Q J 10 7 5
♦ 7		♦ 4 3
	SOUTH
	♠ K
	♥ 8 4 3
	♦ A K Q 10 8 5
	♣ K 6 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Double	1 spade	2 hearts
3 diamonds	4 hearts	Pass	Pass
5 diamonds	Double	[final bid]

At most tables East-West were allowed to play heart contracts, and scored 480 points. Strangely, no pair actually bid the slam.

At this particular table where North-South were doubled at five diamonds, West opened the heart king and continued with the heart ace. Dummy ruffed and declarer led a spade to his blank king. West won and led still another heart. Again dummy ruffed, and now the spade jack was led. When East played low, declarer toyed with the idea of passing the trick to West, discarding a club from the closed hand, but he concluded that he might as well ruff this round and then, if the queen had not dropped, pass the next spade. Unfortunately, East took a hand in this attempted procedure. Declarer, having ruffed the spade jack, led a trump to the nine and returned the spade 10. East now made sure that declarer would not pass this trick to West—he ruffed! This was fatal to the declarer. He could not afford to let East win the trick and return a club, so declarer over-ruffed. This, however, left him in his own hand and there was no way to avoid the loss of three club tricks. Down 500 for a bottom score!

Passing the second spade would have meant a sure top for North-South.

Child Guiding Articles Seek to Aid Parents

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A letter had to be sent by messenger from my office. The lad who came for it was about 14 and every inch a boy. As he took the large envelope from my hand, he glanced at it and said, "It has to have a 'from' on it in the corner; it's a rule of the company." And he added my name.

"How did you know that?" I said.

"O, I read your articles," he answered.

That very day I had received three letters from little girls of about 12.

Altho I think boys and girls may read a lot that will sink in for their own future use when they grow up, and perhaps something that will help them to understand themselves, too, I wonder if they will misinterpret my talks to mothers and fathers, and sit in judgment on their parents. I hope they won't.

Of course, this department must be run for mothers and fathers and other grownups who have children under their wing. And it is with columns, as it is with books and plays, they can't be written and produced so that they are geared to young persons, and yet mature enough for older ones, too.

So I hope the children who read this column will appreciate how dearly their parents love them, and how much their fathers and mothers desire their happiness; and that while they may not be wise most of the time, it is not possible to be wise on every occasion, and that bringing up a family is not by any means an easy thing to do. I hope the children will understand that we are not finding fault with parents in this column; we are only trying to help both them and their young children.

Another day, and I have promised myself this for a long time, I shall write a letter for boys and girls only—one their parents are not really supposed to read.

Fifth Annual Writers' Conference Opens at Northwestern Today

The fifth annual Writers' conference, sponsored by 23 literary groups in coöperation with Northwestern university's Medill school of journalism, opens today in Scott hall on the Evanston campus. Four days of workshops and lectures, punctuated with literary lunches and teas, will close Saturday night, when the annual authors' dinner, drawing a speakers' table of top-flight writers and literary critics, will be held in Great hall of the First Methodist church.

Ranging from the embryo writer to the established professional, approximately 1,300 persons attended last year's conference, and a similar attendance is expected this year. Prizes provided by publishers and sponsor groups amount to $1,600 this year, and 28 contests are scheduled.

Dean Kenneth E. Olson of the Medill school will preside in Cahn auditorium tonight at a session on nonfiction and feature writing. The program will include a symposium on "Writing About War and Peace," for which Edwin Embree, president of the Julius Rosenwald fund, will be chairman, and Georgia Lloyd, Kenneth W. Colgrove, Mercedes Rosebery, and Lynn Montross the participants. Among speakers scheduled are Erna Fergusson of Washington, D. C., program director of the office of the coördinator of inter-American affairs, and Borghild Dahl of New York, who wrote the autobiography, "I Wanted to See." The field of writing for juveniles will be covered in the afternoon at a general session beginning at 1:45 o'clock and specialized round tables at 3:45.

Vacationing in U. S. to Be Children's Movie Subject

A movie, "Vacationing in Our Own Country," will be shown at 10 and 11 a. m. tomorrow at the Chicago Natural History [formerly Field] museum in the Raymond foundation series for children. Also on the program will be an animated cartoon. The fourth program in the museum's current "Backgrounds of the War" series for adults will be presented at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow, with Roberta Cramer as lecturer. Mrs. Cramer's talk will be commentary, augmenting color stills and motion pictures of "Islands Penetrated by the Japanese"—the Philippines, Sumatra, Bali, Java, and Singapore.

The Solid Side Gives a Piece of Solid Advice

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

"There is a girl who goes with our crowd, and she is slowly but surely drifting away from us. Lately she has become interested in 'necking.' She has been chasing two boys from a different school. Neither of them has taken her out, but when they are walking home from wherever they might meet, a great deal of necking takes place.

"The boys in our crowd resent her actions, as none of us has ever behaved that way. We do not feel superior to her, but we are afraid that if we continue our friendship and are seen with her, we will be considered that kind of girl, too. We have often tried to tell her that we do not approve of her actions, but she doesn't seem to care. Are we being unfair or should we just mind our own business . . .?"

Give your own story the once-over-lightly and be sure you have the accurate facts about the honeychile before breaking off social relations. It might be that some one is just a little green-eyed because this girl has managed to become friendly with two boys outside your crowd and is handing you some empty chatter about her dating technique.

If you honestly feel that she is losing her dating balance, and if you honestly care, you might plan some interesting activities—weiner roasts, parties, etc.—with your own crowd to lure her back to your approved date-bait lists. But be sure you are not making a mistake before you mark this young gal for the gone gosling department and if you still think it wise to discontinue the friendship, don't be disloyal enough to "explain why." You could always be wrong because, if a girl can "neck with two boys" and "walk home" at the same time—that's an item for the books.

SOX WIN, 9-6; PLAY CHARITY GAME TONIGHT

BEARS PICK NEW ALL-STAR GAME TRAINING SITE

BY EDWARD PRELL.

The Chicago Bears, opponents of the collegians in the 11th College All-Star game in Evanston on Aug. 30, will set up their training camp at St. Joseph's [Ind.] college in Collegeville. This surprise announcement was made last night by Ralph Brizzolara, general manager of the professional champions.

Hunk Anderson.

For nine consecutive seasons the Bears have trucked their equipment to Delafield, Wis., 100 miles away, and established quarters at St. John's Military academy. The reason for the switch, Brizzolara said, was because the increased activities of war time students at St. John's would not give the Bears adequate facilities. The agreement with St. Joseph's is for one year. St. Joseph's also is near Rensselaer, Ind.

Squad of at Least 40.

Brizzolara said that a minimum of 40 players would make the 80 mile trip to the new quarters on Aug. 8. Of this number, perhaps no more than a dozen will be carryovers from the squad which last year whipped the Washington Redskins for the title and qualified for the All-Star game annually sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. This will put a lot of pressure on the newcomers, five of whom were added to the roster yesterday.

The new players include Al Grygo, half back from South Carolina; Tipp Mooney, former Texas Christian back; Wallace Baucke, a back from Drake; Bernard Digris, Holy Cross guard, and Joe Locallo, a former guard at Waller High school.

Heartly [Hunk] Anderson, co-coach of the champions, is due to arrive soon from Detroit to start his part in preparing plays and strategy for the battle in Dyche stadium. Meanwhile, the other coaches, Luke Johnsos and Paddy Driscoll, have been conjuring up didoes to work on the collegians.

Doesn't Know About Sid.

The biggest question of the moment concerning the Bears—availability of Sid Luckman of the maritime service—went unanswered by Brizzolara. Any negotiations to play in this game will have to be made by Luckman himself, the general manager declared. He did express doubt that Bronko Nagurski, who made a terrific comeback last season, would play. The Bronk is an assistant coach at the University of California at Los Angeles.

Brizzolara, in amplifying his statement on changing camp sites, said that it became advisable in order to have the usual and necessary freedom of proper facilities and privacy for drills, lectures, and other functions.

Field House Available.

"After a study of numerous places," said Brizzolara, "the management decided to accept the courtesy of St. Joseph's. A careful survey of the territory, weather conditions, and facilities convinced us that these would be splendid for the purpose. There is a large fieldhouse available in event of rainy spells—large enough to run plays and throw passes.

"The Bears have enjoyed their contact with St. John's Military academy these last nine years. Altho it seems like breaking tradition, it appears that the new facilities fulfill all requirements."

The professionals will have a complete dormitory building on the school's private grounds at their disposal. They will remain at their Indiana base until the day before their battle with the All-Stars.

Tickets in the $4.40 and $3.30 sections of Dyche stadium still may be purchased. Mail orders should be sent to the All-Star Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower. Tickets also are on sale at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn st., and in the lobby of Tribune Tower.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

MICHIGAN'S Fritz Crisler didn't want his football team's game with Marquette in Milwaukee on Sept. 23 to be played at night, but he accepted a compromise. . . . The contest will start at 7 p. m. in what light's still left. . . . Then it will be finished under lights. . . . This is a big summer for the baseball fans in Pittsburg, Kas., home of Second Baseman Don Gutteridge of the league leading Browns and Catcher Ray Mueller of the Reds. . . . Before the Browns started a recent series with the Indians in Cleveland, Gutteridge received a pep message signed by hundreds of his home town fans. . . . The Browns then lost the series. . . . Mueller, who has established an iron man streak for catchers which still is growing, and Gutteridge are cousins, providing much back fence talk for their kinfolk. . . . Joe Laws, the Green Bay Packers' veteran half back, is proudly displaying a deputy sheriff's badge which entitles him to tackle law violators in the vicinity of Sturgeon Bay, Wis. . . . La Garde hospital in New Orleans has a lieutenant colonel playing on its baseball team. . . . He is Luther Gray from Georgetown university. . . . Lt. Bob Shurilla, former Marquette hurdler, who bailed out of a plane over enemy country last winter, writes that he is playing a trumpet in the orchestra at a German prison camp. . . . Bill O'Connor of Mount St. Michael's in New York, and Marty Wendell of Evanston's St. George High school, who were opponents in the schoolboy charity football game in New York last December, will be teammates this fall at Notre Dame. . . . O'Connor is an end, Wendell at half back. . . . Corp. Ed Yarc, who was a star muny golfer in Chicago, is a member of the Camp Pinedale [Cal.] air force team. . . . Lt. Frank Leahy, Notre Dame's athletic director and football coach on leave, is spending a short time at his South Bend home after completing his navy indoctrination course at Princeton.

War prosperous workers are booming Pacific Coast league baseball attendance to unprecedented heights. . . . Seattle drew as many fans in five weeks at home as it did all last year. . . . A recent Oakland-San Francisco six day series in San Francisco attracted 55,250, against a previous high of 37,000, set in 1940. . . . Maj. Ralph Jordan, Auburn basketball coach on leave, was wounded by shrapnel in the left arm in the invasion of Normandy. . . . Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher, the Iowa Seahawks' new football coach, was in his third season at St. Edwards university in Austin, Tex., before his eleven was beaten. . . . That was in 1924. . . . In 1927, he enjoyed another unbeaten campaign there. . . . Lt. Ray Apolskis, Chicago Cardinals' center, is with the marines in the Pacific. . . . It has been almost five years since the lights were turned on in Comiskey park to usher in night baseball. . . . There have been many big crowds and thrilling games played in that time under the arcs. . . . None deserves the support of fans more than tonight's contest between the White Sox and Senators, with net proceeds to go to the national war fund and the Red Cross.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Eight 3 year old fillies, including the Calumet farm's Miss Keeneland and Hyman Friedberg's Harriet Sue, have been named to start in the third running of the $15,000 added Cleopatra handicap today at Washington Park.

Miss Keeneland, winner of $30,975 as a 2 year old in 1943, a daughter of the famous Blenheim II., will have an opportunity to get back into the limelight after being pushed around pretty well by her stablemate, Twilight Tear, this year, but in Harriet Sue she'll have more competition than Twilight Tear has had so far.

Top Ranking Juvenile in 1943.

Harriet Sue was one of the top ranking juveniles last season and already this year has won $18,425, her latest and most important accomplishment being an impressive victory in the Arlington Matron handicap on July 8.

Miss Keeneland and Harriet Sue each will carry 118 pounds, top weight for the Cleopatra, and probably will go postward the favorites at 2 to 1 in the mile event.

Apprentice Stanley Freeman, who rode both winners in last Saturday's daily double which paid $412, duplicated his feat yesterday and then went on to win two more events, giving him four for the afternoon's eight race card.

The Jackson, Mich., lad first scored aboard Guy Martin's Anxiety in the opener and then booted in Hyman Friedberg's Bolo Gert in the second. A daily double ticket on the pair was worth $341.80. Anxiety paid $12 to win and Bolo Gert refunded $52.

Olympus Wins Victorian.

Freeman made it three in a row with Golden Harvest, another of Martin's stable, in the third. Again the odds were long and $18.40 was the mutuel payoff.

Freeman's string was broken by Kempton Knott in the fourth when Thomas Piatt's After Eight, a 27 to 1 shot, went over at $57. Ben Fogelson's Uhhuh, ridden by Tony Skoronski, took the fifth race from Freeman's mount, Short Life, which finished second, but the little apprentice came back into the winner's circle in the sixth, the $2,500 Iron Mask purse. He was up on Mrs. F. P. Letellier's Sun Flower, a 7 to 1 shot, and the return was $16.60.

Olympus, a 9 year old son of Gallant Fox and owned by J. J. L. Powers, won the feature race, the $3,000 Victorian handicap at a mile and a furlong. Jose Haritos was the winning jockey as Freeman sat this race out. J. C. Stone's Syl's Jimmy took the place and Happy Hour farm's Martian the show. Six went to the post and the winner paid $10. The day's mutuel handle was $833,690.

Mack Plans to Spend Million on Shibe Park

Philadelphia, Pa., July 25 (AP).—Connie Mack and the Philadelphia Athletics have a $1,000,000 post-war improvement and expansion program for Shibe park, the Philadelphia Record said tonight in a copyrighted story. The plans were said to call for an additional 3,000 seats by extension of boxes along the first and third base lines. The present seating capacity is 29,963.

CLOSE FINISH IN PLAYGROUND RACE

MILWAUKEE TO FACE ALL-STAR SQUAD TONIGHT

Milwaukee, Wis., July 25 (AP).—Milwaukee's Brewers, who are making a runaway of the American association race, will meet the pick of the league's talent from other clubs tomorrow night in the all-star game, which is being revived after a year's lapse.

The game will be a triple barreled affair in the way of aims. The service men's bat and ball fund will benefit; Mike Kelly, president of the Minneapolis club, observing his 50th year in the sport, will be honored, and the rest of the league will get a crack at the club that has piled up a 10 game margin in the pennant contest.

While the Brewers will have the advantage of playing as a unit in their home park, American association baseball writers who selected the all-star squad apparently have picked out the toughest opposition possible. Not including the pitchers, Nick Cullop, pilot of the Columbus Red Birds, who will direct the all-stars, has a squad boasting a collective .314 mark against Brewer pitching.

The all-star hurlers, Stan Partenheimer and Kenny Burkhart of Columbus, Vernon Curtis of Minneapolis, and Mel Deutsch of Louisville, have held the Brewers to only 3.2 runs per game in 11 tries at the leaders this year. In addition, Cullop will have Sylvester [Stretch] Goedde, towering Toledo southpaw, who has not faced the Brewers this season.

Andersson and Hagg to Try for New Marks

STOCKHOLM, July 25 (AP).—Arne Andersson and Gunder Hagg will make separate assaults on a pair of running records Monday night in the latter's home town of Gavle.

Cubs Rout Dodgers, 14 to 6, with 18 Hits; Near 5th Place

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 25.—Charley Grimm's Cubs encountered the demobilized Dodgers this afternoon and the experience was most delightful except for the cellar dwellers and 2,902 of the borough's diehards. The Chicagoans exploded 18 hits and the Leo Durocher outfit displayed the confusion now customary in their attempts to field, the whole thing totaling up to the latter's 22d defeat in their last 25 exhibitions. The score was 14 to 6. The victory, with the Phils' defeat by the Cards, advanced the Cubs into a virtual fifth place tie.

There was only one active Cub who failed to cut at least a slim dividend for himself during the giddy doings. The unfortunate was Japhet Lynn, the Coast league graduate who was making his second start for Grimm. The railroading right hander had a lead of 8 to 1 going into the home fourth, but promptly tumbled into such difficulties that his boss sent him on a vacation. Hank Wyse dropped into the vacancy.

Goodman Leads Attack.

Four pitchers were included in the Dodgers' display of basement bargains and the Cubs showed no partiality. However, they couldn't get starter Tom Warren out of the picture until a two run fourth had followed a juicy five run third and a one run first inning. But the subsequent changes had no appreciable effect on the Cubs' determination to make fun for themselves, particularly Ival Goodman, who collected four hits, and Bill Nicholson, who notched three and drove in as many runs to boost his pace-setting total to 67.

A bad throw by Barney Koch along with a single by Goodman gave the Cubs their first inning run, and the Dodgers tied it with Jack Bolling's double and Bob Bragan's scratch single in the second. All this was just a mild warmup for the five run third. Stan Hack singled and stole and Roy Hughes beat out a bunt. He also stole. Hack scored on Phil Cavarretta's fly and Nicholson singled to score Hughes. Nick also stole, but the umps were tired of the play so called him out. Goodman singled and Lou Novikoff got a single when Eddie Stanky fell on his seat trying to catch a popup. Don Johnson was passed, filling the bases, and Dewey Williams cleaned 'em up with a two bagger.

Hack Starts Rally.

Hack singled to open the fourth and after getting one man out, Warren walked three in a row, forcing Hack to score. After Ralph Branca had relieved Warren, Novikoff socked a fly that sent Cavarretta home. Then Lynn proceeded to get himself banished in the home half. Three hits and a pass were produced by the first five batters and, with two out, the rookie issued another pass, so Wyse stepped in and ended the flurry.

Some guy by the name of Charley Fuchs was trying to pitch when the Cubs made it 10 to 3 in the sixth. Hughes tripled and scored on Cavarretta's out and Nicholson, after surviving on an error, got around to the plate on singles by Goodman and Novikoff.

Next in the Dodger pitching parade was Hal Gregg, who was welcomed at the start of the seventh by Wyse's single. A pass to Hughes and doubles by Cavarretta and Nicholson followed to change the score to 13 to 3.

The Cubs scored their last run in the ninth on Nicholson's single and Goodman's fourth hit—a single.

The White Sox yesterday survived a streak of early inning befuddlement against the Senators in Comiskey park, then enjoyed a big five run fourth inning and subsequent milder attacks to win the series opener, 9 to 6. This was calculated to put them in a sharp mood for tonight's third annual White Sox War Fund game with their seventh place opponents in Comiskey Park.

Bill Dietrich was the main sufferer from three errors which figured in five of the six runs scored by the Senators. After five innings, Bill retired and watched his successor, Whistling Jack Wade, give almost a perfect exhibition. He walked the first batter to face him in the sixth, Johnny Sullivan, who was cut down trying to steal after Alejandro Carrasquel had fanned. Then Wade mowed down the Senators in order, throwing called third strikes past two Senators in the eighth.

No. 11 for Dietrich.

This made Dietrich forget his earlier unhappiness as he was credited with the victory, his 11th against eight defeats.

White Sox officials said last night that advance sale for the War Fund game and accompanying program of field events and music by the Great Lakes band, had reached $11,500. Last year's war fund game in Comiskey Park was the most successful of all American League similar enterprises, almost $34,000 going into the charity till. All profits from tonight's game will go to the National War Fund and the Red Cross. Every one, including players, will pay to get into the park.

Sox Delay Celebration.

The victory yesterday represented the one the White Sox had failed to get on Monday night to celebrate the new 2 year contract signed by Manager Jim Dykes. Ralph Hodgin, the current hottest hitter among the Sox, singled and tripled as his contribution to yesterday's 14 hit splurge. This gave him 17 hits in 27 times at bat over a stretch of seven games.

The first Sox offender in the field was Ed Carnett, who played Joe Kuhel's short high fly badly with one away in the first inning, for a two-base error. Harlond Clift singled, and Stan Spence brought in both runners with a tremendous triple to left center.

The Sox picked up their first run in the third. Le Roy Schalk singled to left and took second on George Case's fumble. Schalk was trapped between second and third on Carnett's sharp grounder to Haefner. John Dickshot's single and Hodgin's fly scored Carnett.

Tresh Opens Five Run Fourth.

After Hillis Layne doubled in the fourth, Guy Curtright failed to catch up with Rick Ferrell's high fly on the right field line which went for a triple and a 3 to 1 lead.

Mike Tresh, who had three straight singles, opened the five run Sox fourth with a single to center. Then followed a single by Skeeter Webb and a walk to Dietrich which filled the bases. Schalk's single to left scored two and on Clift's wild

Keltner Hits Homer with Bases Loaded.

Cleveland, O., July 25 (AP).—Rookie Steve Gromek blanked the New York Yankees with six hits and struck out 10 as the Cleveland Indians triumphed, 10 to 0 tonight. The victory was the Indians' eighth in the last nine games.

Cleveland pounded Hank Borowy for five runs in the first inning, Ken Keltner accounting for four of them with a home run with the bases loaded.

COSSITT AND FORBES LOSE IN JUNIOR GOLF

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The younger set in golf, which always has shown a fine disregard for holders of championships and other honors, put on one of its better uprisings of the season yesterday afternoon in the second round of the Chicago District Golf association's annual junior closed tournament at the Hinsdale club.

The victims were George Forbes of Rockford, defending champion, and Charley Cossitt of La Grange, winner of the qualifying medal on Monday by virtue of a 75. George and Charley won their first round bouts quite comfortably yesterday morning, but they were eliminated in short order in the afternoon. Forbes succumbed to Howard Whiteway of St. Charles, 6 and 5, and young Dewey Fagerburg of the home club dropped Cossitt, 7 and 6.

Open Champ Advances.

Sole survivor of the titled favorites was Jack Coyle, the Springfield youth, who last week won the C. D. G. A. junior open championship at Medinah. Coyle defeated Bob Hrubes of Aurora, 6 and 5, the same margin by which he won his afternoon match from Chuck Wallace of Aurora.

The semi-finals will be decided over 18 holes this afternoon, and tomorrow's championship match calls for 36 holes.

Pro Honored

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

No, that isn't a twin brother standing with Joe MacMorran, professional at the Indian Hill Golf club. Rather, it is a large photographic cutout of Joe, who was honored by club members yesterday for his 25 years of service to the organization.

MacMorran Given Tribute at Indian Hill

Joe MacMorran day was observed at the Indian Hill club yesterday in honor of the 25th anniversary of the veteran pro's arrival at the north side club. Nearly 200 members participated in the occasion by playing golf and attending the silver anniversary dinner in the evening.

MacMorran, long a leader in Chicago golf, belongs to the group of Scottish pros who did much to popularize golf in this country. Born in Rutherglen, Lanarkshire, Scotland, he began his golf career as a caddy at the Troon Golf club in Troon, Ayrshire, Scotland. He later became pro at the same club and came to the United States in 1914.

After serving two years as assistant pro at Exmoor and two years as pro at the old North Shore club in Kenilworth, he went to Indian Hill as pro in 1919. His son, Tom, who played at Northwestern, is a lieutenant in the army air forces and has received the distinguished flying cross and the air medal following 30 bombing missions over Germany.

All prizes yesterday were awarded on a basis of foursomes. The low gross foursome consisted of Lt. James L. Garard, 75; George Kelley, 86; R. R. Starrett, 77, and J. G. Searle, 79, with a total of 317.

Sox Score 5 in 4th, Beat Senators, 9-6

throw to the plate, Dietrich took third and Schalk second. Carnett's double past Kuhel scored the pair and Ed came in on Hodgin's single.

The Senators' fifth inning began quietly with Case flying out. Then Kuhel singled to center. Cliff rolled an easy double play ball to Schalk, who fumbled, Kuhel reaching third and Cliff first. Webb gave similar treatment to a ground ball hit by Spence, Kuhel scoring. Ed Boland and Layne hit successive singles for the two tying runs. Ferrell then hit a double play ball to Webb and this time there was no fumble act.

Sox Score Again in Eighth.

NLRB ACCUSED OF FOSTERING RAIDS BY CIO

AFL Official Charges Kearns Leads Attack.

Michael Quill, Communist president of the CIO Transport Workers union, thru his Chicago representative, Matt Kearns, is attempting to raid three AFL unions with long established contracts with employers, and is receiving the support of the national labor relations board, Don Burrows, international representative of the AFL International Association of Machinists, charged yesterday.

In another attempted raid by Kearns on the independent union of employes of the Chicago Motor Coach company, Kearns was arrested last Saturday on a charge of assaulting a trustee of the independent union. The trustee charged that Kearns assaulted him because he was leading the fight against Kearns' attempt to take over. Kearns will appear in South State Street court this morning to face the assault charges.

NLRB Grants Hearings.

Burrows explained that for several years the AFL unions of engineers, laborers, and machinists have had contracts with the Consumers company, the Material Service corporation, the Elmhurst Chicago Stone company, and the Dolese & Sheppard company, covering employes employed in quarries and pits.

Early this year, Burrows said, Kearns petitioned the NLRB for an election among the employes of these four companies, but the petition was denied. Last month Kearns petitioned again, and the NLRB is conducting hearings, one of which will be held today.

Contracts in Effect for Years.

"The NLRB is conducting hearings on Kearns' petition when it knows that the AFL unions have had contracts with the companies for years," Burrows continued. "The NLRB was formed to be impartial. In this instance it is definitely partial to the CIO and is fostering dissension among our members at a time when such raiding tactics are definitely out for the duration of the war. If an AFL union had petitioned under the same circumstances, the petition would have been thrown out immediately."

Samuel Shapiro, attorney for the AFL laborers' and the AFL engineers' union, who has been appearing before the NLRB in this case, said the CIO's interference and the NLRB's recognition of the petition would result in labor strife if the NLRB were to rule for the CIO when the AFL has held contracts with the employers for many years.

Boy Hurt When He Falls Under Truck; Seek Driver

John Bucaro, 5, 930 Hudson av., was seriously injured last night when he fell under the wheels of a melon truck in front of his home. The driver left the scene, and police are searching for him. Police said the youngster and other boys were hitching rides on the rear of the truck when the accident occurred. Young Bucaro was taken to the Children's Memorial hospital.

BIGGEST GOLD RUSH IN HISTORY IS ON IN CANADA

Stake Claims Over All of Ontario.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., July 25.—The "biggest gold rush in the history of Ontario mining is on," according to officials of the department of mines. The activity affects all known camps and newer sections, stretching across Ontario from Quebec to Manitoba and from North Bay northwesterly to the shores of Hudson Bay.

In the first six months of 1944 mining claims recorded numbered 5,570, against 1,799 for the comparable period of 1943.

Millions of dollars of development money are involved in this new search for gold since last autumn. Many new companies have been incorporated in Ontario for the purpose of developing gold properties.

Restrictions Hold Up Development.

"Were it possible to remedy the man power situation and to remove development limitations imposed by Ottawa, gold production would leap above the all-time record output of 1940," one official said.

Areas of greatest activity, as reflected by the number of claims recorded or transferred, are:

All the territory from the Quebec boundary westward thru Larder lake, Kirkland lake, and southwestward into Matachewan; from the Quebec boundary to the west and northwest thru Porcupine on what has been called the eastern extension of the Porcupine break; Missinabi, in Algoma; Red lake in northwestern Ontario, and Dogpaw lake south of Kenora, where a wide area has been blanketed by claims since last fall.

Expect Rich Strikes.

Officials predicted "that before the snow flies, stories of rich finds will trickle south and a concentrated rush into a specific area will be on." They pointed out prospecting parties have hit into many new areas this year and that, if hopes are realized, many new mines will provide jobs for men who are demobilized.

Reason for the unprecedented interest in mining, they said, was that "there's lots of money floating around; people believe the end of the war is close at hand and that gold is pretty well assured for the future."

DOOM LA SALLE STREET TUNNEL FOR FUTURE USE

Engineers Call Repair Cost Too Great.

Announcement that the city council finance committee will request a $35,000 appropriation for closing the old street car tunnel in La Salle st. was regarded by traffic experts as virtual abandonment of hope that some use can be made of the tube.

Altho it could be rehabilitated and become of prime importance as a passageway for automobiles while the La Salle st. bridge is being raised and lowered for river traffic, engineers who have made studies are generally agreed that the benefit gained would be overbalanced by disadvantages.

Cut by Subway.

The present condition of the structure is one drawback. The tunnel was used from 1904 to 1938 by street cars. Then it was closed because the Lake st. subway, which is not yet completed, cut thru it. Before it could be used a portion of it would have to be dug deeper to go under the subway.

The grade from the river to the present south exit at Randolph st. is regarded as too steep for auto traffic and it is estimated that this exit would have to be moved to Washington st. to get a proper grade.

Lacks Ventilation.

Ventilating apparatus also would have to be installed at great expense, engineers said. They pointed out that the tube would accommodate only two traffic lanes. Their position, and the city's, is that the best solution is to close up the tunnel and thus get the full width of La Salle st. between Lake and Randolph sts. for motorists.

Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr. of the city engineering staff said the building of the bridge destroyed most of the tunnel's usefulness.

MRS. LOLA LLOYD, LONG PACIFIST WORKER, DIES

Mrs. Lloyd was a member of the Women's Consultative committee for the league of nations from 1930 to 1938 and was international chairman of the Campaign for World Government, which she helped organize in 1937. With the late Jane Addams, she founded the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom in 1915, and the same year was a member of the Ford peace ship mission.

FRANKLIN PARK OFFERS $25,000 FOR CITY WATER

Public Works Commissioner Hewitt said yesterday that Franklin Park, a village of 5,000 persons, had submitted a request for city water service, accompanied by an offer to pay Chicago $25,000 toward the cost of extending city mains to the village limits.

It was the first time, Hewitt said, that a village asking for city water had volunteered to share the expense of laying new mains. Thomas Lofgren, acting president of the Franklin Park board of trustees, told Hewitt that his village would use 400,000 gallons of water a day, and would pay 7.36 cents a 1,000 gallons. The cost to the village of providing pipes, pumps, and a reservoir for the city water would be $150,000, Lofgren estimated.

Hewitt said it would cost Chicago $80,000 to extend an existing main 10,000 feet from School st. and Newland av., to Belmont and Pontiac avs., at the city limits. Lofgren said Franklin Park would pay $25,000 of this.

SOLDIER'S WIFE FINED $200 FOR TRYST IN HOME

Judge Irwin B. Clorfene fined Mrs. Louise Barclay, 28, of 8410 Green Bay av., $200 and costs in Women's court yesterday after her husband, Pvt. Alexander Barclay, 30, described arriving home Monday on an unexpected furlough from Camp Wolters, Tex., and finding his wife in the arms of another soldier.

Mrs. Barclay was taken to the Bridewell to begin serving her fine at $1.50 per day.

Barclay testified that he routed the stranger with a hammer. He said the man, only partly dressed, seized his uniform and fled.

Mrs. Barclay appeared in court with two black eyes, which she said she suffered when her husband struck her as he was fighting the other man. She did not deny the charges, but said her husband had written her only once since going into the army.

LORILLARD.

I would appreciate a report on P. Lorillard company. Is profit reflecting the growth of sales?—A. K.

Answer: Lorillard's sales of cigarets, smoking tobacco, and other tobacco products increased each year since 1940, amounting last year to 117.3 million dollars, compared with 78.9 four years before. Operating earnings also increased substantially, but net income after taxes decreased to $3,572,362 from $3,853,168 in 1940.

In the interval the federal tax bill rose from $1,272,351 to $4,591,274. The cost of goods sold, exclusive of depreciation and income taxes, remained at approximately 79 per cent of sales from 1940 thru 1942 but last year increased to 81.5 per cent. Selling, general, and administrative expenses, however, dropped to 10.5 per cent last year from 13.5 four years earlier.

Average price for the 1943 tobacco crops was the highest since 1919, and this factor may become more of a detriment to the profits of tobacco processing companies than has been the case so far, as lower cost inventories are worked off.

Lorillard's earnings on the common stock in 1943 were $1.28 a share on 2,246,348 shares of $10 par, compared with an average of $1.64 a share for the four preceding years on approximately 1,871,900 shares. Dividend payments in recent years have totaled $1.20 a share annually. Last October 374,391 additional common shares were sold.

Also outstanding at the close of last year were 98,000 $7 cumulative preferred shares [$100 par], and a funded debt of $27,042,400. Net working capital was $69,926,166.

CUT TELEPHONE RATES TO SOUTH AMERICAN CITIES

Washington, D. C., July 25 (AP).—The American Telephone and Telegraph company will reduce rates for telephone calls from the United States to Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, Colombia, and Haiti on Aug. 1, the federal communications commissions announced today. Calls to Puerto Rico from 16 states will be reduced the same day.

The three minute week-day rate on calls to Argentina, Brazil, Chile, and Peru from Atlantic seaboard points will be reduced from $15 to $12; from some southern and mid-western states from $17.25 and $18.75, respectively, to $12, and from the mountain and far western states from $18.75 and $19.50 to $15.

Calls to Colombia costing $9 to $13.50 will be reduced to $7.50 and $12, respectively; calls to Haiti ranging from $9 to $13.50 will cost from $6 to $12, and rates to Puerto Rico will be reduced by 75 cents or $1.50 from points in 16 states and the District of Columbia.

RUBBER CHIEF RESIGNS; SAYS WORK IS DONE

Recommends WPB Take Over Job.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 25.—Bradley Dewey today announced his resignation as rubber director, effective Sept. 1, and disclosed he has recommended rescinding of the Presidential order that established his office because the synthetic rubber industry is firmly established. He said America's synthetic plants are producing at a rate in excess of pre-war imports of crude rubber and that the unsolved problem in tire making is man power.

Bradley Dewey.

Dewey recommended that the functions of his office be taken over by the war production board. C. E. Wilson, WPB executive vice chairman, wrote him that an appropriate division would be established to handle the program.

War Mobilization Director Byrnes wrote Dewey he approved the plan and was recommending to President Roosevelt that he rescind the executive order "that granted the rubber director special powers."

Warns Against Waste.

Altho asserting the synthetic program, made necessary when crude rubber imports were cut off when the Japanese overran the Malay peninsula and the Dutch East Indies, is on firm ground, Dewey emphasized his statement is not a signal for waste of rubber or tires by use or speed, and warned it does not mean tires will be released to "A" card holders.

"There is still work to be done if the country is to be kept on wheels," said Dewey. "During the three month period ended June 30 we produced at the rate of 836,000 tons a year, but that doesn't mean we are going to make all the passenger car tires that can be used. That program calls for 22 million tires this year and it will be met."

Dewey said he was not being critical of Paul V. McNutt's war man power commission when he asserted that man power is the remaining unsolved problem in tire making.

"I'm trying to be factual," he said. "Less than 6,000 men—about half the number to be strong, husky men—stand between the present shortage of tires [for war and essential civilian use] and ability to meet estimated requirements. The achievement of production is being impeded by man power shortages in certain labor areas."

WPB Has More Power.

He said he believed the new organization in WPB would be able to get more tires made because it will work thru WPB's production executive committee which has the power to establish priorities and assert the need of labor in certain industries. Dewey did not have this power.

He said the war department is aware of the need for tire makers and has been releasing them from military service to go into the plants. Such men make truck and bus tires, and until enough are found the present shortage in heavy duty tires will be so critical as to endanger essential over-the-road civilian transportation and the efficiency of some military effort, he said.

Dewey forecast a good post-war future for the synthetic rubber industry and predicted it will set the price for crude in the near future. He said it probably would be manufactured at about 12 cents a pound and could be sold profitably at from 15 to 16 cents a pound.

SUBSIDY SLASH FORECAST LIFTS WHEAT FUTURES

A substantial increase in the demand for flour, said to be based on prospects the government subsidy on wheat would be reduced 3 to 5 cents a bushel, brought mills into the market as persistent buyers of wheat futures yesterday and at no time were prices on the Chicago Board of Trade below Monday's final level. Closing trades were near the highest at gains of ⅝ to 1 cent a bushel. Brokers said if the subsidy were reduced to the extent expected it would make the rate on hard varieties of wheat 10 to 12 cents a bushel, compared with 25½ cents recently. The subsidy of 4½ cents on soft wheat is expected to be eliminated.

Short covering developed in rye and disclosed a lack of offerings and futures advanced 1⅝ to 2⅛ cents. Oats gained ⅝ cent and barley ½ to ⅞ cent.

Checking Accounts Rise 464 Millions in Week

Washington, D. C., July 25 (AP).—Checking accounts increased 464 million dollars in banks in 101 large cities in the week ended July 19 above the preceding week, the federal reserve board reported today. This brought the total to 32 billion 945 millions, an increase of 441 millions above a year ago.

ADDRESS A B 271, TRIBUNE

Tribune Plant Boosts Rate of Alcohol Yields

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THOROLD, Ont., July 25.—The manufacture of raw material for synthetic rubber from a waste by-product of wood pulp mills, which was introduced to the western hemisphere a year ago by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE at its newsprint subsidiary here, is being perfected so that it can compete in the post-war market with natural rubber.

The raw material is alcohol salvaged from the brown sulphite liquor that is poured into streams and lakes at other wood pulp mills in America. With the additional apparatus now being installed, Dr. M. M. Rosten, Polish engineer consultant, calculates that by this fall the increased efficiency will reduce the synthetic cost below the 22 cents a pound of natural rubber.

The excellent quality of rubber made from alcohol from this source was established last fall and winter by a TRIBUNE road test sponsored by Rubber Director Bradley Dewey, who resigned his position today. In 25,000 miles of driving, including 90 miles an hour under a 130 degree sun in Death Valley, the test showed that the wearing quality of the synthetic tires was as good, if not better, than that of pre-war tires.

Alcohol Yield Increases.

Additional efficiency in the salvaging operation is increasing the alcohol yield. In the first months, the newsprint's plant here was making alcohol at a rate that furnished butadiene for rubber for 300,000 average sized tires a year. With the expanded capacity, it will produce enough for 500,000 tires a year.

It was for this war time service that THE TRIBUNE invested more than $600,000 in research. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher, announced at the dedication that he was not seeking profits from the venture. The newspaper's money was invested to develop a new source for alcohol, a critical war material needed for explosives and chemicals as well as for rubber. This it has developed.

The increased efficiency demonstrated here enlarges the potential alcohol yield from pulp mills if the war production board were to permit its further use by the wood pulp industry. Its use by other large mills in the United States and Canada would give an additional alcohol production of 86 million gallons a year, compared with previous estimates of 62 million gallons.

Represents $4,400,000 Tires.

From the 86 million gallons of alcohol could be manufactured enough butadiene for synthetic rubber for 34,400,000 tires, size 6x16. Butadiene comprises 75 per cent of the ingredients of buna-s, the government's standard synthetic.

The potential source of this alcohol, waste sulphite liquor, now is a disposal problem costly to society as well as to the pulp mills. Tests here indicate that the processing of this waste reduces pollution by half.

The process consists of fermenting with a mild sulphurous solution the natural sugars washed from wood in pulp manufacture. The acidity is neutralized with lime and then yeast is added to convert the sugar to alcohol. Distillation, somewhat standardized, separates the alcohol from the water and foreign matter. As the yeast is reproductive, it is reused in repeated batches.

Reduce Fermentation Period.

Recent refinements include a modification of the pulp cooking process so as to yield a more concentrated sugar solution in the sulphite liquor, about a 2 per cent solution. The fermentation period has been reduced from 21 hours last year to 13 hours, as contrasted with 70 to 90 hours required in Sweden, where the process has been used for a quarter of a century. Another improvement removes sulphur dioxide gas and another recovers sulphur.

The Swedes long have used the waste sulphite liquor process because other sources of alcohol, such as grains, molasses, and petroleum, are scarce. In introducing the process to the western hemisphere THE TRIBUNE saw a possibility of war time shortages of grains, sugar, and petroleum. The war production board in Washington, D. C., lacking this foresight, two years ago refused priorities for the construction of processing plants.

Built Without Priorities.

The plant was built by the Ontario Paper company, a subsidiary of THE TRIBUNE, without the aid of the requested priorities. The WPB more recently has authorized the Puget Sound Pulp and Timber company to build a waste sulphite liquor plant at Bellingham, Wash., which is to have a producing capacity of 2 million gallons of alcohol annually.

The WPB, in rejecting the original proposals, pointed to large reserves of grains in Canada and the United States. These reserves have dwindled.

Ban on Corn to Prevent Bourbon Whisky Making

Frankfort, Ky., July 25 (AP).—Kentucky's traditional bourbon whisky will not be made during the production "holiday" next month because WPB has banned the use of its raw material, corn, Albert B. Blanton, general manager of a large Frankfort distillery, said today. Instead Kentucky distillers will make beverage spirits for blending with old whiskies and for making gin and similar products.

BUTLER BROTHERS

The Board of Directors has declared the regular quarterly dividend of thirty-seven and one-half cents (37½c) per share on Preferred Stock and a dividend of fifteen cents (15c) per share on Common Stock outstanding of Butler Brothers, both payable September 1, 1944 to holders of record at the close of business August 3, 1944. EDISON STUDIES REFUNDING OF TWO BIG LOANS

Total of 178 Million Dollars Involved.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The Commonwealth Edison company is considering alternative plans for the refunding of all or part of 178 million dollars of bonds, Charles Y. Freeman, chairman of the board, announced yesterday. Registration of this amount with the securities and exchange commission, it is said, would set a new record for SEC registrations. The largest previous filing was 175 million of American Telephone and Telegraph bonds in October, 1936.

The operation would include the refunding of 98 million dollars of 3⅜ per cent bonds of the Commonwealth Edison company and 80 million dollars of Public Service Company of Northern Illinois 3½ per cent bonds, both issues due in 1968.

Would Strengthen Finances.

"Because of the many factors involved, the studies have not reached a point where a definite program can be determined," a company statement said, "but consummation this year of some refunding program would, in the opinion of the management, not only add to the strength of the Commonwealth Edison group of companies, but would dispose of major financing operations for some time."

The company said it is expected that any new bonds to be issued in such a program would be marketed publicly thru a nation-wide group of underwriters.

If the company has the securities offered for sale to the public it will reverse the policy followed in its last big transaction when, in May, 1939, it sold $114,500,000 of bonds privately to a group of eastern insurance companies. The sale aroused much resentment on the ground it deprived middle western investors of an opportunity to place their money advantageously and it deprived middle western financial houses of a substantial amount of business.

Sought to Beat War Turmoil.

The 1939 sale was largely attributed to SEC requirements which put a time handicap on a speedy operation. It was said at the time the company was trying to get the securities placed before the uncertainties of war affected the bond market.

However, as late as 1942 the company sold bonds privately. In January of that year 25 million of Commonwealth Edison 3 per cent first mortgage bonds were sold at 100 to 14 insurance companies.

Among the last occasions when Commonwealth Edison sold obligations publicly were in 1938 when in August, Halsey-Stuart & Co. headed a nation-wide banking group which sold 33 million of 3½ per cent first mortgage bonds and in November Halsey, Stuart headed a group of 117 investment houses which underwrote 25 million of convertible debentures.

The refunding of the bonds in the proposed current operation may be considered a refinement in the broad integration program started in 1937 by Commonwealth Edison for the unification of its associated companies.

Subsidiary Operations Integrated.

In that program—completed in 1939—the parent company, Commonwealth Edison, carried out a number of financing operations by which it integrated Public Service, Western United Gas and Electric company, and Illinois Northern Utilities company activities with its own. The program gave Commonwealth Edison virtual 100 per cent ownership of all stock in the affiliated or subsidiary companies and the securities of these companies were later largely replaced with Edison securities.

Freeman said yesterday that the present studies do not contemplate retiring the remaining $26,142,000 of 3½ per cent convertible debentures outstanding. The coupon rate of the proposed new securities is a matter for consideration, but obviously it would have to be below the 3½ per cent rate of the bonds to be refunded.

500 JUNE STRIKES RESULT IN 680,000 LOST MAN-DAYS

Washington, D. C., July 25 (AP).—The bureau of labor statistics today reported 500 strikes in June, but said strike activity generally was below the 1944 high water mark of May when the strike total was 610. Workers involved in June strikes totaled 155,000 compared with 290,000 in May. Man-days of idleness in June totaled 680,000, compared with 1,400,000 in May.

Business Men Urge Federal 5% Sales Tax

Washington, D. C., July 25 (AP).—A post-war tax plan emphasizing incentives for private enterprise and risk capital investments, and proposing a 5 per cent federal retail sales tax, was presented to the congressional staff on taxation today by a group of business men from St. Paul and Minneapolis.

It provides for a 60 per cent peace time reduction in the over-all tax burden.

Known as "the twin cities plan," it suggests that 40 per cent of dividends paid to individuals by corporations be exempt from the personal income tax as a stimulus for investments.

Outlined to Tax Experts.

Representatives of the business men who devised the tax proposals outlined them to Colin F. Stam, chief, and other members of the staff of tax experts employed by congress. This staff is under orders from the house ways and means committee and the senate finance committee to outline suggestions to congress for post-war taxation.

The twin cities plan is based on expectation of a 120 billion dollar annual national income after the war, twice the 10-year pre-war average, and an annual budget and tax load of 18 billions, compared with pre-war federal expenditures below 10 billions, and taxes of about 5 billions. Federal tax collections run about 43 billions, with a war time budget of about 100 billions annually.

Under the twin cities proposal the over-all burden on individuals would be cut in half and an even larger percentage reduction effected in corporation levies.

Substitute for Part.

The sales tax, if approved by congress, would replace a part of individual income levies. The 40 per cent normal and surtax rates against corporations would be retained but such war time revenue expedients as the excess profits taxes on corporations would be erased.

Treasury department tax experts sat in the conference with the Minnesotans and the congressional tax staff.

Presenting the twin cities plan were John J. Connolly, secretary and general counsel, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing company, St. Paul; Carl P. Herbert, director, St. Paul bureau of municipal research; G. Sidney Houston, manager, investment research, First Bank Stock corporation, St. Paul and Minneapolis, and Allen Wagner, assistant to the secretary, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing company.

Borden Boosts Interim Dividend to 40 Cents

The Borden company yesterday declared an interim dividend of 40 cents, an increase of 10 cents over the dividend paid a year ago.

REPORT BUS, TRUCK TIRE CRISIS WILL GET FULL WPB ATTENTION

Washington, D. C., July 25 (AP).—A shortage of truck and bus tires so serious as to threaten essential civilian transport will be given to the full war production board for solution, it was reported today.

The board will weigh a plan, approved yesterday by the WPB requirements committee, under which about 145,000 of the big tires would be diverted to truck and bus operators from three sources: The army, export quotas set aside for the foreign economic administration, and supplies earmarked for new vehicles.

The army reportedly was called upon to provide about half, or some 70,000 tires. Army spokesmen in the requirements committee protested this as too large, and WPB Vice Chairman Anderson agreed to take the matter before the full board.

CONVERSION PERIOD OVER-EMPHASIZED, KETTERING ASSERTS

Indianapolis, Ind., July 25 [Special].—Predicting a high rate of industrial employment for the first five or six years after the war, Charles F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors corporation in charge of research, said here today in an interview, that he believed too much ballyhoo and emphasis are being placed on the time industry will need for the so-called conversion period. He explained that conversions are made continually and should be considered as nothing more than necessary adjustments periods, whether during peace or war.

The speed with which the federal government gets contracts closed and adjusted, Kettering said, will be a dominant factor in industrial welfare and employment. He added that the automotive industry would be obliged to begin with 1942 standards "for the simple reason that neither men nor materials could be spared from war production to work out new developments and standards." These will come quickly, however, when war demands are eased, he predicted.

Plan for Large Gain in Sales, C.E.D. Advises

Moderate spending after the war rather than a rush to obtain scarce merchandise is to be hoped for during the post-war reconversion, the committee for economic development said yesterday. It said that dangerous inflationary results might ensue from too free spending while goods remain scarce. On the other hand, if the public hesitates too long before buying a depression with serious unemployment could result.

The committee's comment is contained in a handbook brought out as a guide to wholesalers and retailers in plotting their post-war business programs.

The committee declared that wholesaling and retailing must be geared to a post-war expansion of production and sales at least one-third larger than the 1940 activities in these fields.

"Getting the nation's business under way, when war needs relax, will start with the retailers and their customers," the committee said. "Wholesalers will pass goods along to the retailers. The spark that fires the engine is demand.

"The millions of retail stores in America, well managed, will stimulate the tremendous pulling force of demand in our 137 million people when peace has returned. Then employment will rise to high levels in wholesale, retail, and manufacturing establishments alike. The decisions made by retailers now, for their own future, will influence the future welfare of the nation."

KAISER COMPANY TO RUN BUSINESS OF STD. GYPSUM

Oakland, Cal., July 25 (AP).—Henry Kaiser and Sam A. Perkins, president of Standard Gypsum company, announced today an agreement under which the Henry J. Kaiser company will manage the gypsum company which controls deposits from the Gulf of California to Alaska.

The Kaiser management will establish and manage production, handling, and manufacturing facilities for plaster and wallboard, and will develop gypsum agricultural products. It intends to produce steel-framed prefabricated housing sections and plastic cement, similar to stucco, for exteriors.

Kaiser will take over San Marcos Island in the Gulf of California, production properties in Nevada and Washington, and plants at Long Beach and Seattle.

STOCK MARKET RISES, TRADE VOLUME FALLS

War News Viewed as Bullish.

New York, July 25 (AP).—Altho the stock market rallied today, speed was lacking and dealings were among the smallest of the last two months when they slid well below the million mark.

Customers reinstated some commitments on the belief the recent substantial drop had corrected the extended upswing and put the list in position to respond to pent-up investment demand when it is unleashed.

Good war news, plus the possibility of Germany's collapse, was considered bullish over the long range, but many customers remained out of the market on the belief a temporary tumble will result should the European conflict end before industry is prepared for reconversion.

Advances at Opening.

Improved tendencies appeared at the opening and closing gains of fractions to two points were widespread. The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.4 at 54.8, the best advance since last Wednesday. The market narrowed to 865 issues. Of these, 588 were up and 134 down. Transfers of 831,423 shares compared with 1,005,030 yesterday and were a low mark for five-hour session since June 2.

Prominent gainers included Santa Fe, New York Central, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Boeing, American Telephone, Western Union A, Anaconda, American Can, du Pont, Allied Chemical, J. C. Penney, Pepsi-Cola, and York corporation. Pacific Tin was active at a top for 1944. United States Steel moved ahead 1¼ to 59¼.

RAILS LEAD BONDS UP.

New York, July 25 (AP).—The bond market closed higher today as advancing rails imparted a strong tone. The Associated Press rail average was up 0.3. Industrial, foreign, and low yield composites were unchanged. The utility average declined 0.1. Transactions totaled $7,617,200 against $6,813,700 yesterday.

Impressive advances were made by all Baltimore and Ohio bonds with issues of 1995 stamped A up 1⅝ and 2000 stamped D up 1½.

CHICAGO SHARES GAIN.

Prices advanced on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in turnover of 28,000 shares. Volume leaders included Commonwealth Edison and Butler Brothers, each up ¼; Libby, McNeill and Libby, up ¾; Domestic Industries, unchanged, and New York Central, up ⅝. Spiegel climbed 1½ points to close at 11⅞ for the only new 1944 high.

ANGLO-AMERICAN TALKS STARTED ON OIL CONTROL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 25.—British and American delegates today opened a diplomatic conference on the formation of an international commission to govern the development and distribution of world petroleum resources. In preliminary stages of committee organization they were reported agreeing that control can be achieved without production allocations or sales quotas.

The delegates met briefly at the state department late in the day, heard a welcome from Secretary of State Hull, and appointed subcommittees to prepare an agenda. They will meet again Thursday.

Recommendations of the oil experts were understood to provide for equal opportunities for Americans and Britons to develop world oil resources, free access to these resources by consuming countries, conservation of the resources, and orderly marketing.

Butler's Profit Is Reduced by Price Squeeze

Conditions in the first six months of 1944 were less favorable than in 1943 for Butler Brothers, wholesale house, T. B. Freeman, president, said in a letter to stockholders yesterday. Increased merchandise costs moving toward stable government price ceilings reduced gross profit on sales, he said, while efforts to free inventories of merchandise that will be unwanted after the war necessitated larger mark-downs.

T. B. Freeman.

Despite many shortages the trend since last fall has been toward standard quality goods and demand for items made of wartime substitute materials has tapered off, he reported.

Profits 31 Cents a Share.

Net profit including that from the retail outlet was $561,443, or 31 cents a common share, after federal income tax provision of $1,448,000 and reserve for contingencies and post-war adjustments of $175,000. Earnings in the first half of 1943 were $662,284, or 41 cents a share, after provision of $1,750,000 for income taxes and $250,000 for contingencies and adjustments.

Brunswick-Balke-Collender company reported for the six months ended June 30 a net profit of $389,419, or 72 cents a common share. The figure is subject to final adjustments and acceptance of war contract termination claims. Net profit was $411,340, or 78 cents a share in the corresponding 1943 period.

Corn Products Refining company and subsidiary sales companies reported net profit for the half year of $3,284,939, or 96 cents a common share, compared with $3,994,724 or $1.24 a share in the 1943 period.

National Tea Gains.

The best half year showing since 1935 was reported by John McKinlay, chairman of the National Tea company. For the six months ended June 17, net profit was $223,830, or 28 cents a share, against $169,748, or 21 cents a share, a year ago. Sales were $45,283,929, an increase of $2,528,663.

"The management is anxious to pay dividends on the common stock at the earliest possible date," McKinlay said. "With the clearing up of accrued dividends on preferred stock, and the improvement in the company's financial position, we hope, if the year's earnings justify, that this may be possible."

People and Events

Leon J. Willien, head consultant on manufactured gas for the war production board, has been appointed associate director of the institute of gas technology at Illinois Institute of Technology, John I. Yellott, director of the gas institute, announced yesterday. Prior to his association with WPB, Willien was gas engineer with the Public Utility Engineering and Service corporation.

Leon J. Willien.

Two hundred seventy-two men and women whose years of service at the various Stewart-Warner corporation plants total more than 8,000 met in the Lake Shore club last night to be feted by the company and to organize a self governing group named the Quarter Century club. Phillip Willet, 81, who has been employed at the Bassick company, Stewart-Warner subsidiary in Bridgeport, Conn., since 1891, and is the oldest employe in point of service in any of the company's plants, was among those awarded diamond studded gold pins. Frank Schmelz will head the new club.

U.S. STEEL NET EARNINGS DOWN IN 2D QUARTER

Gain in Six Months; Sales Increase.

New York, July 25 (AP).—United States Steel corporation reported today net income of $15,354,917 in the quarter ended June 30, or $1.04 a common share, compared with $15,679,456, or $1.08 a share, a year earlier.

Directors declared a dividend of $1 a share on common stock and the usual $1.75 on the 7 per cent preferred—the same as paid in the last several years.

In the six months ended June 30 the corporation's net income was $32,382,533, or $2.27 a share, against $31,086,053, or $2.12 a share, a year ago.

Allowances Made for Taxes.

Irving S. Olds, chairman, said second quarter income was after allowances for estimated excess profits taxes and after allowance of $5,400,000 for estimated taxes applicable to the first quarter.

Products and services sold in the first half totaled $1,012,963,938 against $916,997,880 in the first half of 1943.

Shipments of finished steel products in the first half set a new record with 10,632,854 net tons, compared with 10,040,016 tons a year earlier.

Olds issued a statement concerning the campaign of the United Steelworkers of America [CIO] for wage increases which was the subject of a hearing before a panel of the war labor board.

Says Costs Would Climb.

Reviewing the various demands of the union, he said:

"It is estimated that these demands, other than the guaranteed annual wage, if granted and applied to all employes of the United States Steel corporation, would increase its employment cost by at least 286 million dollars. The wage rate increase of 17 cents an hour alone would amount on this basis to 137 millions.

"The potential cost to the corporation of the demanded guaranteed annual wage is speculated and could conceivably run the corporation's loss to a billion dollars or more in a year of small demand for steel such as 1932."

25 YEAR RECORD PEAK FOR JULY SET BY STEERS

A shortage of prime beef sent top grade steers to a new 25 year July peak of $17.75 a hundred pounds in the Chicago stock yards yesterday, only $1 below the highest July sale on record. It was paid for a consignment of New Mexico steers fed in an Iowa feedlot.

Other classes of cattle were steady to lower, with some sales down as much as 25 cents.

Ceiling prices were paid for most hogs in the lighter supply except for packing sows. Prices ranged from steady on stock that reached ceiling prices Monday, to as much as 50 cents higher on others. Lambs were steady to 25 cents higher.

ASK F. D. R. SEIZE WRIGHT PLANE ENGINE FACTORY

2,000 to 6,000 Are Out; 'Lockout'—CIO.

Cincinnati, O., July 25 (AP).—The second major labor dispute since D-day hit the $155,000,000 Wright Aeronautical corporation plant in Lockland today, with between 2,000 and 6,000 day shift workers idle as the result of a protest against asserted company suspension of all union officials and representatives as employes.

The union, a local of the CIO United Automobile Workers, demanded Presidential seizure of the government owned airplane engine factory.

The sprawling plant has been the scene of recurrent production difficulties, climaxed by a Truman committee investigation, resultant court martial of three army air forces inspection officers, and a racial issue strike which stopped the assembly line June 6, invasion day.

Company Officials Disagree.

Company officials reported that second shift workers appeared to be reporting in usual numbers, but there was no information whether the dispute was confined to the first shift or would spread during the night.

Today's dispute found the UAW, which coöperated with the company and AAF in ending the June strike, accusing the Wright management of "manhandling union people and refusing to abide by the contract."

Appeals to Roosevelt.

Robert Spitzmiller, local president, telegraphed an appeal to President Roosevelt to seize the plant, declaring production had "virtually ceased" and that all union officers, committeemen, and stewards, or workers' union representatives, had been suspended. In an earlier statement he asserted the union officers had been "locked out."

The company denied production was affected. It admitted that two of four foundries were idle and met Spitzmiller's claim that 5,000 to 6,000 day shift workers had left their jobs "in a mass reaction to company injustice" with the report that only 2,000 were idle.

Both company and union agreed that the dispute started last night in suspension of a union committeeman, Gilbert Thomas. A company statement accused him of "using abusive and obscene language in the presence of a woman employe" during investigation of a worker's transfer.

TWO CONVICTED IN HAUPT CASE SENT TO PRISON

Otto Richard Wergin and Walter Otto Froehling, sentenced to five year prison terms Saturday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes on a charge of misprision of treason, were removed from the county jail yesterday by deputy United States marshall and transported to the new federal penitentiary at Terre Haute, Ind. The two and their wives were accused of aiding Herbert Haupt, executed Nazi saboteur, during his secret visit in Chicago. Hans Max Haupt, father of the saboteur, was sentenced to life imprisonment and is now in the county jail awaiting an appeal. Haupt's wife, Erna, who agreed to denaturalization and internment for the duration of the war, was freed of treason charges, as were Mrs. Wergin and Mrs. Froehling.

Tighe Woods Leaves OPA for Commission in Navy

Tighe Woods, former Chicago real estate broker and official of the Chicago Real Estate board, has resigned as chief examiner for the Chicago area rent control office of the office of price administration to accept a commission at lieutenant [j. g.] in the naval reserve, it was announced yesterday by John F. McCarthy, rent director.

HOMES OF 2 JAPS IN WAR AGENCIES YIELD U. S. DATA

Fly Aid Quizzed After House Group Raid.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 25.—Congressional investigators today seized confidential government documents found in the living quarters of two Japanese employed by the government in war agencies.

Clarence F. Lea.

Inflammatory literature written by one of the Japs also was found. This was labeled by John Sirica, counsel for the special house committee investigating the federal communications commission which conducted the raid, as intended to stir up racial hatred among Negroes.

Chairman Lea [D., Cal.] immediately ordered a hearing at which the two Japs, Fred Nitta, 41, an alien born in Japan, and John Kitasaoko, American-born and therefore a citizen, were questioned at length. Further examination of the seized material would be necessary, Lea said, to determine whether there had been activities of a "criminal" nature.

One on Fly's Staff.

Nitta is employed in the eastern research institute, a branch of the office of strategic services, one of the most hush-hush of war agencies, and Kitasaoko is an editor in the foreign broadcast intelligence service of the FCC, reporting on Japanese propaganda broadcasts. Both were released from Jap relocation camps to work for the government.

The committee's move was interpreted in some quarters as its reply to a reported offer from the New Deal to force FCC Chairman James L. Fly's resignation in return for a recess of hearings until after the November election.

Chairman Lea said he thought the committee's investigation would probably continue "whether Mr. Fly resigns or not." There was no word from Fly on his reported retirement before mid-August.

Deny Aid to Enemy.

Both Japanese denied under oath they had transmitted information to representatives of the Japanese government. The government documents, marked "restricted—for government use only—not for publication" had been taken by Kitasaoko, he admitted, from his FCC office to his home. When his roommate, Nitta, saw them, he asked for permission to study them, Kitasaoko testified, saying they would aid him in his confidential work for the OSS.

The documents consisted of digests of Japanese radio broadcasts. A mass of additional papers remained for scrutiny by the committee staff and Sirica asked time to examine them.

FCC Counsel Charles R. Denny Jr. came to the defense of the Japs. He told the chairman that the "restricted" label did not mean that the papers carried information vital to the security of the country and that there was no regulation against removing them from government offices. He expressed confidence in the loyalty of both Japanese, altho he admitted he knew little about Nitta. He conceded it had been "improper" of Kitasaoko to show the documents to Nitta.

Nitta Called Agitator.

An article by Nitta for the Japanese camp paper at Heart Mountain, Wyo., denouncing Washington, D. C., as "an American scene of prejudice" because of the "appalling and savage treatment of Negroes" was read into the record. Nitta said it was intended merely to show Jap-Americans that they were being well treated by comparison. Denny declared Nitta had a constitutional right to freedom of speech.

"That kind of writing stamps him as an agitator, striving to promote disunity," asserted Sirica.

Denny was asked if the FCC, in the light of the testimony, would retain Kitasaoko on its staff. He said a report would be forwarded to the commission but indicated he had heard nothing to cause the Jap's removal.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Gail Compton

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 25.—Indiana crops are several weeks behind those of Iowa and Illinois but promise a bumper yield providing ample rains come in the next two weeks.

As have the other states, Indiana has increased its acreage of corn and soy beans. It also has taken in an unusally good wheat crop. Iowa, Illinois, and Indiana have experienced their third best wheat harvest since 1866.

More Corn Planted.

Indiana has planted 4,638,000 acres of corn this year, an increase of 8 per cent over 1943. Present indications are for a yield of 208,710,000 bushels, about 1 per cent below last year's harvest. Good weather may see last year's crop equalled or beaten, according to Miner M. Justin, state agricultural satistician.

Soy bean acreage has been set at 1,990,000 acres, which represents a 6 per cent increase over last year. The crop looks good and with the necessary amount of moisture should provide a high yield.

Oat Yield Light.

The state oat harvest, as elsewhere in the midwest, is not very good. Drouth struck when the oats were filling and the yield is running light. Oat acreage was down 12 per cent from last year because of the wet spring, and the yield is expected to be 34,425,000 bushels. This is 4 per cent over the 1943 harvest, but last year the state had an unusually poor crop.

The fruit harvest promises to be much improved over last year. The state expects good crops of peaches, apples, pears, and grapes. The first cutting of hay has been excellent, but the second cutting is beginning to suffer from lack of moisture.

Work on Schedule.

Despite the usual tight labor situation, farmers' work is on schedule and there is no esesntial work left undone. Many of the usual chores, such as cleaning fence rows and repairing buildings, have been given up but the harvesting and cultivating is progessing in good order.

Chinch bugs and corn borers are producing some crop losses, but they have not as yet assumed major proportions. Feed reserves on farms are low but situation has been eased silightly with a sharp drop in swine numbers, culling of poultry flocks, and a decrease in the number of beef cattle on feed.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

THE squash vine borer this summer seems to be more common than usual, with many reports of wilted squash vines being traceable to infestation by these insects. In the west suburbs the borers are most common on crookneck squash, with few attacks being noted on acorn types.

Gardeners whose squash vines appear to be wilting should check the main stems just above ground level for evidence of vine borers. The presence of the insects can be detected by decay of the stems and fine "sawdust" on the stems and adjacent soil. The only method of preventing further borer damage is by using a razor blade to slit thru the side of the stem and kill the borer. Care must be taken to make the razor insertion the length of the stem [not across the stem]. After destroying the borer, which is a white worm about an ineh long, the damaged stem should be covered with loose soil to prevent air drying.

If the borers are not destroyed before reaching adult size, they can destroy the cells which convey water thru the plant, thus causing the plant to die by wilting.

2 FATHERS FACE STIFFER CHARGE IN BURNING OF 3

Charges against two fathers accused of burning the hands of their small children as punishment were changed from disorderly conduct to contributing to the dependency of minors yesterday by Judge Victor A. Kula in Domestic Relations court.

The move, which was requested by Assistant States Atty. John Philip Reed, is a switch from a city charge to a state charge which carries a heavier penalty. For disorderly conduct, the maximum penalty is a $200 fine, but the new charge adds to that fine a maximum of a year in jail.

The two defendants were Glen Disselhorst, 37, of 1644 N. Halsted st., and Walter Shalitis, 29, of 3038 Lock st. On Sunday, Disselhorst held the hands of his children, Gerald, 6, and Glenda, 4, over the kitchen stove as punishment for starting fires in the house.

Shalitis on Friday held the hand of his son, Walter Jr., 6, over a gas flame until the palm was scorched.

WHERE YANKS ARE ADVANCING ON TOKYO
